One Flies North, One South

Surprise for Valentino

Aged 1000, and Moved

Guess in Population

By Arthur Brisbane

HEARST RANCH, San Simeon, Cal., March 2—Regular travel from here to Los Angeles means a two-hour automobile trip to San Luis Obispo's Southern Pacific railroad station, and the rest of the flight on the train. It is the same, going to San Francisco.

But the airplane makes it shorter. In the front yard of this 240,000-acre ranch, down by the Pacific ocean, from a regulation air field, two planes are just leaving, one going south to Los Angeles, the other north to San Francisco.

The plane north bound is produced by Mr. Cord, of the Auburn Motor Co., a three-motor, all black, Stinson airliner, with Lycoming engines. Carrying six passengers, pilot and owner, it will reach San Francisco, 250 miles away, in two hours.

The other plane, smaller, with one Wasp engine produced by United Aircraft, goes 200 miles to Los Angeles in an hour and a half. The pilot and owner, Clarence Brown, is a movie director, in a hurry, now making a picture with Norma Shearer. He drives his plane, carrying one passenger, a young actress from the Argentine, Senorita Mona Maris, pronounced by Mr. Netcher, of Chicago, unusually easy to contemplate. This young lady, who has made pictures here and in Germany, says, with a pleasing accent, "railroad travel, don't you thikk, is very slow."

Clarence Brown, who used to direct pictures for the late Rudolph Valentino, rides down to his plane from the hill-top ranch house on Chief, one of Valentino's horses, and a friend with him rides on another Valentino horse, one white, one gray, both showy and fond of prancing.

Dr. Barham, publisher of the Los Angeles Herald, hired, or persuaded high grade mediums to put in a call for Valentino's spirit, and ask questions. They did not ask Valentino "would you have believed that your finest horse would be ridden to an airship, by your director, Clarence Brown, and you in the far off land of table tipping and rapping?"

Tree moving, important to the beautifying of the earth, has been highly developed on this ranch by C. C. Irosi, engineer.

After experts had said it was impossible to move certain enormous live oak trees, because of their great age and size, Mr. Rossi moved them, including one at least a thousand years old, covering about an acre with its shade.

It was transplanted five years ago, and is thriving, as are several others almost as big. The process will interest tree growers and movers, including Miss Evelyn Smith, owner of the Amawalk Nursery, biggest in the country. With the tree was moved a plot of earth 40 feet in diameter, 9 feet deep. Around this earth plot was built a "tub" of concrete, 40 feet wide. The staves made of separate concrete blocks, held together by means of bands of iron.

Tunnelling under the earth, the soil and roots were supported from below by a crisscross of concrete beams. The total weight moved, with powerful jacks, exceeded 600 tons. It cost $5000 to move one tree a few hundred feet, but such a tree is worth the money, if you have the $5000. The Fisher Brothers, automobile body builders, will want to know about this, for they have moved hundreds of big trees all the way from Amawalk, Westchester County, N. Y., to Detroit.

Rolph, extremely popular governor of California, tells a gathering of irrigationists that California will have a population of 10,000,000. That, of course, is true, and California will, in time, have a population of 40,000,000 and more. Bigger and more fertile than France or Italy. California's population will exceed theirs.

And the airplane will enable everybody to live on hills and mountain tops, keeping all the low, flat land for cultivation.

Governor Rolph says the greater population "will help solve our problems." That is wisdom, and this whole country, even its near-sighted law makers, will realize eventually how wise it is.

When this country had fewer than four million people, in Washington's day, it needed more population, to consume what it could produce. More people came, wages increased, and prosperity, with wages.

When we had fifty millions and then one hundred millions, we needed more people, to consume our products, of farms and factories. We got them.

HAMMER BOY PLEADS NOT GUILTY

MAJ. CHOATE IS DIVORCED AS CRUEL

Wife Testifies the War Hero Realty Dealer Struck Her, Pushed Her Down Stairs

A hero in the war, Maj. Roland H. Choate, Boston realtor, was no hero in his own home, according to testimony today in Norfolk Probate Court—and Mrs. Alice W. Choate of 33 Billings rd., Swampscott, won a divorce from the doughty veteran.

Major Choate was accused on the stand by Mrs. Choate of cruel and abusive treatment, this alleged treatment being climaxed last January 10 when, she claimed, he struck her and pushed her downstairs.

With her divorce, Mrs. Choate was granted custody of their daughter, Dorothy Woodbury Choate, 10.

MARRIED IN 1909

The Choates formerly resided in Milton, and the Yankee Division overseas veteran now lives there at 14 Webster rd. They were married on July 28, 1909, at Beverly.

"He was cruel to me on many occasions since the war," Mrs. Choate testified in the uncontested divorce session. "He struck me and pushed me around and on January 10 he struck me and pushed me downstairs."

Major Choate is head of R. H. Choate & Co., real estate brokers, Devonshire st. He is 43 years old and a native of Beverly, where he enlisted in the National Guard in 1907, advancing from the ranks until he became a lieutenant in the old Second Corps Cadets in 1916, just before it became the Second Field Artillery.

RAN AGAINST COOK

He was mustered into Federal service as captain of the 102d Field Artillery and went to France as a member of that Yankee Division outfit, serving through the American major engagements.

In the reorganization of the National Guard, following the war, he was advanced to the rank of major. He was provost marshal of the 26th Division in 1929 and is prominent in affairs of the YD Club and the American Legion.

In 1928 he was candidate for the Republican nomination for State auditor, opposing Alonzo B. Cook and having the backing and active support of the late Maj.-Gen. Clarence R. Edwards.

RUM CREW LOSE CARGO IN CHASE

What is believed by coast guard officers to be the vanguard of the spring invasion of New England waters by rum boats from the Maritime Provinces was blocked today when a coast guard cutter from the Allerton station pursued a liquor-laden speedboat near Hingham.

The crew of the boat, which escaped, dumped overboard its cargo of liquor, 100 cases of which were recovered by the coast guard. At the custom appraiser's store the liquor was valued at $10,000. Coast guards are trying to recover the rest of the cargo with grappling irons.

According to Thomas F. Finegan, deputy collector of customs in charge of prohibition enforcement, the chase was the result of a tip from a Canadian port that the liquor was enroute, and that the boat was to use Slate Island in Hingham Bay for its storage and distribution.

Acting on information that a fleet of rum runners was mobilizing in the maritime provinces with the 12 mile limit off the New England coastline as its destination, undercover men have been dispatched to Canadian ports as observers, Finnegan said.

Two Hunted as Fire Hits Brockton Home

Brockton, March 2 (AP)—A two-family house next door to that of Fire Chief Franklin F. Dickinson was swept by incendiary fire today. A policeman saw two men flee from the building and speed away in an automobile. The blaze was not extinguished until half of the structure had been swept, with a loss estimated at $3000. The building is owned by William Daley of Lynn and his brother, Edmund, of Saugus.

Bishop Garland Is Pneumonia Victim

Philadelphia, Mar. 2 (AP)—The Right Rev. Thomas J. Garland, 56 bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Pennsylvania, died suddenly last night from pneumonia. Funeral services will be held Thursday at Holy Trinity church with Bishop J. DeWolfe Perry, presiding bishop of the Episcopal church, officiating.

King Zog to Leave Vienna for Home

Vienna, March 2 (AP)—King Zog of Albania, who escaped an assassin's bullet at the Vienna Opera House Feb. 20, has decided to leave this week, presumably to return to Albania, it was said today. Police announced the day, hour or station of his departure would not be made known in advance.

Vets Crowd American Bureau

The Boston Evening American bureau will be open daily from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. main floor, 5 Winthrop sq. At this bureau veterans will receive application blanks and instructions for filling them out and filing them with the Veterans' Bureau.

Pictures on Page 2. Additional news on Pages 2, 4 and 8.

While hundreds were storming the Veterans' Bureau in Washington st., the rush for bonus loan blanks continued today at the bureau established by the Boston Evening American at 5 Winthrop sq.

Many were waiting in the lobby of the Hearst building when the American bureau doors opened at 9 o'clock, and 75 were cared for during the first hour.

Other veterans, unable to get away from work, sent their wives, sisters or sweethearts to obtain blanks for them.

Applicants at the American's bureau are assisted in filling out blanks by staff employes and women volunteers from various local organizations.

WOMEN VOLUNTEERS

Among the first volunteers to report were Mrs. Walter H. Woods of Chestnut Hill, chairman, and Mrs. Carrie I. Wiley of Wakefield, of the committee of co-operation with war veterans of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs.

The American Legion Auxiliary, State Department, of which Mrs. Lillian Burnham of Gloucester is president, is sending two women daily, as is the Old Glory Club of Boston, headed by Mrs. Arthur H. Kilom, president.

In addition to assistance in making out applications, service rendered includes expert advice from William J. O'Neil, contact representative of the Veterans' Bureau.

From the time the doors of the bureau opened yesterday morning, at 10 a. m., until they closed, at 6 p. m., there was a steady stream of ex-service men seeking assistance.

Desiring to assist the veterans in every way, the Boston American opened the bureau at noon Satur-

'RED' OFFICES CLEANED OUT IN RAID

Lawrence Police Seize Wagon Load of Radical Propaganda, Lenin Photo; Jail Girl, 2 Men

Lawrence, March 2—Armed with a search warrant from the district court, a squad of police led by City Marshal Timothy J. O'Brien today descended upon the headquarters of the National Textile Workers' Union in Essex st., confiscating a patrol wagon load of alleged Communistic literature.

Johanne Reed, 22, who said she is secretary to Edith Berkman, fiery leader of the recent strike, now in the custody of immigration authorities at East Boston, was held for questioning, together with two men who said they were clerks.

$500 BACK TO WORK

The men gave their names as Sedron Donagian, 30, of Lawrence, and Abe H. Harfield, 27, of Harrison ave, Boston.

A closet in the headquarters was forced open, uncovering a mimeograph, a large supply of handbills and copies of radical newspapers. The raiders removed the large sign of the National Textile Workers' Union from the front of the building, and took with them to the police station a portrait of Nicolai Lenin, patron saint of communism.

150 POLICE ON GUARD

With Miss Berkman, Pat Devine and William Murdock, leaders of last week's strike, languishing in the custody of immigration authorities, the more than 8000 workers who participated i nthe walkout returned quietly to their looms this morning, virtually bringing to an end the woolen district's labor troubles.

A detail of 150 policemen patrolled tht mill district as the mills opened to safeguard the returning workers from intimidation. The presence of the police was largely for psychological effect, officials said, as no disorders were expected or encountered.

$51,000 BAIL SET AND HE IS TAKEN TO JAIL

Life of Victim of Brutal Attack Fast Ebbing Away, Doctors Announce

PICTURES ON PAGES 3 AND 3

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Haverhill, March 2—Mrs. Clara E. Ellis, hammer victim, was reported sinking rapidly this afternoon. Doctors said her condition was "desperate" and only a spark of life remained.

Haverhill, March 2—In spite of his confession, Russell Noble, 17, pleaded not guilty today to breaking into the home of Mrs. Clara E. Ellis and assault with intent to kill her. Bail was set at $51,000.

Efforts to raise the bail were immediately launched by Rev. George E. Cary, pastor, and members of the First Church of Christ, Congregational, at Bradford, where the boy taught Sunday School.

"It is our duty as Christian people," said the minister. "We hope to get Russell released before tonight."

Meanwhile the wealthy widow, his alleged victim, was suffering a relapse at Benson Hospital.

A second transfusion will be resorted to, but doctors believe she will die from the brutal blows with a hammer, dealt her in her bedroom early Thursday morning.

Meeting the gaze of hundreds with a smile, young Noble trotted with four policemen across Market st. to the courthouse for arraignment.

"Assault—with intent to commit murder."

PLEADS NOT GUILTY.

These words were the only portion of the district court ceremony which appeared to disturb his calm. He paled before replying in a clear voice that he was not guilty.

"If there were any precedent, I would hold the defendant without bail, in view of the fact that his alleged victim may die," said Judge John J. Winn, who, however, expressed sympathy with the boy's plight.

The crowd, which stayed around long after he had been returned to the police station cell, was sympathetic, too.

"We're with you," some shouted, including women.

The accused boy, his prominent shock of blond curls glistening, had words for only one. It was his sister.

"How are you, Russ?" she called, and waved her handkerchief.

Young Noble stopped chewing gum, turned and answered:

"O. K., sis. Don't be worried."

NO HANDCUFFS FOR HIM.

And then he smiled again and disappeared into the court building, surrounded by Lieut. Ovilla J. Legasse, Inspector Herbert Cassidy and Patrolmen Calvin Long and Ralph Clough.

He was not handcuffed, nor did

Georgia Grid Star Elopes With Co-ed

Athens, Ga., March 2 (AP)—Ralph Maddox, redheaded guard on last year's University of Georgia football team, has joined the benedicts by the elopement route. Yesterday he and Miss Mildred Griffiths, a senior at the university, slipped away to Anderson, S. C., and were married.

Ringling Opens Art Museum to Public

Sarasota, Fla., March 2 (AP)—The John and Mabel Ringling Art Museum was opened to the public here today. It is filled with collections gathered in 30 years by John Ringling, circus magnate, and others. Ringling built the museum several years ago but had never opened it to the public. It cost $20,000,000 to build and fill.

Captain of Launch May Be Murdered

Havana, March 2 (AP)—The newspaper Diario de la Marina today quoted John Anderson, American captain of the launch, V-1864, as expressing a belief that a Capt. Henderson of Key West, who also launch, Panthen, was picked up at sea, later murdered. Anderson said he had left Henderson at Cayo Carranquilla two weeks ago waiting for parts to repair his engine.

'Confession' of 'Model' Haverhill Youth in Brutal Hammer Case

Haverhill, March 2—The alleged confession of Russell Noble, 17, brilliant high school senior, to the brutal attack on Mrs. Ciara E. Ellis was given out today by police as follows:

"I knew Mrs. Ellis better than any other person on my newspaper route. I had often gone into her home and had a chat with her. She seemed interested in me and in addition to delivering papers to her, home for three or four years, I used to go up there in the summertime and cut the lawn and put out the ash barrel. She was very good to me.

"Last Wednesday morning I got the high school class pictures and I didn't have the money to pay for them. And I also knew that I was short $6 in my class book accounts.

"Some of the boys and girls up at school had paid me $1 for their class books and instead of putting the money away in a special place I just put it in my pocket. I would only get a dollar like today and another dollar two days later from some student and I would spend it.

SPENT ON DANCES

"I don't know where all of it went to but I spent some of it the movies and some going to dances and some more for lunches in a restaurant after a show or a dance.

"I just didn't know what to do. I thought of borrowing the money, but I didn't know who I could go to to borrow it. I decided that I would have to steal it and I thought of Mrs. Ellis.

"I didn't go there with the intention of hurting Mrs. Ellis, I just wanted to get something that would cover the cost of my shortage and the class books and I thought I could get either her watch or some small amount of money.

"I decided on the trip about 7 o'clock Wednesday night.

TOOK FLORIST'S CLIPPERS

"In the afternoon I took the clippers that I cut the telephone wire with from Mr. Brackett's florist shop.

"I hung around town all night until 12:30 o'clock and then I went and got the hammer and walked to Mrs. Ellis' home. I did not take the hammer to strike

10 DIE IN MEXICO CITY FIRE

Mexico City, March 2 (AP)—At least ten persons were burned to death and a score or more were injured, when the 175-year-old principal theater burned at the end of a midnight performance today.

The ruins were still smouldering when firemen brought out the ten bodies and took them to a police station for identification. At least four more bodies were reported sighted in the debris.

There were scenes of despair at the police station, where relatives of missing persons gathered in an attempt to identify the charred bodies. Among the victims were several women and children.

Most of those who died were believed caught in the panic-stricken rush of persons trying to get out of the theater and trampled underfoot.

Missing Girl Flier Found in Hospital

Monterey, Cal., March 2 (INS)—Edna May Cooper, missing Los Angeles girl flier and actress, was found in a hospital here today. Dr. Hugh Dermody, a physician of the hospital staff, said Miss Cooper was suffering from "a bump on the head" and did not recall how or when she got to Monterey.

15 INDICTED IN STOCK PROBE

Secret indictments against 15 men, some of them high in financial circles, were returned by a special Suffolk County grand jury today as a result of Atty.-Gen. Warner's investigation of the bankrupt New England Investors Shares, Inc.

The 15 men were named in 23 indictments that totalled many more counts.

Asst. Atty.-Gen. Louis H. Sawyer, who handled the investigation for the State, said the warrants would be served immediately under the direction of Police Inspector John H. Mitchell, who is attached to Atty.-Gen. Warner's office.

Inspector Mitchell was one of the chief factors in the investigation that started shortly after the $5,000,000 company went bankrupt in 1928.

His work took him to many parts of the United States and Canada.

The special grand jury took three weeks for the hearing of evidence and scores of witnesses were called before the warrants were issued.

New Zealand Has 558 Quakes

BOSTON AMERICAN AIDS WAR VETERANS ON BONUS LOAN APPLICATIONS

GIVING HELP WHERE HELP IS NEEDED BY WORLD WAR VETERANS

The Boston Evening American was first to realize that World War veterans who intended applying for loans under the acts of Congress, passed on Friday, over President Hoover's veto, would need aid in filling out their application blanks and veteran notes. An office was established on the first floor of the Boston Evening American building, 5 Winthrop sq. Early Saturday applicants called for blanks and instructions. The veterans continued to come in all through Sunday. Here you see them filling out blanks, aided by a representative of the Boston Evening American. Come in today. Every aid will be yours, away from the crowd at the Veterans' Bureau. (Staff photo.)

RUSH IS ON IN OTHER CITIES OVER LAND, TOO

Hardly had the ink on the new federal bonus bill had a chance to dry before these World War veterans lined up at the Veterans' Bureau in Washington. They were there to obtain financial assistance, made possible by the loan clause covered in bonus bill. Red Cross aides served coffee and sandwiches to the veterans as they waited for their chance to file necessary blanks and receive checks. At the right you see New York bonus loan applicants filling out blanks. (International Newsreel photo.)

HAVERHILL RUSHES TO AID OF 'HAMMER BOY'

the police officers link their arms in a vee to guard him better.

While these officers were carrying out their assignment, others were delving further into various angles of the case, partially to clear up a question in the minds of all—whether there was a hidden motive for the hammer attack, other than the robbery which the lad admitted.

In the prisoner's dock in the courtroom, the sun played on his clean-cut features of a "movie" juvenile, enhancing his handsomeness as he talked with Rev. Mr. Cary and his own brother, Charles.

The court proceedings lasted 15 minutes. Judge Winn continued the case to March 11, when informed Mrs. Ellis might die. Noble gave no sign of emotion as this information was conveyed to the court.

He listened unmoved as Judge Winn said:

JUDGE TALKS OF BAIL.

"In all my long experience, I know of no case except murder where the accused is held without bail. But if I must set bail, it will be substantial.

"If I was in this boy's position, and the woman died, and I felt the State had a strong enough case to convict me, and I was guilty, I would flee. I must take this fact into account.

"If there was any precedent, I would hold the defendant without bail. As it is, I will set bail at $50,000 on the assault charge and $1000 on the breaking and entering charge.

"I pity the boy and am really sorry for his predicament and want to help in every way possible and reasonable to enable his attorneys to properly prepare his case."

Taken back to the police station in the lower floor of City Hall, once more running the gauntlet of curious stares, the boy whose name is on the lips of practically everybody in this city today, was photographed and fingerprinted.

Later he was taken to jail at Lawrence to await release on bail, if the fund is raised—or a murder charge if Mrs. Ellis dies.

"What did you go to that house for?" reporters asked him. He was silent.

"What was the idea in handing the stolen watch over to your brother?"

Still no answer but when asked how he was he replied: "Oh, I'm O. K."

A copy of a magazine dealing with mechanics and another of detective stories were under his arm when he entered the police car to go to Lawrence.

His sweetheart, Charlotte Green of Bradford, was not in evidence either in the courtroom or the crowd outside, but she has said she will stand by him, refusing to believe him guilty.

Young Noble, a "model boy" and a brilliant pupil at Haverhill High School, said in his confession he went to rob Mrs. Ellis of $16 to make up a deficit in his class accounts and pay for his class photographs.

VICTIM SCREAMED TWICE

"She only screamed a couple of times; that was when I hit her with the lamp," he said.

After that, according to the confession as given out by police, he hit her with a hammer, leaving a gruesome sight for the maid to find when she went to call her mistress to breakfast.

Prominent citizens, as well as the boy's pastor, are interesting themselves in his case.

"I can hardly believe this thing is true," said Mr. Cary. "But if it is, it is not our place to throw him down and leave him stranded. Rather, it is our duty as Christian people to do anything we can to help him in his hour of need.

"The members of the church and I are now making every effort to raise the necessary $51,000, so that Russell may be released. I feel confident we will make it and that he will be released tonight.

"I have known the boy many years. He has always been to me an honest type, a boy who had struggled for the last three years without the guiding hand of either father or mother, both being dead.

"By hard work he had worked himself into a position where he was head of his class at high school. A boy of whom it might truly be said he had the world at his feet and was now ready to make the most of the opportunities which his own efforts had brought his way.

"I don't think he realizes he seriousness of this charge to which the police say he has confessed. I will stand back of him and help him all I can, and so will many members of my church."

Russell Noble's father died four years ago and his mother a year later. Before she died she called the older boys, Charles and Bixby to her and begged them to take good care of Russell.

MORE BLOOD FOR VICTIM

Curiously enough, it was the efforts of Charles to dispose of the stolen watch which led to the arrest of his younger brother, who up to that time had never been suspected of any wrong-doing.

Clement Kimball Ellis, brother of the dying woman, said today:

"I gave blood to my sister in a transfusion operation last night. I understand there will be another later today, but I don't know who will help her. My sister did not regain consciousness either during or after last night's transfusion."

At Benson Hospital it was announced that 20 persons, men and women, all friends of Mrs. Ellis, had offered to share their blood with her.

Principal Arlington L. Clow of the high school announced that a checkup was being made to ascertain if there was a shortage in Noble's accounts, and that this would not be completed until tomorrow noon.

A. S. McKeen, photographer of the class pictures, said he was not "dunning" the boy for payments for his pictures.

"I knew him well and trusted him implicitly," said McKeen. "He paid $2 on deposit. He ordered more pictures than most of the students and his bill was $25. But he had no reason, as far as I was concerned, to worry."

"That boy's heart must be made of stone," was the comment of Mrs. George K. Clement, sister-in-law of the hammer victim. "Whatever good attributes he had were overshadowed by viciousness."

Miss Lucy Rasmussen, aunt of the accused, and his cousin, Ruth Crowell, were among those in court. The room is small and few but relatives and those interested were permitting to enter, although most of the crowd, which lined the sidewalks and occupied all points of vantage outside tried to get in.

The defendant's lawyer was former Rep. Richard J. McCormick. Asst. Dist. Atty. John J. Ryan represented the government. Relatives talked at great length with counsel before the proceedings got under way.

In a cell in the basement of the City Hall young Noble had awakened early after a long sleep and following breakfast had sent his brother, Charles, out for a magazine which he read until time for court.

"Gosh, I hate to go out and have a big crowd stare at me," he remarked to his brother, in the presence of police officers.

But when he did face the throng, he seemed to mind their stares not at all.

He was first taken upstairs for photographing for the police records, and then, hatless, was taken across the broad street.

CLASSMATES STAND BY HIM

Classmates at Haverhill high school may take action to help defend him, it was revealed today.

Described as a model boy, young Noble was a Sunday school teacher at the First Church, a member of the Young People's Society, president of the Philomathia Club at Haverhill High, an officer of the senior class, earned spending money by delivering newspapers, and in addition, worked for a florist on Saturdays.

Principal Clow said he could "hardly believe" the news.

He said:

"The record of the boy during his high school career has been so satisfactory, his record of discipline has been so impressive, and his general conduct has been such that it is particularly difficult to believe him capable of the act to which he is reported to have confessed."

GIRL STANDS BY HIM

Young Noble's scholastic standing has dropped considerably within the last few months, however, Clow revealed, and his general physical condition has not been up to normal.

Among the scores of friends who are rushing to Noble's aid is his sweetheart, Charlotte Green of Bradford. She said she could not believe the youth had committed the attack.

"It can't be true," she sobbed when Charles Noble, Russell's brother, broke the news to her. "No matter what you say, I'll never believe that Russell did it."

If Mrs. Ellis fails to recover from her injuries, the boy will be charged with first degree murder, police asserted.

Among those intrigued by the strange developments in the case is Judge Frederick P. Cabot of the juvenile court in Boston, an expert on juvenile delinquency. In regard to the Noble case, however, he declined to express an opinion, explaining it would be necessary to study the individual at length and develop a sympathetic understanding of him.

He is reported to have told police that he entered the Ellis home to steal money with which to make up a deficiency in the senior class fund, of which he is custodian. He said he crept up to the second floor landing of the Ellis mansion, carrying a hammer in the event he had to force a door.

Entering Mrs. Ellis' bedroom, he awoke the sleeping widow and she pulled on the electric light, he is reported to have explained.

She attempted to strike him with a small table lamp, he said, but he snatched it from her and struck her on the mouth. Then he dealt her three blows on the head with a hammer, he is alleged to have said, took a white gold wrist watch from a table and fled.

CHECK UP VISITS

State police today checked up reports that Noble had been a frequent visitor at the home of his victim.

Chums of Noble claim he told them Mrs. Ellis had given him money and that his visits had not been confined to occasions when he delivered papers and did chores at the Summer st. mansion.

Noble had delivered newspapers at the Ellis home for five years. For the past few years he had put out ashes and done other chores, for which he was paid by Mrs. Ellis. She gave him $5 as a Christmas present, which was no more than many of his customers in the fashionable Highland section gave him.

The statement accredited to Noble by the police that he had invaded the Ellis home to raise $16 to pay for his graduation photographs and to wipe out a deficit of $6 in his class fund has been doubted in certain circles because of discovery that the boy has $150 in the bank.

Investigation, however, revealed that Noble had that amount deposited in the Haverhill Savings bank up to several months ago, when he transferred it to the Old Colony Trust Company. He left it in trust to go toward his education so that he could not draw from it. He planned to take a course at Amherst Agricultural College.

TRAPPED BY WATCH

The fact that his bank deposit was thus tied up tends to substantiate his story to the police that he needed ready cash to pay the photographer and to meet the shortage in his class fund.

The boy overlooked a large assortment of valuables in Mrs. Ellis'

Mrs. Ellis with. I just wanted to use it on the porch door so that I could open it.

"I went up to the porch door and turned the knob. To my surprise it opened up. It had been left unlocked. I walked in. I walked through the sun room to the hall and then I went up the front stairs right to Mrs. Ellis' room. She switched on the lights. The light seemed to blind her for a second and then she suddenly recognized me.

"What are you doing here? You got out of here before I call the police,' she yelled at me.

USED MOVIE TRICK

"I knew that she couldn't call the police because I had cut the telephone wire before I went in the house. I had seen that done in the movies in some of those gunmen pictures.

"The fact that I had cut the wire I guess must have kept me from being frightened by Mrs. Ellis and I told her to shut up and not to make so much noise.

"Then she grabbed the light and swung it at me. If she had hit me it would have knocked me cold but I grabbed it out of her hand and hit her on the face with it and she started to bleed, and she fell on the bed.

FEARED CAPTURE

"Then something happened to me. As I said before I took the hammer to force open the door but when I saw her bleeding and falling on the bed I guess I thought of her coming to and calling the police.

"I pulled out the hammer and I hit her first on the left side of the head and then twice on the right side of the head. Every time I swung the hammer it splattered the blood on the wall but I don't think I got any on myself.

"She only screamed a couple of times, that was when I hit her with the lamp.

"When I stopped hitting her with the hammer I pulled her around in the bed so that she would lie in a natural position and I covered her over with a plaid blanket that was laying on the bed. I don't think I was in the room over five minutes. On my way out I grabbed the watch and pushed it into my pocket."

STAGE GIRL IS 'PROUD SUICIDE'

New York, March 2 (AP)—Penniless and without a job, Sylvia Hazzard, 22-year-old chorus girl, ended her life by gas in a Brooklyn lodging house today with mailes toward none.

Before she lay down to die, she destroyed all papers of identification and write this note:

"I did what was right. I didn't even want anyone to say I was a coward. It took more courage to live than to die. I want everyone to know that I loved them."

Her body, clothed in a pink wrapper, was found in the single cot of her hall bedroom.

'BANDEAU GIRL' WAS MAKING FOOL OF GROSS SAYS WITNESS

'ASKED WHY HE DIDN'T GET ON TO HIMSELF'

Lynn Woman Testifies in the Divorce Trial of Electric Company Treasurer

Salem, March 2 — Testimony that Solomon Gross and Mrs. Katherine Perkins, the "bandeau girl" of previous testimony, left the Electron Radio Co., of Lynn together several times, was given today in the resumed divorce trial of Mrs. Gertrude Gross of Swampscott.

Mrs. Anna Emond of Empire st., Lynn, who said she worked in the radio company, of which Gross was treasurer, as assistant floorwoman in the mounting department, told of the departures of the couple.

The witness testified that Mrs. Perkins worked as a mounter at the next bench to her. She said that on three or four occasions she saw Gross approach Mrs. Perkins and whisper in her ear, and that both then left the building. On these occasions according to Mrs. Emond, she did not see them again all day.

WARNED HIM, SHE SAYS

She testified that a month after she went to work in the radio plant in the winter of 1928, she saw Mrs. Perkins get into Gross' car in front of the factory. On another occasion, Mrs. Emond testified, she saw Gross and Mrs. Perkins in an automobile in Johnson st., where Mrs. Perkins lived.

"At one time I said to Mr. Gross, 'She is making a fool of you; why don't you get on to your self?'"

"He told me to mind my own business and I would be better off."

Under cross-examination by Atty. George Sullivan, witness admitted she telephone to Mrs. Gross after learning she was to seek a divorce, and as a result of a talk, was summoned.

"Were you shocked when you saw Gross and Mrs. Perkins leave the plant together?" she was asked.

"No," was the answer.

TALKED WITH MRS. GROSS

"You saw Gross talk to Mrs. Perkins and then Mrs. Perkins went out. Did you report it?"

"No."

"You telephoned Mrs. Gross about her divorce?"

"Yes."

"You talked about money, didn't you?"

"No."

Miss Catherine MacEachern, sister of a previous witness, also a waitress at Sunnyside Inn, Topsfield, told of renting a cottage there to Gross.

Her sister testified last week that she saw Mrs. Perkins wearing only a bandeau, at a party in the cottage at which Gross was present.

bedroom. There were diamond rings and other jewelry estimated by her brother at $2000. There was also $85 in cash in a bureau drawer.

There were two gold watches on a dresser. In snatching the white gold wrist watch from the bed table, Noble carried off the one article which left the most definite trail.

Mrs. Ellis had purchased this watch recently from Frank Freeman, a local jeweler. He positively identified it as her property by the serial number and the record of sale. Noble first told the police he found this watch in the snow Friday afternoon at the corner of Highland ave. and Park st.

Charles "Boob" Noble, 23, brother of the accused youth, carried a wrist watch in his pocket for a by two days. Late Saturday Charles advised Russell to go to police headquarters and ask Capt. William A. Gavin if any missing watch had been reported to the police.

When Russell came, Capt. Gavin asked him what kind of a watch it was and if he had it. The boy said he had found the watch while delivering newspapers and when he described the locality, Capt. Gavin's suspicions were aroused.

Lieut. Orvile J. Lagasse and Inspector Herbert D. Cassidy went with Russell to his home, 22 South Chestnut st., Bradford, and obtained the watch.

LETTERS FROM SLAIN WOMAN SENT HER

Cassie Clayton of Erie to Appear in New York Quiz; Husband Before Jury

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Correspondent

New York, March 2— Miss Cassie Clayton of Erie, Pa., was projected into the spotlight today in the investigation into the mysterious murder of beautiful, red-haired Vivian Gordon, Broadway "girl about town," who was found strangled in Van Cortlandt Park early Thursday.

Miss Clayton was at one time a confidante of Vivian Gordon. The last letter written by Miss Gordon—a few days before she was "taken for a ride"—was to Miss Clayton. In it Miss Gordon described the feeling of triumph she experienced because she was soon to appear as a witness in New York's sensational vice inquiry and tell how she had been "framed" by a policeman on a vice charge eight years ago.

Vivian wrote Cassie that she would be "vindicated—if it takes my last breath!

QUESTIONED IN ERIE.

Miss Clayton was to be brought to New York today under armed guard to relate her story to Referee Samuel Seabury, head of the vice inquiry, or his assistant, Irving Ben Cooper. Cooper talked to Miss Gordon five days before she was slain. She promised then to be a witness against New York's women "framing" cops.

Significance was attached to the fact that Miss Clayton was questioned in Erie by Edward G. Perry, a process server on Referee Seabury's staff.

Miss Gordon had claimed that on March, 1923, she was "framed" by Policeman Andrew J. McLaughlin and her divorced husband, John E. O. Bischoff of Wasnington. She was arrested in company with Al Marks. She was haled into women's court and sentenced to Bedford reformatory.

HUSBAND BEFORE JURY

Her child, Benita, was taken from her and awarded to the husband. Ever since she harbored a grudge against McLaughlin and her husband and repeatedly promised to "get even."

McLaughlin and Bischoff, both of whom are now in New York, denied they had participated in a "frame-up" such as she had threatened to reveal.

Both McLaughlin and Bischoff were to be called today before the March grand jury. Bischoff professes an eagerness to help the authorities in every way he can.

HEARST PAPERS AID THOUSANDS IN LOAN RUSH

Hearst newspapers throughout the country were widely praised today by veterans' bureau officials for the service bureaus established to aid veterans applying for the new bonus loans.

In addition to the Boston offices of the Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, the Hearst newspapers in other cities aided thousands of veterans in filling out their loan blanks.

BLANKS EXHAUSTED

The New York American and Evening Journal opened a special veterans' bonus bureau at 232 West 58th st. and were forced to ask for 50,000 more blanks when the first supply was quickly exhausted.

At Syracuse, N. Y., another bureau was established by the Journal-American, and the work was praised by W. Limburg, acting regional manager of the veterans' bureau at Buffalo.

The Chicago Herald and Examiner office handled more than 5000 veterans the first day and even supplied the government with new blanks from their own presses when the first lots in that city were exhausted at the veterans' bureau.

A similar service was rendered by the Albany Times-Union after Col. Charles E. Walsh, director of the bureau, requested the paper to replenish the supply of blanks.

The Washington Herald and Times opened a bureau Saturday and worked through the night and yesterday to aid the applicants.

At Baltimore an office was opened in the Hearst production plant of the Baltimore News and American to save applicants a trip to Ft. McHenry for the loans, two miles out of the city.

PRINT OWN BLANKS.

The Atlanta Georgian, Detroit Times, Omaha Bee-News, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Oakland, Cal., Post Enquirur, San Francisco Examiner, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, San Antonio Light, Los Angeles Examiner and the Rochester Journal and American were others.

A specially chartered plan of the latter was used to rush blanks to that city while 1000 veterans waited in line at offices authorized by the veterans' bureau.

The Los Angeles Examiner was credited by Regional Manager A. D. Dorden for "saving the day" after first supplies of blanks ran out and were replenished by the presses of the newspaper.

and higher wages and prosperity with them.

With a population of one hundred and twenty millions, wages and prosperity reached their peak. A temporary setback means nothing.

WE NEED MORE POPULATION NOW, TO CONSUME OUR PRODUCTS, although stupidity does not realize it.

Mr. Legge, head of the farm relief that did not relieve, gives up his job and "can only advise farmers to plant less wheat, less cotton, less of everything."

That is the advice of despair, and there is no cause for despair. We need, not less production, but more people, of the right kind to consume what we produce, people exactly like those that made the country what it is.

We consume now 90 per cent of our products. More population would consume the superfluous 10 per cent and create a demand for more.

Instead of looking to Europe, Asia and Africa to buy from us, which they will not do, if they can help it, we should have enough people here, to do the buying.

Workers ill-informed envy more population would mean fewer jobs, lower wages.

How do they answer the fact that when there were only 4,000,000 population in the country, there was only one workman in the United States, a New England mechanic, able to earn as much as $1 a day, all the year round.

A President of the United States complained, at that time, that it was impossible to hire a good worker for less than $100 a year.

In proportion to size, Mexico's population is less than one-half ours. There you can hire a first class worker for $35 a month, and he boards himself.

Canada's population, in proportion to size, is not one-tenth of ours. Wages and prosperity here are far ahead of Canada. We need more population. THINK IT OVER.

Veterans Rush to Boston American Loan Bureau

day. When the doors opened yesterday morning a dozen ex-service men were waiting.

SAVED A DAY'S PAY

Every man who visited the American's bureau was grateful for the assistance rendered. For scores it meant saving a day's pay. Many of the men said they could not afford to loaf even part of a day to call at the Veterans' Bureau to file an application.

One man said he was glad the office was open on Sunday as it gave him a chance to look for work today.

Persons who think the loans are not needed should have listened to some of the stories told by ex-service men. These stories came from men who have been unemployed for months, business men who require additional capital to tide them over, veterans whose wives and children have been ill, ex-service men who were about to lose their homes if overdue payments were not made.

MANY ORIGINAL LOANS

One of the interesting revelations at the American's bureau yesterday was that 10 per cent of the applications were for original loans. Many who have been able to get by thus far without borrowing on their adjusted compensation certificates have been forced, through financial stress, to make applications for loans. They said they did not like to do so but circumstances had compelled them to.

A large number of men who had failed to apply for the bonus benefits came forward and did so as a result of the widespread publicity given the subject by the recent fight in Congress. Many appeared at the American's bureau yesterday and were properly advised as to what course to pursue.

SAVED HIS HOME

"This loan will arrive just in time to prevent me from losing my home in Atlantic," said a paint salesman after filling out his application. "I have been just getting by during the past six months and although my wife and I have been able to keep up appearances, we have had nothing to spare and I would have lost my house in a short time because of failure to make payments on the second mortgage. This loan will prevent that from happening, thank God."

A well dressed man recently transferred to Boston from Kansas City by his employer said the loan will enable him to set up housekeeping and save money by moving from a furnished apartment.

"Living expenses in Boston are so much higher than in Kansas City that it is a difficult job to make both ends meet here," he said. In addition, the company for which I work cut wages ten per cent, which further complicates matters."

A veteran who was accompanied by his wife and young child said he had been unemployed for six months.

"We have been living at the home of a relative," he said, "and this loan will enable us to live under our own roof again."

FOOD FOR FAMILY

One of the most pathetic cases was that of an ex-service man whose two young children are in a hospital suffering from malnutrition on account of his inability to supply them with proper food.

"Both of my children are now in a hospital. One of them has been there a month. The other went in last week. This loan will assure me of being able to supply proper nourishment for them when they come out of the hospital. It surely will be welcome in our family," he said.

A veteran with a small battery rental and repair business said the loan would save him from bankruptcy.

"I've been just getting along, wondering from day to day whether I could continue. It has been tough sledding this past winter and make no mistake about it. The loan check will certainly look good to me," he declared.

SAVES HIS HOME

"This loan will assure me of eating," said another veteran. "I have been out of work for two months and am down to practically my last cent. I was afraid the Senate would not pass the loan bill over President Hoover's veto. If the Senate hadn't overturned the President's veto, I don't know what I would have done."

Works Fast—Makes You Feel Like a New Person Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets every three hours. Drink lots of water between times—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

7 BLIND MEN FLEE FLAMES

Lowell, March 2—Seven blind men, working in a shop at Moody and Tilden sts. were driven to the street today and made their way to safety unaided when fire swept through the building.

Starting in the cellar from an undetermined cause, the fire had gained but slight headway when the sensitive noses of the blind men detected the smoke.

Despite their inability to see and thus make their way out quickly, they remained cool and felt their way through the doorways and passages to safety.

The flames threatened to spread to the City Hall garage, adjoining, and two alarms were sounded for the blaze. Meanwhile, garage workers were moving 24 automobiles into the street.

LORD IRWIN AND GANDHI AGREE

Bombay, March 2 (INS)—An agreement settling all points of the Indian dispute has been reached by Lord Irwin, viceroy, and Mahatma M. K. Gandhi in their "man to man" conferences at the Delhi, according to an announcement by Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru today. He added that an official statement giving the final conclusions on peace agreement would be issued tomorrow night.

The announcement was interpreted to mean the end of the civil disobedience campaign in India.

The public statement was withheld until Tuesday in deference to Gandhi's customary observance of Monday as a "silent day."

It was believed here that the vexing question of the salt tax had been solved. The tax leveled on salt by the British government was one of Gandhi's chief complaints.

Gandhi, it was understood, also demanded the liberation of the 50,000 political prisoners still in jails throughout India, the right to continue the picketing of foreign shops selling liquor and foreign cloth, and the cessation of alleged police brutalities.

American Saves Day for Vets; Prints 10,000 Loan Blanks

A shortage of bonus loan blanks was obviated when the Boston Evening American printed 10,000 yesterday, through a special photographic plate process and delivered them to Col. William J. Blake at the Veterans' Bureau this morning.

Another 20,000 are being printed by this newspaper in the same manner, to take care of the demand until an additional supply, ordered by Col. Blake, arrives from Washington.

FRANCE O. K.'S NAVAL PACT

Paris, March 2 (AP)—The French Cabinet today decided that the tripartite naval agreement reached last week by Great Britain, Italy and France, was "satisfactory." It was announced after a meeting of the ministers presided over by President Doumergue.

Thus France's adherence to the arrangement, which must now be submitted to the United States, Japan and the British Dominions, was virtually assured.

The point which seemingly created the greatest interest was that which some newspapers alleged would ask the United States and Japan to agree not to build capital ships larger than 23,000 or 26,000 tons.

THAW SPANKING TRIAL UP AGAIN

New York, March 2 (INS)—The second trial of the case of Marcia Estardus, night club hostess, against Harry K. Thaw, was to open in Supreme Court today. She charges the millionaire spanked her with a hairbrush, and she asks $100,000 damages.

The first trial in October, 1929, gave Miss Estardus an award of $75,000, which was held excessive and reduced to $25,000. She appealed and a new trial was granted.

Yet you'll meet me in the thick of a Broadway crowd"

It's a far cry from the cow country to Broadway. But what it takes to make the broncho buster "open up" about his cigarette is exactly what you want in your smoke. Good taste—and lots of it! And that is first a matter of tobacco quality, never forget it! What you taste in Chesterfield is riper, better tobaccos—not another thing—blended and "cross-blended" to a fragrant, satisfying mildness that is Chesterfield's own!

Greater mildness . . . better taste!

FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

800 MORE VETS STORM BOSTON U. S. BUREAU

Another throng stormed the Veterans' Bureau, Washington and Essex sts., today in the rush for new bonus loans.

The second day of the rush saw 800 waiting in line before the doors opened and equal numbers applying for almost every hour.

In addition to 15,000 personal applications Saturday and today, the mail brought more than 12,000 more.

Another cross-section of life was presented by the applicants, ranging from the well-dressed, cigar-smoking applicant to those with tattered clothes and appearances.

A score of women, one trundling a wondering infant, were among the first callers seeking application blanks to take to sick husbands.

When the doors opened at 9 a. m. 800 were admitted to the fifth floor office immediately to be cared for by 38 clerks under direction of Hugh H. Hickey, chief of the contact bureau.

BLAKE ARRIVES EARLY

Col. William J. Blake, regional director, was on hand early to supervise operations.

Many of the group, apparently acceding to the request to let the needy be served first, filed out and procured their applications to be made out later.

Others, however, grouped around tables provided for them and made out their applications.

One of the early callers was "Shadow" Bowdoin, giant negro pugilist. With him were several firemen in uniform, teamsters, clerks, a lumberjack and scores of unemployed.

HOURS 9 A. M. TO 5 P. M.

Every variety of expression was noted on the faces of the crowd. The eager, the serious, the smiling. All were there with one objective—relief for their immediate needs.

The hours of the bureau were set for 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., but the clerks were willing to stay. Col. Blake said, if their staying would mean aid to the needy.

He said it would be determined during the day whether late closing would be required to care for the rush.

Mrs. Margaret Gorman of 274 Summer st., East Boston, was one of the early callers today. She sought an application for her nephew who is now her adopted son, John J. Crowley out of work for three months and is ill.

CHECKS TO BE MAILED

Another request came in a telegram, from Virginia to Joseph Sullivan, contact representative of the bureau. It was from Sergt. Harry A. King of the Marine Corps, now stationed at the Naval Operations Base at Norfolk. He leaves for China in two weeks and asked that his application be rushed.

A Roxbury man, father of four children, wanted the money to nurture his wife back to health. Provision for a trip of his aged parents from Canada to Boston was wanted by another.

Hundreds of others saw visions of back bills being receipted and come few eagerly told of planned "larks."

Bureau officials explained again today that no loans will be given on certificates issued less than two years, but holders of them may make application now and insure a quick check when the two-year period is up.

A ten-minute halt was called in the rush today when applications blanks ran out but clerks worked over the mimeograph machines and turned out 10,000 more in short order.

Col. Blake estimated that 20,000 would be checked before the end of the day and made ready for the payment process that will come through the mailing of checks to the veterans.

Canadian Line Cuts Third-Class Fares

Montreal, Que., March 2 (AP)—In line with other steamship companies, the White Star Canadian service has announced reductions in round-trip third class fares to the British Isles and Continental Europe from one-quarter to one-third of present rates. They will be effective this month and in April and Aug. 1 to Oct. 15, with return ticket good for two years.

How To Make Hands Soft and White

A dandy way to make dry, rough, red or weathered hands soft, smooth and white is to rub into the hands after each washing, a few drops of a mixture of sea moss and glycerin. Sea moss is a noted skin-whitener and softener, and glycerin a splendid balm. In combination, the two make a remarkable lotion. You can buy this lotion already prepared at any good drug store. It is called Nepto Lotion and costs only like a bottle.

Nepto Lotion makes dry, rough or red hands soft, supple and white. It makes "housework" hands look aristocratic. Nepto Lotion may be used on the face or any other part of the body with as great benefit as on the hands. Wherever it is used, it whitens, smoothes and refreshes. It also relieves and prevents chapping, chafing, sunburn and wind burn. Rub a few drops into your skin before going out and it will protect your skin from the withering effects of sun and wind. Nepto Lotion is a naturally good thing for the skin and can do no harm whatever. Contains no grease to clog the pores and catch dirt. Rubs in dry and smooth so you can powder over it. Economical, too, as a little of this unique lotion goes a long way.

GRILLLED IN GRIFFITH SUIT

INVESTIGATING the $601,000 damage suit brought against David Wark Griffith, veteran screen director, Los Angeles authorities questioned Fern Sentril, 22-year-old film actress, who filed the suit, charging assault. # U. S. PROFITS ON VETS' LOANS

Washington, March 2 (INS)—Under the rates at which the government will borrow money this month to finance payment of loans on veterans' bonus certificates the Treasury will make a profit of about $30,000,000 annually, provided the total loans aggregate $1,000,000,000.

Secretary Mellon today announced the March financing which will take the form of $500,000,000 in 3½ per cent 12-year bonds, $600,000,000 in 2 per cent 12-month certificates and $300,000,000 in 1¼ per cent six-month certificates.

The bonds and the year certificates will be used to retire approximately $1,100,000,000 in 3½ per cent notes and the short term issue to pay bonus loans. Veterans must pay the Government 4½ per cent interest on their bonus loans, or 3 per cent more than the Government is paying for the money. Unless the interest is paid the value of the credit left on certificates virtually will be wiped out before their maturity.

France Opens Up Betting Booths

Paris, Feb. 2 (AP)—Open betting in government controlled pari mutuel booths in Paris was indulged in today for the first time in the history of French racing.

The wagers were mostly small and the highest was reported to be for about $200. The establishment of betting booths in Paris was part of the Government's campaign against clandestine bookmakers who are declared to have amassed fortunes at the expense of the Government.

Creditors Hound Prince

Vienna, March 2 (AP)—Creditors have sought to attach a $500 monthly allowance paid by his son to Prince Ludwig Windischgraetz, once one of Hungary's richest noblemen. The prince was convicted several years ago of counterfeiting.

Slayer Gives Up

Toronto, Ont., March 2 (AP)—Walking into a police station shortly after 8:30 a. m. today, A. D. Greenhill, 28, announced he had killed M. J. Hamilton, 50. Police found the body in Hamilton's office.

MORE PRAISE FOR KONJOLA

Here Is Another Typical Example of Famous Medicine at Work

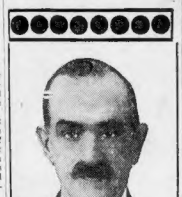
What a pity it is that, because other medicines have failed to bring relief, sufferers hesitate to put their faith in Konjola, the medicine that tens of thousands have called "the greatest medicine in the world."



MR. JAMES W. CRANNAN

Surely these former sufferers from ills that Konjola is designed to relieve would not make such an enthusiastic statement had they not been convinced that Konjola is, indeed, a medicine with outstanding ability to bring relief. Read, and profit by, the experience of Mr. James W. Crannan, 24 Tremont street, Stoneham, Mass., and then you will more easily understand why Konjola has won and held more than a million friends. Then decide to get all the facts about Konjola, true and verified, from the Konjola Man who is at the Epstein drug store, Epstein's, Scollay Square, Boston. Here is what Mr. Crannan says of his experience with this master medicine:

"When I came after my first bottle of Konjola I was limping as the result of rheumatism in my legs, and I had the same kind of pains in my arms. My nerves were in such condition that I slept very little, and indigestion added to my misery. After reading so many fine endorsements of Konjola I decided to try it, and three bottles have benefited me so greatly that I intend to take a dozen bottles. The pains are gone from my arms; my nerves have quieted, and I walked up three flights of stairs today and my legs did not bother me. Konjola has helped me so much that I tell all my friends about it."

Quit experimenting . . . put Konjola the medicine of 32 ingredients to the test. You will never regret this decision. Demand Konjola and get it . . . don't accept a substitute. The Konjola Man is at Epstein's, Scollay Square (Epstein Drug Co.), Boston, where daily he is meeting all who call to ask about Konjola. Konjola is sold by all leading druggists everywhere.

14 PLEAD GUILTY OF TREASON AT SOVIET TRIAL

Moscow, March 2—In the second big counter-revolutionary trial within a few months, 14 prominent economists charged with treason appeared in court today and pleaded guilty to all accusations.

The prescribed penalty is death. They emulated the eight engineers who stood trial last December on charges of sabotage and conspiracy to overthrow the Soviet by pleading guilty as soon as the indictment was read.

The trial opened and continued on its ponderous course strangely devoid of the clamor that marked the trial of Prof. Ramzin and his associates. While there were Klieg lights and cameramen there was no nation-wide broadcast.

Prosecutor Krylenko of the uniform and again dominated the courtroom today.

The defendants all wore earphones and listened intently to Krylenko's questions and the answers.

There was little cigarette smoking among the prisoners, but the judges smoked constantly, except a woman jurist, Judge Artukina, who chewed lozenges.

Budapest, Hungary, March 2 (AP)—More than 150 persons were reported today suffering from poison after eating sweets served them in one of the largest stores in Budapest. Two of them were believed dying.

Mr. Hearst Praised for Helping Veterans

Establishment of a sub-bureau at 5 Winthrop sq. for the assistance of veterans in applying for loans brought immediate and unsolicited letters of gratefulness and praise for William Randolph Hearst from officials of the Veterans' Bureau, the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Lieut.-Col. William J. Blake, regional director of the Veterans' Bureau:

"We are very grateful for the co-operation which the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser are extending to the United States Veterans' Bureau in assisting veterans of the World War applying for their adjusted service certificate loans.

Lieut.-Col. Blake

"This latest demonstration of the interest which Mr. Hearst and his papers all over the country have always had in the veterans of the World War is appreciated by them and by this agency of the federal government, which is charged with the responsibility of extending this service and relief."

Dennis H. Haverty, Department Adjutant of the American Legion:

"I take this opportunity to express my deep appreciation to the Boston Evening American for the invaluable assistance rendered the veterans in securing the recent so-called Bonus legislation.

"While it is true that the bill as passed is not entirely satisfactory to the veterans and their friends, and I include the Boston Evening American among the latter, it is nevertheless something and will result in benefitting thousands of needy ex-service men and their families.

"The championing of veteran legislation by the American in this instance was nothing new."

Dennis H. Haverty

Dr. Julian D. Lucas, commander of Massachusetts Veterans of Foreign Wars:

"It is not a bit surprising to me that the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser took the lead to help the veterans on their bonus loans.

"It is still another of the many activities sponsored by Mr. Hearst in his work in aiding veterans.

Dr. J. D. Lucas

"Both newspapers are to be congratulated on the move, and I feel sure that it will immeasurably aid not only the veteran himself, but the Bureau officials that are confronted with a huge problem."

SIMPSON HEADS DEATH DEFENSE

Elizabeth, N. J., March 2 (AP)—The defense for William Frazer, playboy of Rahway, charged with killing his sweetheart, marshaled its forces today, with Attorney Alexander Simpson of Jersey City in command.

The fiery little prosecutor of the Halls-Mills trial and defeated Democratic opponent of Dwight W. Morrow for the United States Senate has not indicated defensive tactics, but his associate, Victor Greenburg, of Passaic, has shown that the question of the location of the shooting of Mrs. Phoebe Quick Stadey would play a part. Frazer insists death was accidental.

Frazer, in telling of the death of the 33-year-old hairdresser in his automobile, has been unable to give the exact location to authorities.

Prosecutor Abe J. David plans to present the case to the May term grand jury, seeking a murder indictment.

Fruit Marmalade Proves Healthful Dish Now

From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast over Station WLEX

Such wonderful bargains as there have been in fruit this last week, especially in oranges and grapefruit! The Lee family has been reveling in tall glasses of chilled orange juice and I'm sure there isn't a chance in the world of a fin bug fastening on us, considering the number of grapefruit we've consumed.

We have literally been using citrus fruits, from soup to nuts—preceding the soup with a fruit cocktail and ending the meal with a fruit dessert. I think that our desserts are too often made of concentrated and highly refined foods whereas fruit desserts provide simple, healthful sweets, at the same time furnishing needed vitamins, minerals salts, and fruit acids. My dentist tells me too that a dessert of fresh fruits helps in cleansing the teeth at the end of the meal.

Martha Lee

This is a good time to make up some fruit marmalade to supplement the fast-disappearing Fall supply of jams and jellies. Marmalades are delicious, not only with hot breads, biscuits, muffins, waffles, pancakes, toast and sandwiches, but as fillings for tarts, layer cakes and use in pudding sauces. In choosing fruit for marmalade be sure that the skins are clean and unblemished. I have for you today two orange marmalades, one bitter and one sweet, and you can pay your money and take your choice. I've another favorite, too, a four-fruit marmalade combining an apple, an orange, a grapefruit and a lemon but that I'll have to ask you send for as there isn't room for it here today.

ORANGE MARMALADE
(Makes 12 to 15 glasses)

4 medium sized or 3 large oranges
4 lemons
Sugar
Water

Slice halves or quarters of unpeeled fruit very thin. Measure quantity of sliced fruit. Add five times as much cold water. This will require a generous sized receptacle. At once or any time during next 24 hours boil hard for 20 to 60 minutes. This should reduce quantity one-half.

Measure into 2 or 4 cup lots. Do not cook amounts of more than 4 cups, since a better flavor and color result if marmalade is cooked in small quantities. If oranges were rather sweet, add additional lemon juice at this stage—about 1 tbsp. to 1 cup of fruit. Bring to boiling point. Boil 5 to 10 minutes. Add ¾ cup sugar for each cup of fruit.

Boil first or test lot rapidly till it gives the jelly test of thick reluctant drops from the side of the spoon—not more than 10 minutes. If longer time is required the next lot should be boiled correspondingly longer before sugar is added.

Pour into sterilized glasses. Cover with paraffin when cold.

BITTER ORANGE MARMALADE
(Makes 6 to 8 glasses)

1 grapefruit
3 oranges
1 lemon
¼ cup lemon juice
Sugar

Slice unpeeled fruit very thin. Add three times as much water as fruit. Boil 20 minutes. Measure. Bring to boiling point. Add ¾ cup sugar for each cup of fruit. Boil 25 minutes or until it gives the jelly test. Just before removing from fire add ¼ cup lemon juice. Pour into sterilized glasses; cover with paraffin when cold.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

New England Fresh Pork

Does this sound good to you? Tender, lean pork chops, browned on one side, covered with a layer of daintily seasoned bread dressing, topped with a wide band of parboiled green pepper, and this in turn filled with minced onion fried a delicate golden brown, and the whole heated until piping hot? It's just one of the mid-winter specialties prepared in the Martha Lee Cooking School this week, and we must share the nice compliments this dish received with the John P. Squire Co., who furnished the tender chops of New England Dressed Fresh Pork.

The staff enjoyed a luscious luncheon, too, of these same toothsomely tender chops, baked in cream and served with stuffed baked potatoes. We "topped off" with some of the cheese ale shown in today's picture, and a golden almond macaroon, and decided we wouldn't change our job with even the most intriguing movie star who has to count her calories. Right now having consumed my quota of the above luncheon within the past 15 minutes, I feel that I should curl up on a cushion—lump and generous cushion—and purr.

Wouldn't you like to have a copy of this week's lesson, with its delicious Pork Chop Supreme and nine other dependable recipes, including fish turbans with lobster and mushroom filling, Parisienne potatoes, cauliflower soufflé, jellied fruit salad, with cream dressing, egg timbales with cheese sauce, and macaroon custard? They're yours on request, you know, and a itty, bitty stamp would be appreciated. Our postage bills are sumpin' awful!

CHOCOLATE ICE BOX COOKIES ARE DELICIOUS ANY TIME

SUGAR AND spice and lots of nice things go into these Chocolate Ice Box Cookies.

CHILL OVERNIGHT and quickly bake the cookies in a hot oven, 400 F., about eight minutes. They come in very handy when unexpected guests arrive.

THEY'RE ESPECIALLY delicious with ginger ale. Why not try them?

These Cookies Please All

Many modern medical men, as you probably know, order a glass of water an hour treating certain ailments, which at first might seem quite a hardship to those of us who have trouble in downing our own "two quarts daily," which general health rules prescribe.

In visiting one of Boston's most famous hospitals last summer, I was interested to see that while "water" is stipulated, physicians in many cases advise that some of this water be taken in the form of ginger ale. So now I feel extra virtuous while I sip my pre-broadcast and 3 o'clock allotment of ginger ale, feeling that I'm not only giving my tummy a treat, but also increasing the important water in-take.

UNDER ONE ROOF

Probably most of you have heard or read that recently two old friends of ours, the Moxie company and Pureoxia company, have joined business hands and will soon be all under one roof. The Moxie plant has always been the by-word for scrupulous cleanliness in manufacturing and "always sanitary" has been the motto for the Pureoxia company, so it seems entirely fitting that these two splendid products should merge.

Not only is ginger ale bottled under the Pureoxia brand, but an assortment of other drinks, including Orange Crush, Lemon Crush, Lime Crush Sarsaparilla, Root Beer and my extra-special favorite, Sparkling Grape. Until you try this latter, I don't believe you'll ever realize how perfect a carbonated grape drink can be.

In our picture today, we're illustrating Chocolate Ice Box Cookies, which we find a perfect accompaniment for ginger ale or Moxie, and we pass along this never-fail recipe to you, with our blessings.

ICE BOX COOKIES

1 cup white vegetable shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten
½ tsp. vanilla
2 cups flour
½ tsp. cream of tartar
½ tsp. soda

Cream shortening well, add sugar slowly, creaming thoroughly. Add the egg and then the dry ingredients, sifted together. This plain dough may be divided into four parts and each part flavored or varied with chocolate, chopped nuts, white raisins, or colored with vegetable coloring. Put one part into an oblong roll, wrap in waxed paper; put the second part into a round roll and wrap; put the third part into a square and wrap; and to the fourth part add a few drops of evaporated milk, just enough to make a soft dough and drop from a teaspoon. Bake the cookies in a hot oven, 400 F. about eight minutes.

To make a Chocolate Roll, add two squares of melted chocolate to half of this Ice Box Cookie recipe and roll into an oblong. Spread out marshmallows across one end and roll up as for a jelly roll. Chill thoroughly and then slice off thin slices with a very sharp knife. Bake in a moderate oven, 325 F.

Dainty Sandwich Treat for Guests

A dainty sandwich combination is cream cheese and soft maple sugar, creamed and spread on whole wheat bread. Preserved ginger and creamed cheese, moistened with some of the ginger syrup is delicious, too, and raisins and pecans, blended with thick cream or sweet cream. Strawberry jam and creamed cheese makes a nice sandwich, especially if it's toasted.

Serve on Hot Toast

A can of tomato soup added to a jar of prepared welsh rarebit makes a luscious combination, especially served on hot toast with a poached egg on top.

Peanut Butter and Bacon Sandwiches

Try sandwiches of peanut butter and chopped bacon dipped in a custard of milk and egg (1 egg to 1 cup of milk) and fried like French toast in butter.

Now Is Time to Enroll for Spring Classes

Are you planning to enjoy the spring classes of the Martha Lee cooking school? If you are we advise early enrollment, as our seating capacity is limited and we invariably have many more applications than we can accommodate.

The classes will open on April 7 and 8, and will continue to June 2 and 3—a Tuesday evening class at 6:30 and a homemakers' school on Wednesday at 2. Attendance at 7 of the 10 sessions entitles you to a diploma. Better write right away for the admission card, which is necessary to secure credit for your attendance. Visitors always welcome without cards.

National Magazine Coverage at ⅓ cent per family

THE national advertiser who is interested in stretching the buying power of his advertising dollar to the limit can study rate and data books until the cows come home without finding another magazine or group of magazines that offer comparable national coverage at such an attractive price as The American Weekly.

In fact, through the use of this magazine it is now possible for a national advertiser to concentrate his entire magazine appropriation in a single publication and reach one out of every four families in the whole United States.

Distributed through the medium of seventeen great metropolitan newspapers, this, the mightiest of magazines, spreads throughout forty-eight states, concentrating its greatest force in the richest markets and at the same time assuring real national coverage.

At a cost of less than ⅓ cent per family The American Weekly advertiser can reach 5,500,000 families with a full-page advertisement printed in four colors—a page more than twice the size of any other magazine page.

An analysis of American Weekly circulation reveals these significant facts:

The American Weekly concentrates and dominates in 536 of America's 812 towns and cities of 10,000 population and over.

In each of 185 cities, it reaches one out of every two families
In 132 more cities, it reaches 40 to 50%
In an additional 102 cities, it reaches 30 to 40%
In another 117 cities, it reaches 20 to 30%

—and, in addition, nearly 2,000,000 families in thousands of other communities, large and small, regularly buy The American Weekly.

If you wonder why it is that this great magazine commands an army of readers almost twice as great as its nearest competitor, compare its editorial content with that of any other magazine on the newsstands today.

It is the greatest magazine in the world because it is the most interesting magazine in the world.

Where can you spend your advertising dollar more effectively?

Cock-A-Doodle-Doo

The American Weekly advertising revenue in February exceeded in volume any previous February in American Weekly history and showed a substantial increase over the same month in 1929 and 1930.

'TRADER HORN,' GREATEST FILM OF ITS KIND, IS CROWDED WITH THRILLS

BIG EPIC ON MAJESTIC SCREEN

The Cast

|---|---|
| Trader Horn | Harry Carey |
| Nina | Edwina Booth |
| Peru | Duncan Renaldo |
| Resident | Mutia Omoolu |
| Edith Trent | Olive Golden |

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

UNBELIEVABLE, BUT TRUE! That about sums up the epic appeal of "Trader Horn," bringing to the Majestic screen at its premiere last night an amazing panorama of jungle sights and situations, with animal and aborigines in starkly realistic action, and with more thrills than one can get in any baker's dozen of Hollywood synthetic output. Unbelievable, yet true. "Trader Horn" puts the paradox in pictures, and for once the reel is very, very real. We recall no melodrama on stage or screen that had us "haired up" more.

ONE CAN readily forgive the studio-made passages, or overlook the obvious processed sections. One will forgive minor flaws, such as Edwina Booth's snow-white skin under the torrid sun, the frailty of the threaded plot. For all these lesser things fade out before the heroic in a gallicence of this portrayal of its drama of jungle life. "Trader Horn" packs a punch as no other African film has done. It will make the skin of the hardest-boiled reviewer turn goosefleish. Lion and leopard, rhino and hippo and crocodile, and swarming natives, furnish the best acting; eerie sounds of the night and the day, caught here by the microphone for the first time, the weirdly, awe-inspiring tom-toms and the savage chantings are the accompaniment to a swift succession of climaxes more effective than creation of any playwright or scenarist.

Harry Carey

OUT OF Ethelreda Lewis' best-seller of several years ago, which brought Alcyslus Horn and his adventures into a maelstrom of controversy, there is taken for the love interest of this movie, the Trader's account of the white girl adopted from infancy into a tribe and in time looked up to as its "white goddess." By itself the tale would be rather trite. But the able hand of Director W. S. Van Dyke, and the thoroughness of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production, have given it a value far higher than its intrinsic merit. First of all, most of the picture was done on the Dark Continent. Then the Van Dyke finger put a magic touch in the blending of melodrama with the tense tragedy of primitive man and beast, building up and maintaining his atmosphere by weaving in scene and sound, and presenting in staccato fashion recurring climaxes that hold us fascinated, and keep us on a perfect teeter-board of excitement. That spirit of genuineness and sincerity, of intriguing naiveness, that pervades the film is to be laid to Mr. Van Dyke primarily, and secondarily to the excellence of Harry Carey in the Trader role. This is not only the best African picture, but in our opinion, the best of all animal pictures. And there is grandeur in its superb photography.

FINE AS IS Mr. Carey, convincing in his nonchalant adventuring, the laurels go to a seeming native for the outstanding characterization. This is Mutia Omoolu, as the Reechero of the book. A striking figure always, he snares the attention, grips the heart and rises head and shoulders above his white companions. We would like to see him as Umslopogaas (if we spell it correctly), in some future talkie made from the warp and woof of H. Rider Haggard's "King Solomon's Mines." As Nina Miss Booth does well enough in a part which not once gives her a chance to utter an English word—not even an "I love you" Duncan Renaldo is a disappointment as Peru.

BY ALL MEANS see "Trader Horn." No other picture of its kind has touched its heights. It should entertain you richly; and it cannot but stir you deeply.

It's a natural epic that will thrill you into breathlessness.

Egged on by Heap Big Chief

EDWINA BOOTH IN "TRADER HORN" SCENE

Miss Booth is being presented an ostrich egg by an African chief "Trader Horn" is a splendid picture of romance and adventure in the jungle. It's at the Majestic.

ARLEN STARS AS COWBOY

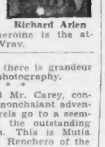
"The Conquering Horde" brings breezy Western action to the screens of the Fenway and Scollay this week. It tells the adventure and romance of a cowboy and a lassie while they are engaged in driving a herd of cattle over many miles of hill and plain. Richard Arlen is the hero, and he acts in a way that will please his admirers. The heroine is the attractive Fay Wray.



Richard Arlen

BRITTONS TOP VAUDEVILLE

On the RKO Keith-Boston screen is melodrama, with Betty Compson, Gilbert Emery and Ivan Lebedeff keeping the situations interesting, while on the stage is vaudeville, headed by Frank and Milt Britton's whoopee musical act.

Miss Compson is her shining self in "The Lady Refuses," which has the advantage of an ending most unusual in the common run of talkies.

Good jazz and good fun effervesces out of the act of the two Brittons. It's a tip-top turn. Other sterling acts are those of J. Francis Dooley and Corinne Sales, with humor and song; that clever Japanese, Kuma, with lots in his bag o' tricks; Paul Maul, the Pittsburgh Eskimo; Chaney and Fox, able dancers, and Whitfield and Benson, with singing and comic patter.

SEA DRAMA IN NEWSREEL

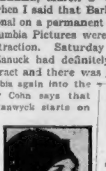
Scenes of half of the Nurturo-tan limping into port after being cut in two on the jagged rocks at Dungeness during a terrific storm is the exceptional subject revealed in the Hearst News now showing at Loew's State. Although the entire bow of the ship is gone, it appears in no danger of sinking and is towed slowly into port. In another item, Mayor Thompson expresses his thanks in closeup and praises William Randolph Hearst for his ideal Americanism.

BARBARA STANWYCK GETS LONG-TERM CONTRACT

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, March 2.—I wasn't so far wrong a few months ago when I said that Barbara Stanwyck was going over to First National on a permanent contract. At the time I wrote the story Columbia Pictures were much upset and asked for an immediate retraction. Saturday I learned that Jack Warner and Darryl Zanuck had definitely signed Miss Stanwyck on a five-year contract and there was great rejoicing.

Enter Columbia again into the picture. Harry Cohn says that before Miss Stanwyck starts on her contract she will finish "The Miracle Woman" for him. Then she goes to First National for "Night Nurse" and back to Columbia to make another picture. Further more, Harry Cohn emphasizes the fact that Columbia has an option on Miss Stanwyck for two additional pictures. Figure it out for yourself.



Paramount Publix

It really means that both First National and Columbia want Barbara Stanwyck and both of them are going to get her, if you know what I mean. Naturally, Miss Stanwyck is keen about being on the First National lot since her husband, Frank Fay, is already there and she makes no bones of being very much in love with him and he feels the same about her. Great days for the little red-headed girl who came from the night clubs to star in "Burlesque" and is now headed straight for spectacular stardom if I know my movies. Did you see her in "Ladies of Leisure" and "Illicit?"

JEWISH GROUP IN CONCERT

By MOSES SMITH

THE BOSTON Jewish Choral Society, S. Braslavsky, conductor, gave its first concert in Jordan Hall last night before an audience of good size and spirited enthusiasm. The program, consisting entirely of music by Jewish composers, in line with the policy of the organization and its conductor, listed Goldmark's charming "Rustic Wedding" Symphony and three compositions by Mr. Braslavsky—two Psalms for solo voice, chorus, orchestra and organ and a paraphrase on a Chasaidic Song for oboe solo and orchestra. I. G. Glickstein was the soloist.

Both performance and program indicated that the idea behind the concert has merit. An orchestra of players from the People's Symphony Orchestra gave a performance of the Symphony, which, if not uniformly excellent, was often sensitive, at the end brilliant. It also disclosed Mr. Braslavsky as a keen interpreter and able orchestra leader. His conductorial accomplishments were even more obvious in the elaborate choral compositions, especially in view of the fact that the chorus was a recently-formed group.

Big Vaudeville Bill for Gayety Patrons

The Gayety has five vaudeville acts and a stage band, and Harry Langdon and Bessie Love in "So America Thirst," also "The Big Fight."

Leon Errol in Film

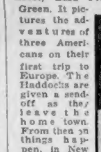
"Finn and Hattie" now at Publix Beacon and Modern, has Leon Errol, Zasu Pitts and Mitzie Green. It pictures the adventures of three Americans on their first trip to Europe. The Haddocks are given a send-off as they leave the home town. From then on things happen, in New York, where the family is joined by Jackie Searl; aboard the boat where Lilyan Tashman appears as the princess to vamp Finn; in Paris, where Finn's whoopee-making and Mitzi's mischief-making get the whole family in trouble. "The Command Performance," the co-feature tells the story of a young man who, to save his life, is forced to woo and win a princess far another man. Neil Hamilton plays a dual role. Others in the cast are Una Merkel, Helen Ware, Thelma Todd and Albert Gran.



Leon Errol

"Man from Chicago" Tops Bill at the Park

"The Man From Chicago" is the top picture at the Park this week. It is a crook drama based on the stage play. Bernard Nedell, as Nick Dugan, gives a convincing performance. He is supported by Jack Kennedy, Billy Milton and Dodo Watts.

Boyden Girl Engaged to Williams

Miss Anstiss Boyden Announces Her Engagement to Moses Williams, Jr.

ONCE AGAIN THE LITTLE bird that whispers such exciting things to Betty Alden has proven to be a very knowing little fellow, for the lovely blonde daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boyden of Meadowbrook rd., Dedham, Miss Anstiss Boyden, is following up a delightful rumor by announcing her engagement to Moses Williams, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Williams of Needham. Miss Boyden has been popular since her debutante days in 1928-29, and is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club. Mr. Williams was graduated from Harvard in 1928 and belongs to the Porcellian and Tennis and Racquet Clubs. The wedding date has not been decided upon.

AND AN ATTRACTIVE BOSTON lad has gone far from home for his future wife in the person of Miss Martha Armitage Mead, sister of Mr. and Mrs. James Jennings Mead of Washington, D. C. Her engagement has just been announced to William Ladd Hallowell, son of Mrs. John W. Hallowell of Brush Hill rd., Milton. Miss Mead was educated at Miss Hill's school at Great Barrington in the Berkshires and made her social debut in New York four years ago. Mr. Hallowell attended Milton Academy, Phillips Exeter and Harvard. No date has been set for the wedding.

MISS RUTH GIBSON, daughter of Mrs. Kirkland H. Gibson of Chestnut Hill, has returned home from Phillips House entirely recovered from injuries suffered in her accident which caused a dislocated shoulder. Her brother, Kirkland, has also gone home from the same hospital and is well after a successful operation. The Gibson family is a very popular one, another sister, Miss Blossom, being secretary of the Vincent Club.

Dr. Walter Starkie to Give Lecture on Gypsies and Music

THE GYPSIES AND THEIR music will be the topic of Dr. Walter Starkie's lecture at the home of Mrs. Roland Gage Hopkins on April 13. This will be the fifth and last in a series of talks which Mrs. Hopkins has been sponsoring at her home on Crafts rd., Chestnut Hill. Dr. Starkie is a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, and will play many Gypsy melodies as part of his program.

MRS. A. FARWELL BEMIS is opening her house for the Spring course of lectures to be given by Mrs. Jackson Fleming under the auspices of the Chestnut Hill Branch, National Civic Federation. There will be two series as usual, one at the Copley-Plaza this morning at 11 a. m. and continuing for the four consecutive Mondays in March, and the Chesinut Hill series to be held at Mrs. Bemis' house at 40 Old Orchard rd., beginning tomorrow morning and continuing on the four Tuesdays in this month.

MRS. JAMES D. COLT is chairman of the committee for the special rug and apron sale at the home of Mrs. William L. McKee, 284 Commonwealth ave., Wednesday, from 10 until 5, under the direction of the New England Farm and Garden Association. Assisting Mrs. Colt are Mesdames F. Wayland Ayer, George M. Crocker, Ernest B. Dane, Horace S. Frazer, Charles M. Hammond, Charles King, Edward C. Moore, Harold Murdock, Edward R. Nash, James M. Newell, Walter G. Resor and Miss Hildegarde Allen.

AN EXHIBITION OF FASTELS and water colors by the Alumni Association at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts opens in the school gallery today and will continue until March 14. Tea served from 4 until 5:30 in the gallery will be in charge of Mrs. William A. Allen, Mrs. Frederick Bosley, Mrs. Carol Bill, Miss Blanche E. Colman, Mrs. Thomas Motley and Mrs. Albert M. Watson.

PROMINENT IN DEB GROUP

MISS WARNER MISS AYER

MISS BARBARA WARNER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Skinner Warner of Milton, and Miss Nancy Ayer, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James B. Ayer of Milton, are debutantes of this season and members of the Junior League and Vincent Club.

Marlborough st., who has presented her daughter, Miss Barbara, this season, will give a dinner party in honor of Miss Helen Homans, sub-debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Homans of Chestnut st., on Friday evening, March 27. Miss Helen is the sister of Miss Fanny Homans, an attractive deb of this season. Many dinners and small parties are being given for the young girls who will be presented next season, a kind of entr'acte.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK S. WHITE of Hyde Park and Mr. and Mrs. George R. Wells of Southbridge are staying at the Weylin Hotel in New York for a few days.

A NUMBER OF THE DEBUTANTES are planning to enter college next fall, among them Miss Catherina (Peggy) Little, daughter of the Theodore Littles of Brookline, Miss Mary Fish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erland Fish and Miss Ellen de Normandie, daughter of the Robert de Normandies of Lincoln.

REGISTERED AT THE ST. REGIS in New York are Mrs. Walworth Pierce and Mrs. Alexander Lincoln of Boston. Mr. and Mrs. George N. Chamberlain and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Hale of Boston are also stopping in New York for a few days.

Lenten Prayer

Spring Sowing

(Read Luke 8:5-15. Text, Luke 8:11.) The seed is the word of God.

There is a vitality in words. Plant them and they spring into life, growing to immeasurable harvests. Civilization education, religion, they all come from the sowing of words in the fecund soil of the human soul. The turning points in life are where words fitly spoken take root. "In the beginning was the word"—at every beginning is the word. Jesus describes himself as the sower of the word of God. His training of the twelve was to make them expert farmers of the spirit. So we are called to our task, which is to be sowers of words. Many of our words will be wasted, no doubt, sown on rocky soil or among thorns. But we are to sow and spare not. Nature is lavish with her seeds, producing and scattering far more than will ever grow. So should we be with words. We do not know where the good ground is. Our mistake is in selecting the likely spots for our sowing.

PRAYER: O God, whose word giveth life, grant unto us that we may be diligent and generous, sowing beside all waters. Govern our tongues, that the divine gift of speech be not abused. In Jesus' name. Amen.

Shorter Sleeve for This Spring

By ANN ARDEN

THERE'S NOT much chance of having anything up one's sleeve any more—there is hardly enough sleeve in many instances to more than cover part of the arm! But no one should complain for this latest quirk of Fashion is altogether delightful, we think. Certainly it lends a new vivacity to the usual thing we expect from our costumes.

NEARLY EVERY well-known Paris house has shown some with shorter sleeves in its spring collections. Silk and wool alike get this chopped-off treatment in sleeves. The three-quarter length seems to be elected by unanimous choice. And fur banding, such as has been seen this past winter on evening coats, is used in similar manner on these suits.

GOUPY HAS designed a very charming version of the three-quarter length sleeved suit. She uses a monotone woolen with a slightly pebbly surface. The jacket is cut quite short with a snug hipline somewhat like a peplum. The neckline is collarless but is softened by the jabot-like opening it effects. The three-quarter sleeves eschew fur but introduce a cuff trimmed with buttons. The skirt is interesting in its seamed detail.

A VERY wearable version is the smart suit pictured in skipper blue Chongaleen and white galyak fur. The skirt has pointed inserts, giving subtle low flare. The wrist-length jacket has slant button closing and narrow blue leather belt, with silver buckle, and soft revers, topped with the flat collar of galyak fur. The three-quarter bell sleeves are marked by stitched bands and buttons. The blouse is of eggshell crepe satin, with cowl neckline, its tightly buttoned cuffs accented by circular flare between elbow and wrist. The charmeuse straw tricorn has white felt side trim.

WHETHER THOSE little dressmaker fur scarfs of flat furs would introduce contrasting themes this spring has given rise to much conjecture. We find an affirmative answer. For instance, beige lapin in cravat styling has a white monogram motif worked in white. Black and white galyak are a favored contrasting team, too.

War Memoirs of Marshal Foch

CLEMENCEAU URGED FOCH TO HAVE PERSHING RELIEVED

In yesterday's installment Marshal Foch told how the Allied attack spread over the 200-mile front until it reached the historic plains of Flanders. Today he reveals that Clemenceau urged him to ask President Wilson to take the American command from Pershing.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Translated from the French by Col. T. Bentley Mott

In order to augment the effort demanded of the American Army I did not hesitate to increase the scope of its command. The autonomy of this force had been fully established, and now, in order to effect a concordance between operations in the Argonne and those in Champagne, as well as a close union of efforts, Gen. Maistre, who in this region commanded the central group of French armies, was charged with assuring coordination between the operations of the French troops on the right of his group and those of the American First Army.

The slowing up of the Argonne operations had been otherwise interpreted in certain quarters, less acquainted with the difficulties encountered by commanders in handling the masses of modern armies. It was thus that Monsieur Clemenceau, impressed by the "marking time" of the American Army, wrote to me on October 21 the letter below, which had in view nothing less than to effect a change in the chief command of the American Army:

"I have postponed from day to day writing you about the crisis existing in the American army. It is not that I have anything to tell you regarding a state of affairs which assuredly you know better than anybody else, since, as commander-in-chief of the Allied Armies, you are necessarily the first to suffer from its consequences.

"You have watched at close range the development of Gen. Pershing's whims; unfortunately, thanks to his invincible obstinacy, he has won out against you, as well as against your immediate subordinates. To go over all this again can only lead to useless regrets.

"Constitutionally I am the head of the French army.

"I would be a criminal if I allowed the French army to wear itself out indefinitely in battle without doing everything in my power to ensure than an Allied army which has hurried to its aid was rendered capable of fulfilling the military role for which it is destined.

"The French army and the British army, without a moment's letup, have been daily fighting, for the last three months, battles which are using them up at a time when it is impossible for us to reinforce them immediately with fresh effectives.

"These two armies are pressing back the enemy with an ardor that excites worldwide admiration; but our worthy American allies, who thirst to get into action and who are unanimously acknowledged to be great soldiers, have been marking time ever since their forward jump on the 26th day.

"In spite of heavy losses, they have failed to conquer the ground assigned them as their objective. Nobody can maintain that these fine troops are unusable; they are merely unused.

"I am aware of all the efforts you have made to overcome the resistance of Gen. Pershing; indeed, it is because you have omitted nothing in the way of persuasion that I cannot shirk the duty of asking myself whether after the failure of fruitless conversations, the time has not come for changing methods.

'Get Rid of Pershing'

Clemenceau Advises Foch to Ask Wilson to Recall Him

"When Gen. Pershing refused to obey your orders you could have appealed to President Wilson. For reasons which you considered more important, you put off this solution of the conflict, fearing that it would bring resentment of a magnitude which you thought it difficult to gauge.

"Now that I have learned, however, that you have taken in hand the direct command of Gen. Pershing's troops, I must refrain from feeling that this trial should be the last of those we have been compelled to undergo.

"I ardently wish your success, and it may come, provided it is possible for you, through some miracle, to combine the separate direction of one army with the general conduct along comprehensive lines of the Allied Armies as a whole.

"I think that it will not take long for you to make up your mind on this subject. If Gen. Pershing finally resigns himself to obedience, if he accepts the advice of capable generals, whose presence at their side he has until now permitted only that he might reject their counsels, I shall be wholly delighted.

"But if this new attempt to reconcile two contrary points of view should not bring the advantageous results you anticipate, I must say to you that, in my opinion, any further hesitation should be out of the question. For it would then be certainly high time to tell President Wilson the truth and the whole truth concerning the situation of the American troops. Indeed, neither you nor I have the right to conceal it from him.

"CLEMENCEAU."

Foch Manipulates

Achieves Results This Way Rather Than by Orders

Having a more comprehensive knowledge of the difficulties encountered by the American Army, I could not subscribe to the radical solution contemplated by M. Clemenceau. Not wishing, however, to start a discussion of this subject with the French Prime Minister, I confined myself to maintaining my orders and to answering him on October 23 as follows:

"The American divisions, on October 20th, were thus distributed:

(Marshal Foch's table showing the distribution of the American forces appears herewith in another column.)

"As shown by the above table, of the 30 divisions fit for battle, 16 are distributed among the Allied armies (French and British) and 20 are under General Pershing's orders, constituting the autonomous American Army.

"I count upon maintaining these two lots, differing in their nature, and the existence of which I consider necessary for various reasons.

"I also contemplate varying the proportion between the two according to circumstances, increasing the 16 and diminishing the 20, whenever operations being prepared permit it.

"It is by manipulation of this sort that I expect to diminish the weakness of the High Command, rather than by orders. These I shall give, to be sure, but may not perhaps be able to carry them out, since, to do so, would require staffs having the necessary experience. Moreover, this crisis is of the sort which all improvised armies suffer, and which always considerably impairs their effectiveness at the start.

"But there is no denying the magnitude of the effort made by the American Army. After attacking at Saint-Mihiel on September 12th it attacked in the Argonne on the 26th. From September 26th to October 20th its losses in battle were 54,136 men—in exchange for small gains on a narrow front, it is true, but over particularly difficult terrain and in the face of serious resistance by the enemy."

New American Drive

Powerful Attack Prepared in Direction of Busancy

At the same time, with a view to hastening as much as possible the resumption of the combined offensive of the French Fourth Army and the American First Army, and in order to render their progress easier, I drew up, on October 21, a general instruction, setting forth the objectives to be attained and the methods to be employed in reaching them:

"For the purpose of assuring close co-operation between the American First Army and the French Fourth Army, it is advisable to observe the following:

"The general aim of the combined operations of the American First Army and the right wing of the French Fourth Army is to reach the region of Busancy (for the First American Army), Le Chesne (for the French Fourth Army), in order to unblock the line of the Aisne from the east.

"The combined attacks of these armies should have as their object to reach the goal fixed for them—Busancy-Le Chesne—by turning from the west and from the east the wooded heights of the Argonne by movements of wider scope; this will obviate exhausting the troops by fighting in the woods, which is costly and of little value.

"To accomplish this, the following is necessary:

"(1) That the American First Army prepare and execute without the least delay a powerful attack in the direction of Boureuilles-Bois, Busancy and the Bois de la Folie, for this taking advantage of the ridge opening conquered by it north of the Bois des Loges and of Romagne, while avoiding getting engaged in combats in the woods of the Argonne and of the Banthevillle region.

"(2) That the French Fourth Army, maintaining through Grandpre only its liaison with the American Army, act rapidly and in strong force through Vouziers against Quatre Champs, and, by way of Vandy and Terron, farther north, against Les Alleux; it will move toward Le Chesne, resolutely widening its attacks.

My intention was thus to launch an enlarged Franco-American offensive, on both sides of the Argonne, over territo / for the most part easy to traverse.

The preliminary plans drawn up by the French Fourth Army and the American First Army for the execution of this manoeuvre did not entirely correspond with my conception of its conduct. The movements they presented gave evidence of a rigidity which might conceivably hamper the rapid exploitation of any success achieved. They indicated a return to the method of attack, which consisted in marking beforehand on the map successive lines to be reached, and betrayed an exaggerated solicitude in the matter of alignment.

Relentless Pursuit

Foch Insists Troops Press Germans Back With No Stop

In my opinion this was by no means the style which should characterize operations at this moment because:

"Important results, such as we are pursuing in the present stage of the war, when we are confronted by an enemy whose exhaustion increases every day, can only be achieved by progress as rapid and as deep as possible.

"Troops launched into an attack need not think of anything except the direction of their attack. In that direction they must go as far as they can, attacking and manoeuvring against the resisting enemy, with no preoccupation as to alignment, units which have got the farthest forward working for the advantage of those temporarily delayed. They must operate not against lines indicated a priori and suggested by the nature of the ground, but against the enemy; and once they have seized him they must never let go their grip."

Though he shared this point of view in principle in what concerned "direction of exploitation, along which the advance is to be resolutely pushed, with no preconceived notions and without solicitude for alignment," General Petain thought that in practice it was impossible to escape from fixing successive objectives to be attained.

However, on November 1st General Petain sent out to his troops a new instruction reconciling the two points of view.

"The designation of successive lines of objectives," he wrote, "must never be allowed to hamper the dash of attacking troops or diminish the chances of pushing forward as far as possible . . .

"It follows that to make such designation is justified as a general procedure only during the phase when the rupture of a fortified line is being effected.

"As soon as pursuit begins, speed becomes the principal factor of success, and the idea of the direction must take precedence over anything else in the mind of a commander. Once the enemy has been seized, the hold on him must not be relaxed . . .

"When this moment arrives, the only thing which need concern us until we have direction of exploitation assigned to it, and along which it must boldly push forward, without stopping to regulate its advance on its neighbors . . ."

The complete identity of views existed between the Commander-in-Chief of the Allied armies and the Commander-in-Chief of the French armies.

AT THE LISTENING POST

Another program will be launched over WNAC at 8:30 tonight, which, to music lovers, will be perhaps the most welcome feature in many moons. It is a series of 12 weekly concerts, starring artists of the Metropolitan and Chicago opera companies and a 32-piece orchestra composed of members of the New York Philharmonic. Launching the program is less a personality than Beniamino Gigli, tenor of the Metropolitan opera and probably the most logical successor to the mantle of Enrico Caruso.

And still another new program will make its mike bow on WBZA at 7:45. Or perhaps we shouldn't say a new program for it's the return of "Mr. and Mrs." This old-time favorite which had in the title roles Gertrude Lamothe and Walter F. Myers, comes back to the air with the original pair.

From the Hall of the Americas at the Pan-American Union, at Washington will come a broadcast over WEEI at 10:30, consisting of a concert of Latin American music played by the U. S. Service orchestra. Outstanding composers and compositions from Central and South America will be featured by the orchestra assisted by vocalists.

COMING OUT OF THE ETHER . . . The Boston Evening American forgoes its news broadcast Friday night so that WLEX may bring to the air a description of the Canzoneri-Fuller bout starting at 10 p. m. . . . Judge Dowd of the Municipal court will speak on WNAC at 4:15 tomorrow on "Historic Sites of Greater Boston." . . . The Davey hour cast, WEEI Sunday feature, takes the air tonight with Clarence Chamberlain, famous aviator. No, not on the radio but on the airplane; Chamberlain is taking the group on a flight to Ohio. . . . Brookline makes radio history tonight on WNAC at 7 when a town election is made the subject of a broadcast. Included among the talks to be heard will be one by Judge Baker of Brookline Municipal court, who will speak on the "Duty of Citizenship."

M. G. M.

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY to prove how Federal authorities can trace the source of radio broadcasts is at hand. Custom house officers, in response to complaints of Chelsea listeners, are running down the pest who breaks in with "Row down down" and other nonsensical hash. This air pirate is in a bad position because like the Northwest mounted, Federal radio men always "get their man."

RADIO ARTISTS, in performing for chain dramas, are employing doubles a la stars of movietone. Imagine having someone cough in order to preserve the tonal qualities of one's voice. Trivial perhaps, but interesting—if true!

BOB DONAHUE, formerly of "Rose Marie" and stock productions, did well in the role of Yancey Craven in an afternoon drama over WBZA (how many heard him?) Miss Cyna Davis, as the pioneer's wife, was also excellent, and mention simply must be made of Carl Terhune as Ricky, friend of them both (in the play and off the air as well).

WHO WANTS to wager that the voice of Charlie Chaplin will soon be heard via radio? A hazardous prediction, maybe, but our proposition is two nickel cigars against one of those trick lighters that it won't be long now.

JIGGS IN RADIO DEBUT TONIGHT

Tonight when the clock moves to 7:45 a new character will take his bow on the air waves. New to radio, but old and seasoned, Jiggs, husband of Maggie and much abused, will give radio listeners a vivid portrayal of his trials and tribulations. WNAC is the station and the offering is a production of King Features Syndicate, arranged in electrical transcription form for weekly presentation in New England. Bringing Up Father, internationally known comic strip is the basis of "Jiggs and Maggie" on the air, which is a new departure in radio dramatization.

Plans have been completed for Jiggs to be heard throughout the world, via the electrical transcription process, under the supervision of The William Morris Agency of New York. The New England Confectionery Company are to be the sponsors of the broadcast locally, which will carry to the Yankee network, allied with WNAC.

There has been painstaking care taken, both in direction and casting of this popular newspaper comic feature. More than 65 aspirants were given trials, this number being the final group to survive an extensive elimination program necessary to choose the proper character for Jiggs. An even greater number were in line for the role of Maggie. Humor, so apparent for many years in the newspaper offering of Bringing Up Father, will, of course, be the basis of it all, with human interest sustaining to a marked degree.

HARVARD LAW EXPERT IN FIGHT TO SAVE GALLO

Secret Six Organized to Combat Crime

What Has Gone Before

Louie Scorpio, called "Slaughterhouse," champion steer killer of the stockyards and winner of the revolver prize at the butchers' annual picnic, decided to join the bootleg racket run by Johnny Franks. His decision was clinched by the frameup appearance at Franks' cafe of "Peaches," a beauty of the underworld. The gang invades the territory of Joe Colimo, a rival racketeer, with a truckload of beer. Fight ensued, in which Colimo's brother is killed. Colimo puts Scorpio "on the spot," but fails to kill him. The latter returns to the steak house and shoots Franks to death.

CHAPTER 9

Trial of Vronski

VRONSKI CLUNG hysterically to his captors. He read death in the gaze of the hard-eyed gangsters. He knew that never had he been so close to death as now.

"Buck up, Slaughterhouse—I know it's a tough break," continued Carl, with seeming sympathy, as he patted the big fellow on the back.

Scorpio looked at him gratefully.

He felt weak. His wounds were bleeding afresh. He was afraid he would faint.

"Better take me out of this—I'd better see a doctor," he informed the sergeant. "You know the dirty rat almost got me, too."

The policeman nodded understandingly. He could see plainly that the big fellow was suffering.

He gave a staccato order. The officers cleared the place.

Scorpio and Vronski, hand cuffed to their captors, were led to the patrol wagon. The plain clothesmen and reporters searched the table, desk and floor in which Vronski had hidden. Newton, donning his hat, and taking up his stick, nonchalantly stepped to the door.

Peaches Watched

"Must see about bail for Scorpio," he remarked as he passed.

Peaches, in the restaurant below, watched with alarm. She had been told Johnny was dead, and her face was tear-streaked. The gangsters followed behind, as the officers and prisoners passed.

"Buck up, Slaughterhouse! We'll be waiting for you, big boy," were the words she heard as Scorpio was led out.

She clutched at her throat, then her mind began to work with lightning speed.

She knew now—Scorpio was to be the big boss from now on!

A calculating look replaced the counterfeit of grief that had suffused her hard but handsome countenance. For Peaches knew on which side her bread was buttered.

The patrol wagon pulled away, and, from the back, Scorpio looked out at the crowd, grinned, and waved his hand.

Peaches emerged from the restaurant door, and the last thing he saw was the woman, looking after him, on her face a faint smile.

He grinned as he slumped in his seat.

Short Trial

Hank, leaving the office, passed by the cashier's counter. He paused as he noticed Anne, sitting at her accustomed place.

The girl was calmly eating an apple, as the crowd milled about.

"You don't seem broken up about Johnny being bumped," he commented. The girl looked at him with a bitter smile.

"A while back," she recalled bitterly—almost as though she were talking to herself—"he offered me a job—a nice, respectable job."

"I got you, kid," he replied.

He glanced at the gangsters about the room, then turned back to the girl.

"You haven't got another apple, have you?" he inquired.

The trial of Vronski and Scorpio was a short and decisive one.

Newton cleverly guided the cross-examination of the man. Vronski did not take the stand.

In the jury room the jurors talked about the gangsters.

FROM THE BOTTOM TO THE TOP OF THE POSTAL RANKS

INSPECTOR COLAIN COL. CHARLES R. GOW POSTMASTER HURLEY INSPECTOR BUCKLEY HERBERT N. HANSON

The first "career" man to head the Boston postoffice, William E. Hurley, was sworn into office today. Hurley, who started work as substitute carrier, was surrounded by flowers from admirers as he took the oath from Postal Inspector Park D. Colvin. Col. Charles R. Gow, whom Hurley succeeds; Inspector Buckley and Asst. Supt. of Mails Hanson were present.

DEVINE HEADS 14 IN PROTEST OVER MEALS

Refuse Breakfast, but Hunger Wins at Dinner Time at East Boston

A short-lived hunger strike led by Patrick Devine, Lawrence strike leader, drew 14 other aliens into it today at the East Boston immigration station.

William T. Murdock took part, but Miss Edith Berkman failed to hear of the plan in the women's quarters. Both were arrested with Devine in Lawrence last Friday.

According to Mrs. Anna C. M. Tomhasi, commissioner of immigration, Devine declared the breakfast was "unfit" and delivered a speech in the men's detention pen that resulted in half the aliens at the station refusing the food.

Hunger killed the hunger strike at noon, however, for Devine and his followers ate heartily of the fare, Mrs. Tillinghast said.

18 'ERRORS' IN CONVICTION ARE CITED

Slayer is Doomed to Die In the Chair if Battle for His Life Fails

The last fight to save Samuel Gallo of the North End from the electric chair for the murder of Joseph Fantasia began today before the full bench of the Supreme Court.

Defense counsel called in Prof. John Burns, expert in criminal law at the Harvard law school, to aid in the case which established a precedent in Massachusetts jurisprudence.

Eighteen alleged errors are specified in the appeal for a new trial for Gallo, the principal ones relating to joint trial of Gallo and Gangi Cero and reading to the jury testimony given at a previous trial by Philomena Romano.

SAVED ON BRINK

Cero was first found guilty of this crime. Two hours before the time set for his execution he accused Gallo and was saved. Then Gallo was convicted. Both men were given a new joint trial and Cero was freed while Gallo was convicted.

The defense claims it was a glaring error to try together two men indicted separately, under circumstances where establishing the innocence of one would virtually establish the guilt of the other.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick M. J. Sheehan argued today that because Miss Romano was missing, it was necessary to read to the jury her evidence given at a previous trial, in order to prevent a miscarriage of justice.

CITES GUILTY ACTS

"However valuable to the accused, the general rules of law must occasionally give way to public policy," he said. "The law in its wisdom declares the rights of the public shall not be wholly sacrificed.

"It had been the purpose and aim of Gallo to keep Cero silent and to that end he made it appear to Cero that he was trying to help him escape the consequence of his conviction.

"Gallo hired an attorney for Cero and tried to bribe a witness. His whole conduct was admissible as showing consciousness of guilt."

THREE HELD IN THEFT PLOT

William Cornet, 19, of Walnut st., Cambridge; John J. Gannon, 20, of Gloucester st., Back Bay, and John P. Gallagher, 23, of Hillside st., Roxbury, were held in bail of $5000, $2000 and $1000 respectively today in Waltham court charged with conspiracy to rob a Watertown market.

Cornet and Gallagher were arrested Saturday night and Gannon today.

A warrant charging him with the robbery of Salvatore De Vito, a Waltham taxi driver, awaited Cornet if he procured bail. He was identified by De Vito as one of three who forced him to drive to Auburndale last week, where $170 and his cab were taken from him. The three will be given a hearing Saturday.

PENN. OWNS NO B. & A. STOCK

The Pennsylvania Railroad owns no stock in the Boston & Albany, the legislative committee on transportation was told today by George H. Fernald, counsel for the latter system, at a hearing to determine the extent of foreign control in Massachusetts railroads.

The John Hancock Insurance Co., Henry Greaves, Kidder, Peabody & Co. and the president and fellows of Harvard College were revealed as the principle stockholders in the Boston Albany, owning 6000, 4300, 2886 and 1308 shares respectively.

Fernald said the New Haven and the New York Central systems jointly owned 31 per cent of stock in the Rutland road, but said no other road, to his knowledge, had and substantial interest in it.

Arthur P. Russell, vice-president of the New Haven, testified the Pennsylvania interests hold 200,000 shares of New Haven.

HER CAR'S ALL PROPERLY STUCK UP

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

What is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip.

If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or the most unusual event news tip received; $10 for the next best; $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips.

Love Verses of Girl at Wellesley to Be Printed Now

The muse and the seer and the rough racketeer and the others of poetry's ken—in the prettiest style and the virilous style and the rest of the styles of the pen—from a cover will peep for posterity's keep and the lovers of verses to come—for the Wellesley maids and their acolades are going in print, by gum.

And that's a fact, because Henry Harrison of 27 East Seventh st., New York city, intends to publish the Wellesley College Anthology of Wellesley College girls' poems you thought you'd tear up.

Love ditties or those of the most red-blooded kind—it doesn't make any difference, and now the students instead of tearing up their effusions are writing feverishly and mailing them to Harrison.

DANIEL M. O'CONNELL MILDRED PURCELL

THAT FIVE-DAY MASSACHUSETTS marriage intentions law just kicked everything to pieces for two elopers from Newark, N. J. Then there were police and an uncle who did a lot to stop Cupid's onrush. Mildred Purcell, 17, a school girl, and Michael R. Manfro, same city, came to Boston a-la-elopement. The five-day law confronted them. That was all right. They made their intentions official and decided to wait. They started back to Newark yesterday. There may be a wedding soon in Newark. (Staff photo.)

LAUDS WORK OF BAY STATE COMMITTEE

Head of Hoover Relief Board Is Heard at Meeting of Republican Club

Women, as rulers of the home, may solve the unemployment problem, Col. Arthur N. Woods, chairman of President Hoover's committee on unemployment and relief, told the Women's Republican Club at the Copley Plaza today.

At the same time he highly praised the work of the Massachusetts committee on unemployment of which James J. Phelan is chairman.

Before a conference with William Phillips, representative of his committee, and a visit to Harvard as a member of the college overseers, Col. Woods was given a luncheon at the hotel by the women's club.

"Not only are women rulers of more than 30,000,000 homes in this country, but they are also the greatest retail buying force we have," he said.

"Not what is done in one home, but what is done in 30,000,000 homes will win the day"

TELLS OF WOMEN'S WORK.

He told of women's work throughout the country in providing and sponsoring jobs for the unemployed.

"In Washington," he said, "the women's division of our committee has been serving as a clearing house for information on employment and relief methods.

"In all this it has had the utmost co-operation from great national woman's organizations.

"It has been able to pass along hat has been found workable by the women of one community for the benefit of others.

"They have set in motion all manner of job campaigns."

He told of "block mother" plans in Idaho, whereby one woman takes charge of a city block to handle relief for unemployed.

BAY STATE WORK BEST

Campaigns for repairs on school buildings started by women in Vermont and the sewing-mending eyeems toward garden work in other States to provide work.

"In Boston a singularly intelligent and effective piece of organization work in this employment emergency has been carried out by the women," he said.

"I refer to the Massachusetts Welfare Corps.'s splendid handling of the distribution of blankets and clothes among the needy.

"From reports I have received from New England the effectiveness of the Massachusetts committee headed by James J. Phelan has been very marked, and the New England council has shown itself to be the most effective organization of its kind in the country. It is unhampered by political lines and has tackled the situation on a permanent relief basis."

Joseph Demingo was a bit out of his class with the wife, even if she didn't have as added equipment an open razor and a heavy candlestick, so Joseph, according to his own testimony, flitted down the stairs and through a window, glass, sash and all- to blessed safety.

Demingo told his story today in Norfolk Probate Court where, a 120-pounder, he was awarded an uncontested divorce from Mrs. Evelyn Demingo, also of Dedham, who scales 160, according to the husband.

He charged cruel and abusive treatment and a tendency toward social errors on the part of Mrs. Demingo. He headed a parade of nine successful divorce applicans before Judge McCoole

WOMEN WIN DECREES

Another divorce granted was to Mrs. Elizabeth G. Noyes of Wellesley, from Richard V. Noyes whose address is unknown. She charged intoxication and unfaithfulness with an unidentified girl in Canada on July 15, 1926. They were married at Rockville, Ct., Dec. 17, 1927, and parted last May.

Other decrees granted were to the following: B

Mrs. Helena M. Munroe of 600 South Main st., Randolph, from Henry J. Munroe of Canada, both formerly of Holbrook rd., Quincy; charged desertion on July 27, 1926.

MARRIED 10 YEARS

Arthur G. Gendron, employe at Medfield State Hospital, from Mrs. Florence Gendron, on desertion and unfaithfulness grounds. She left him July 9, 1918, after 10 years of married life.

Mrs. Ethel M. Curtis of Wellesley, from Bertram S. Curtis, address unknown; charged desertion April 1, 1920, after six years of marriage.

Mrs. Minnie S. West of Quincy, from John G. West of Lynn, charging cruel and abusive treatment. She was granted $5 a week for support of a daughter. They were married Oct. 22 1927.

MODERN YOUTH FINDS REARING PARENTS PROPERLY A JOB

PASTOR GIVES PA AND MA POINTERS

Children Should Profit by Their Mistakes, and Dad Might Improve His Alibi

Youth's most difficult problem is the bringing up of his parents.

There ought to be a manual of instruction for the care and training of parents.

Parents are more likely to get on the wrong track than are their children.

Both parents and their children heard these and other pointed assertions by the Rev. Richard K. Morton at a Parents' and Guests' service in Central Congregational Church, Jamaica Plain.

"It is a hazardous, anxious job today to have to bring up a family of children, and it is no less a task for the children to bring up their parents the right way in the home," the Rev. Mr. Morton declared.

APRON STRINGS NOT BAD

"Parents need training and the critical oversight of their children. Parents need to be brought up on words of genuine love and reapect—even if they are not very deserving of it at times. Children should not follow their example, but profit by their experience.

"Some parents have much more love than sense and ability, but that love is precious. No child needs fear being tied to apron strings—there are many worse kinds, and there will come a time when that child will wish more than anything in the world to feel them around him.

"There ought to be a manual of instruction for the care and training of parents. Some rules which should be included are as follows:

"Let boys be boys—run a home, not a reformatory, or a finishing school.

GOOD ALIBI NEEDED

"Be frank and sincere. If father must come in at 3 a.m. he should at least improve the quality of his alibis and be able to climb the stairs soundly.

"If another must buy expensive things on the side and take in unconventional social affairs as a stimulant, let her realize she is heading her home either for the rocks or for the sheriff.

"Avoid all unnecessary and rigid spotlessness. Why shouldn't father pile newspapers on the floor, put his ancient pipe on the mantelpiece, and sit down in the most comfortable chair of an evening, in his shirtsleeves and with his slippers on? Nobody wants to live in a museum or a show-window.

"Have an extra living room or bedroom. People must move around. Dilapidated, yet ragged if people live always too close together. If we are too cramped, we get crabby.

"Have some scratched and even threadbare furniture around—don't make everyone scared to move around and the perfection for fear of breaking or scratching something.

"Remember that a child's mother often is the measure of his ideals and his father the first source of his attempt to picture what God is like."

THEIR CLAIMS AFFIRMED

STARTLING STARS!

25 pairs of seats to "Nina Rosa" and "Up Pops The Devil" in prizes

Can You Make One?

Every week day the Evening American will publish one drawing under the heading STARTLING STARS. You are invited to mark up the drawing in any way you see fit—take lines out, leave them in or add to them — and send it, with your name and full address to STARTLING STARS Editor, Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

For the funniest faces received each week day four pairs of seats to rollicking comedy hit "The Man in Possession, featuring Leslie Banks, a funny man at the Plymouth Theater, will be awarded. One extra pair will be awarded on Saturdays, making a total of 25 pairs of seats for the week.

ALL STARTLING STARS must be received in the office of the American not later than 6 p. m., three days following publication of that drawing. The prize winners will be announced in the American one week after each drawing is published. The drawings that win three of the prizes will be published at the same time.

You don't have to use the drawing on this page unless you wish. It may be copied or traced on another sheet of paper. The American may be examined at any of its agencies or at public libraries free of charge.

Anyone, anywhere, may compete, except American employes and their families. The editors of the American will be the judges, and their decision will be final.

We cannot undertake to return any entries or enter into correspondence concerning the contest.

You pay nothing to enter this contest. Neat ness will count. In case of ties a duplicate award will be given each tying contestant.

ANOTHER COMEDY show star. See what you can do with this drawing with a pen or pencil, making it look as funny as you can. Then mail it as directed in the rules. You must put the number of the drawing on the OUTSIDE of your envelope.

SPOTTY VOTING AS 76 TOWNS GO TO POLLS

Heavy Vote Cast in Braintree and Dedham; a Light Ballot in Hull

Spotty balloting was reported from 76 towns holding annual elections today, the heavier voting occurring in communities where fights were being waged for the offices.

Braintree, with a registration of 7300 voters, was one of the "heavy" towns, 3600, or nearly 50 per cent of the voters, having cast their ballots up to 1 p. m.

In this town practically every office was being stubbornly contested for, with two or more persons out for each berth.

Another lively votewas being cast in Dedham's four precincts, due to six contests being waged. One was for school committees, with Miss Margaret E. Sullivan, present incumbent, running for re-election, and opposed by John W. Withington, chairman of the town Republican committee, and candidate for state treasurer last fall, and by Francis W. Walley.

MAY OUT FOR TREASURER.

The chief contest in Dedham, however, was for town treasurer, which berth is sought by six men. The present incumbent is Miss Veronica Murray, only woman town treasurer in the State, who declined to run for a seventh term because she is soon to be married.

In Hull, with 1400 registered voters, there was only light balloting, 300 votes having been cast up to 1 p. m. There was only one fight in this town, Dr. Michael W. Regan opposing Peter J. McCormick for re-election to the school committee.

In Watertown great interest was being registered in the outcome of the school committee fight. The three candidates are outspoken in favor of longer school hours, which resulted in the high school strike last fall. They are Fred E. Crawford, Mrs. Grace Travers Jones and Homer C. Peyser. They are opposed by Miss Mary C. Corcoran, candidate for re-election; Francis J. Kelly and Francis P. Carroll.

FIGHTS IN ARLINGTON

In Winchester contests for selectmen, assessor, library trustee, tax collector and public welfare board were to be settled. The only contest in Wakefield is for selectmen, and as a result a light vote is expected. In contrast a heavy vote in Arlington is anticipated, with bitter battles in more than six contests.

In many towns there are a large number of candidates for the various offices than ever before.

FINGERPRINTS IDENTIFY GIRL

Through fingerprints, the girl amnesia victim at Boston City Hospital was positively identified today as Louella Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cook of Riverside, R. I.

The fingerprints were taken in 1928 three years ago and when compared with new ones taken at the hospital today, they proved identical.

Despite the identification, Joseph Gebhardt of the South End visited police headquarters today and claims that the girl is his daughter, Emily, who has been missing for 10 years.

Since her arrival in City Hospital Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cook had maintained that she was their daughter.

There was slight improvement in her condition today and doctors are hopeful for early recovery.

According to Providence police the fingerprints taken Dec. 4, 1928, were in connection with a larceny case.

Howe, Harvard '69, Dies in Brookline

GRAND JURY IN VICE PROBE

Probe of Boston's vice ring was due to go before the Suffolk County Grand Jury today with presentation of much evidence gathered in the past ten days.

Meanwhile today, Leo F. Schwartz, legal adviser of Police Commissioner Hultman, filed a bill in equity in Superior Court, asking that the Pekin Restaurant, 680-684 Washington st., be restrained from maintaining alleged vice and liquor nuisances.

This action is similar to that taken 10 days ago by the police against the Palais D'Or and Empire Restaurant in the Back Bay.

In the new bill, Atty Schwartz alleges the Pekin countenances and encourages evil practices, the keeping and exposing of intoxicating liquor and the sale of liquor. The bill is returnable March 18.

Peter Chin and Chin Pook are cited as proprietors of the Pekin, with the building owners named as Hiram Burton, Frank H. Schirmer and Elmer A. Townsend, trustees for the estate of Robert B. Brigham.

The police commissioner's legal adviser refused to comment on his bill against the Pekin, other than to say Capt. Jeremiah Gallivan of Lagrange st. station co-operated in obtaining evidence.

Shopping with Priscilla Price

Dearest Anne:

There's so much to see and talk about this week, I guess you'll have to plan to spend several days with me. And if you'd care to bring little Jane along, I'd be quite delighted. So many places to show you—so many places to take you! I can scarcely wait until your train comes puffing in. It seems to me Boston is fairly brimming over with values most unusual at the opening of the Spring season. For once, we can shop while the sun shines on the budgets of ours

Frocks—at Hoffman's

First of all let me tell you about the fascinating frocks I saw at Hoffman's! It's one of those small select shops which buys each dress carefully and individually, and enables the business girl to wear clothing more truly distinctive than many of her wealthier sisters generally find. And the nicest part is, I discovered this shop just as they were about to reduce frocks to $6.60 and $8.80! They were formerly $10.75! I lost my heart to the darling printed chiffon Sunday night frock I sketched. There's a great waiting for you. Fashionable prints, plaids and crepes in the very newest styles. Jaunty jacket frocks—perky knitted suits—woolen sport things. Probably the smartest line and finest material at these prices in the city. Hoffman's is at 24 Chauncy St.

It Doesn't Seem

possible that Scott Furriers, New England's Largest Fur Establishment, 69 Summer St., can give us better values than they have already shown, in their famous South Unique "Fur Cost Party." But such is the case — Model fur coats from their style shows, and ample coats and floor models are marked at $125—$25—$35—$45—$55—$65 and up. Some slightly used but thoroughly renovated. Group of high-priced dresses marked way below cost at $5! Their Scott Fur Parade is on—You may now get a beautiful scarf for $27! You don't have to pay cash at their "party." Pay a small payment when purchasing your apparel, thereby becoming a member of the Scott Unique Fur Club, the only one in New England — the balance weekly or monthly. Scott Furriers Stores —69 Summer St., Boston; 369 Westminster St., Providence; 40 Pratt St., Hartford. Open evenings until nine.

"Now, Priscilla

tell me where I can find the newest books in Adventure—Romance and Mystery?" So I looked around for this sweet miss, and found that Gilchrist's Lending Library have all the new books in, and it's in such a convenient location just a step off the street on the main floor! I found "Today's Virtue," Faith Baldwin's latest book; "Mrs. Fischer's War" by Henrietta Leslie; "Reader, I Married Him" by Anne Green and "Dark Heritage" by Sherland Qunn. Just a few of the hundreds of new books in their library. In their new large quarters they also have books for sale. All kinds of books—for grown-ups and youngsters. Go in and look them over some day soon. Gilchrist's Lending Library, main floor.

Slender Ankles!

Legs with ankles like the appearance and temper. The new tissue rubber reducing stockings created by French stylists will reduce swollen ankles and legs! It's sold exclusively by the Allen-Payson Co. Featuring the wrinkle proof and made specially to effect an immediate reduction in the contour of legs and ankles. They are imported from Paris and to introduce them they will be sold at a remarkably low price. Full length weights in elastic stockings from the sheerest to the heaviest—with knee-length heels and soft tops to extend over the knee and fasten to the garter. Free repairs and adjustment service. No obligation to try them on. The Allen-Payson Co., Dr. Saul, Chiropodist, proprietor, 310 Tremont St., Suite 306. Lib. 6649.

Well, Anne, the lamp you select should be the height of good taste or it might mar an otherwise perfect room. You'll find lamps that add a note of simplicity and dignity as well as charm to the modern home at Filene's Gift Shop. Please do see them if there's a corner in your home that needs the radiance of a lamp! You'll probably think you're dreaming when you see them marked at $3.95. They're the best lamp value I've seen in a long time. There are three sizes, table, bridge and floor lamps. The light is softly diffused through translucent parchment shades that are trimmed with real mica. The base is antique brass finish with highlights of polished brass. They have that very convenient adjustable cluster that enables you to raise or lower them to suit your needs. Truly, you'll love these lamps—they will harmonize beautifully with most any kind of furnishings. The fascinating parchment shades will match the most elusive color schemes. Blend with Early Colonial, French Provincial or Eighteenth Century English furniture. Their transparency lends a subdued glow that is not equalled by any other shade. Your lamps can enhance or destroy the decorative scheme of the whole home, but the restful glow which is yours to attain can be made complete by these homey, restful lamps. Drop in very soon, Anne, for they won't last long at $3.95. You'll find them on the balcony in Filene's Gift Shop, Hancock street entrance with the gay and youthful models in dashing Prints, Stripes, Plaids and Crepes at the Peter L. Flynn Co.! They're ready for spring with the newest fashions and greatest values in years! The adorable jacket frock sketched for you is typical of hundreds of others—in a group marked at $10.75! Notice the short bolero jacket—the charming plaid blouse—and the fascinating lines of this dress. Chic, oh, so very chic—And so is every one! Crepe frocks with lingerie touches, jacket dresses, suits with quaint gumpsuits, vests, jabots, exquisite collars and deep flaring cuffs. There are a number of things to be said about them—they are flattering—very serviceable—and decidedly important fashion! Jaunty jackets nipped in the waist—Sleeves to the elbow or loose above the wrist—Rolling revers and floppy ones. Smart misses, "young marrieds," college girls and business women will find these fascinating frocks at this price a boon to their budget problems. You know Peter Flynn frocks are fashion clothes—And those in this group are so beautifully tailored—best quality materials and the newest becoming lines ever designed for the young woman. That's when Jean found that perfectly adorable dress she's wearing—$10.75 are going to please you! The Peter L. Flynn Co. is at 164 Tremont St.

I'm Delighted—Perfectly Delighted

Phelps Corset Facts

Just as you cannot "judge a book by its cover," you cannot tell what a corset will do for you unless you try it on. W. H. Phelps & Co. want you to know how their marvelous reducing garment will mould your hips and diaphragm; give support to straighten back and actually reduce your surplus pounds and inches—without any effort. They do NOT show it unless you are willing to try it on . . . of course, without any obligation to you.

The PHELPS corset is "different" . . . made of a specially loomed fabric . . . not rubber. It is made to fit your figure; repairs and refitting free as you grow smaller. # TODAY'S TRUE STORY

THE STRAIGHT ROAD

He Shunned Wrong Way

THE NIGHT CLUB was noisy, dim and smoke-filled. Allison, sitting at a table by himself, had discouraged the offers of company made by mechanically smiling hostesses. He wanted to be alone. Covertly he was watching a girl at another table.

The man with her had become hopelessly drunk, and when his head finally fell on the table in front of him the girl vainly shook him and then looked around the room as though seeking a familiar face. But only grinning waiters seemed aware of her mute call for aid. Allison got up.

"He'll be all right," he said when he reached the girl's side. "Here, let me take him."

Allison slipped his arms around the drunken man and dragged him to his feet. In jumbled sentences the girl was explaining.

"My brother—he's never gotten like this before. Do you think there could have been anything in the wine he drank? He has some very valuable—very important—things with him. If you can just help me get him to a taxicab."

"Don't worry," said Allison. He looked her in the eyes. This evening he had been admiring her before. He was conscious of a tingling in his blood, but stood so close to her, almost touching her.

"You get his hat and coat and wait for me downstairs," he said. The girl left as he led her pill on the table with a nod to the waiter. Then, firmly grasping his unconscious burden, he began to "walk" the other man from the room.

From the corner of his eye he saw three men get up and follow him.

The girl was waiting downstairs.

"Quick," said Allison. "Don't bother about his hat and coat. Just carry them and call a taxi."

They were through the door. A cab drew up.

"No," said Allison. "Take the next one." He beckoned to another driver. The driver whose cab had been refused said something in a low, menacing voice.

It was the work of a minute to get the unconscious man into the other cab. Then Allison handed in the girl and got in himself. He looked inquiringly at the girl. She gave the driver the address. As the cab pulled away Allison glanced back.

He saw three men getting into the cab he had refused. It followed them.

Allison rapped on the window behind the driver.

"Twenty dollars if you shake that cab behind us," he said. The driver looked. "It's a bet," he said as he held the wheel.

Lights, traffic, pedestrians—nothing stopped them. Once in a while a car, visibly skidding, let double the speed limit they used to the other cab. Again and again Allison rapped on the window.

"All right. You win," he said. "Twenty minutes later the cab drew up in front of the address the girl had given. During the ride she hadn't spoken a word to Allison. They had been going too fast and dangerously.

Now, as he paid the driver and helped her brother from the cab, she turned to him. "I don't know how to thank you," she said.

"I can take care of him now. And if you will please tell me where to send the money you've spent my brother will—"

"My name's Allison," he interrupted. "Robert Allison. And please don't speak of repayment."

"I'm Eleanor Downing," she said. Suddenly she seemed near to crying. "Oh, I hope father isn't up. I don't want him to see Jim like this."

"Please," he said, "don't think I'm trying to capitalize a slight service, considering that any man would have done. But I'd like—I'd like very much to see you again. May I?"

For the first time she smiled, a faint smile.

"I—I don't know," she said.

"But you can call me some evening and ask." She held out her hand in parting.

Allison took it. "I wish I were as sure of everything in life as I am that I'll call you tomorrow," he said.

Half an hour later he reached his own apartment. Three men were waiting for him at the entrance.

"What the hell's the idea of you—" began one. But Allison cut him short.

"I changed my mind," he said. "And you haven't got any business coming. I was the one who saved the kid flashing the bonds and had his wine doped. When he passed out I decided to help him instead of waylaying him on the way home as we planned."

"I'll bet it was that skirt who—" began the other.

Allison struck. The man went down. Another faced the two others. The man he had hit slowly got to his feet, nursing his jaw.

"Listen," said Allison, "and get this straight. I made a mistake in teaming up with you birds for a crooked job, but I'm not going to make another I'm through, do you understand? Through. And if I ever see one of you again I'll get the same thing Lefty got—only worse. Now beat it."

The three left without a word. Allison watched them go down the street.

"Some day," he said to himself, "some day I'll tell her that she not only saved her brother's bonds, but also saved me from becoming a crook. Some day—when I have the right to tell her."

New Bride Says She's Unhappy

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a bride of three months and I am so unhappy. I have no one to turn to, as my mother and father died when I was really young so I'm asking your advice, and please send me the best you have, as I certainly need it and will be thankful for it. I married a man about 40. It was his first marriage; my second. I have a boy ten years old who lives with us. My husband's mother does not like my child and is always picking on him which hurts me very much, and she doesn't like me, always picking a fight over something. She is unreasonable in so many ways, and my husband still thinks I should be happy here and I can't be. I'm almost tempted to run away from it all. What shall I do? HEARTBROKEN WIFE.

Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Wife: There is an old proverb—I believe it's oriental—about two women under one roof making the walls edumble. It's not always true, but it seems to be so in your case. If you can have an understanding with your mother-in-law that she is not to interfere with you and your child's affairs, you may be able to reach a solution of your difficulties, but it is doubtful.

Seems to Have Changed

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a girl for about a year and have been getting along fine. But suddenly something seemed to come over her. She acts very cold toward me now—as though I am a stranger. She says that she still cares as much for me; but if she does, why does she act this way? She doesn't let me come to see her as often as she did, but I know she doesn't go out with anyone else. "DOUBTFUL."

Dear Doubtful—Sometimes domestic responsibilities — having to help out with the pay envelope—will change a girl's attitude suddenly. She feels that her assistance is needed at home and, as her hopes of marrying are deferred, she has an attack of conscience, feeling that she must not be too encouraging to the young man who has won her affection.

What's New in Coming Fashions

By AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, March 2—Anybody who wears a Spring suit this year can have a lot of fun choosing blouses to go with it.

First there's the matter of making up color combinations—something much-in-fashion right now.

Then there's the idea of entirely changing the looks of the suit—and the looks of yourself—by the type of blouse you wear.

There are certain things you'll notice on this year's blouses to mark them 1931. Many have the surplice line. That is, they go on like a jacket and tie or snap over to one side—usually the left.

Incidentally, you're going to see a great deal of this surplice or diagonal closing this Spring in dresses, coats and suits as well as blouses.

Another is that lots are in double-breasted effect — extending below the waistline and fastening with four buttons, two on each side of the center.

Higher Necklines

Still another 1931 mark is the tendency to higher necklines. Some of them really are high—such as the blouse sketched at the left above. Others aren't high, but merely higher than they have been. Nearer the collarbone.

Fine handwork—or trimming that looks like handwork—is something you'll do watch for if you want to be in fashion. Fagoting, edge treatments like scalloping or saw-tooth or lace, hand-rolled hems.

Shorter sleeves are appearing in blouses, just as they are in dresses, three-quarter sleeves just-above-the-elbow sleeves and even shorter ones, such as in the blouse sketched at the right.

New Colors

The white blouse is still fashionable, of course—and it's one of the smartest combinations you can make with a navy or black suit.

But pastels make the newer color combinations. Soft colors like slate blue worn with a gray tweed suit, flesh pink with a suit of bittersweet, golden beige with a brown suit.

For Collarless Suits

If your new suit has the new three-quarter sleeves, a good blouse to ensemble with it is one whose sleeves are wrist-length and full above a close-fitting cuff. If your new suit is collarless, a blouse with a scarf that ties at the side with ends hanging outside the suit neckline is smart. So is one with a high collar like the one sketched, or one with a frilly feminine jabot.

Overblouse or tuck-ins—both are in fashion. Newest overblouses are the very short ones—just about the length of the surplice blouse shown in the center. And when they're longer, they're meant not to be belted or tied or fitted in some way to indicate the waistline and make a peplum-effect below.

Centuries for Man to Learn the Right

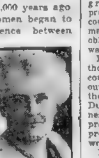
By WINIFRED BLACK.

IT WAS just 500,000 years ago when men and women began to know the difference between right and wrong.

So says Prof. Breasted of the Rockefeller Foundation.

Prof. Breasted is trying to find out where we all came from and why and where we are going and how.

He and his fellow workers have found strangely modern kinds of work under 60 feet of gravel in the ancient bed of the old Nile.



Winfred Black

These tools were made over 500,000 years ago! Dear me! how long it is taking us to grow up.

Five hundred thousand years ago grandpa and grandma began to realize that it was not quite nice to knock a man over the head with a club and take his dinner away from him just because you were strong enough to do it. And 500,000 years ago it began to dawn upon grandma that you really ought not to run away with another caveman and leave your children alone in the old cave just because the caveman had a broader chest and a better set of teeth than the one you knew first.

Mostly, then, cruelty—it took us a long, long time to figure out that these things really should not be done in the best society.

Every once in a while we forget about it even now—don't we?

I know a man who says society is really to blame for anything.

"Every man does the best he can," says this man who takes such a liberal view of things.

"That girl who shot her mother the other night and then went to a party and had a grand time, do you think we had any right to hate her or to despise her for what she did?"

"I don't.

"We are almost as bad as she is when we hold a grudge against her for what she did.

"She can't help it—she was just built that way, that's all.

"Something went wrong in her makeup and always has been wrong.

"Very likely it always will be wrong, but who are we to sit in judgment and condemn her for what she cannot help?"

"Um—hmh," said the woman who has her own ideas about things. "Well, don't you sit in judgment on me because I can't bear the thought of a girl like that.

"Maybe I ought to bear it; maybe I ought to be sorry for her and try to help her. But I keep thinking of her mother and I am so sorry for the mother that I can't be sorry for the cruel, ungrateful girl.

"I guess there is something defiant about her, as though she had been and always will be.

"Am I to blame for that, I ask you? How can I help it?"

I wonder about that, don't you? If we do not like people for what they do or do not do—what reason shall we have for liking them?

Tiger Heart

By ROBERT T. SHANNON

THE FOUR of them were together, held, mechanically, in a group; instinct, however, prompted them to divide into couples, yet, even in this small matter, there was the social obligation to pretend the urge was necessary.

How much easier, Connie thought, it would have been if she could have told Kitty and Jim outright to go off somewhere by themselves and leave her with Duke Garson. But such frankness lacked too much courtesy; presently, a decent excuse would present itself; if not, the evening would be artificially lost. . . .

It developed, however, that the evening was not entirely lost. Jim Tracy saw to that. His suggestion was that they all drive in to the movies at Stamford. With Kitty, he suggested, he would drive his own car, and Connie and Garson could follow in Connie's roadster.

"Oh, let's go!" exclaimed Kitty, with the happy acquiescence of her fiance.

In almost no time Duke and Connie were alone, with the tail light of Tracy's car vanishing down the drive.

"I don't feel at all like the movies, but it looks as though I'd follow them," Connie said. "Come around to the garage with me and we'll bring the car out."

Walking beside her on the gravel, Garson held her arm above the elbow with his hand; an intimacy of pressure, their inequality of steps, brought them close together; a surge of comfort, of pleasure, invaded Connie. No other man had made her feel that way; why had she stopped caring for Jim Tracy—or had she ever cared?

She wanted to understand this sharp gladness in the presence of Duke Garson, yet, there was no answer to her inner query. Her mental searching ended in futility, and she was content to put aside all self-questioning and absorb the sheer joy of the present.

With Garson at the wheel of the roadster they drove slowly toward town.

"Do you drive?" she asked him, suddenly

Proper Way to Use Silver on Tea Wagon

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

1—Should a tea cloth and the silver tray belonging to a tea service be used on a tea-wagon? I have seen them in the shops and sometimes there is no tea cloth on them, just the tea things on the glass tray that belongs to it.

2—Could after-dinner coffee be served from this wagon, or would a low coffee table be better? I have been thinking of buying one. M. D.

1—If you are using a tea-wagon on which to serve your tea, I suggest that you cover the top with a tea cloth, as you would any other kind of tea-table. And also use your silver tray on which to serve the tea. So often in the shops there is no attempt to show all these for the tea-serving itself. The point is only to show one or two accessories offered by the store.

2—You will have such a happy time serving your after-dinner coffee from a low coffee table that I urge you to buy one, if you are contemplating buying something for this service.

Don't Ask for His Fraternity Pin or Ring

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it considered proper for a girl to ask a boy for his ring or fraternity pin when it is not to be taken in the old sense. That is, not to be considered as an engagement? Especially when he shows and explains every detail of it as if he would like to ask the girl to wear it, but hasn't the nerve. M. G.

From time immemorial women have attributed man's not-wishing to his "lack of nerve," but, lady, it isn't so. If a boy wishes to give this girl his ring or his fraternity pin, he will find a way to do it, be sure of that, no matter how "shy" he is, no matter how little "nerve" he has. This is one of the things that a wise woman learns very early in life, and the wiser she is, the younger she learns it.—And I do no mean this "wise" in an unattractive sense, I mean that she has a clear vision on this sort of thing. This girl will be foolish indeed if she asks this boy for his ring or fraternity pin.

Sties Mean Health Is Run Down

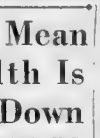
By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

STIES ARE common nuisances and easily recognized. They are rather unpleasant to look at, and you are told by every one you meet, "I know what you have—you have a stie." Next time this happens to you reply, "No, I have a chalazion." This is the medical term for a stie.



Dr. Copeland

A stie is a localized inflammation of one of the glands in the margin of the lid and of the tissues surrounding it. It is usually characterized by swelling of the lid. Sometimes the swelling is so marked as to close the lids over the eye. At first the redness and swelling are so general as to be misleading. Soon a tender pocket appears near the margin of the lid. Later this comes to a head, and from this point pus may be extracted.

The condition usually runs its course in three to four days. Unfortunately, if you have one sty, there are likely to be others, a "crop" of them.

The eye should be bathed with boric acid. Continuous application of heat helps shorten the duration of this condition. It greatly reduces the swelling and pain.

In severe cases, where this simple treatment is not successful, it is necessary to open the infected area. Following the incision, with liberation of pus, prompt relief is afforded.

In addition, individuals who are susceptible to these infections, it is advisable to use a salve of yellow oxide of mercury. A bit of it is applied to the lids before retiring. Thorough bathing of the eyes and lids with warm boric acid solution in the morning will help to keep the parts clean and less likely to become infected again.

It should be remembered that sties usually indicate poor health Often this is the result of faulty diet, lack of fresh air and rest.

Quite frequently it is associated with eye defects and unnecessary eye strain. The presence of a stie is abundant reason for having the eyes examined. Nothing else should be had if the examination reveals eye strain.

In very severe cases particularly those of frequent recurrence, treatment with vaccines sometimes works very well. Consult your doctor will tell you about this.

Answers to Health Queries

R. M. D. O. Q—What can be done for pimples? I am a boy of 18 and greatly embarrassed by having these blemishes.

A—Proper diet, lots of exercise and regular elimination should be helpful in this case.

S. S. Q—Will eye strain cause a white substance to form in the corner of the eyes?

2—Will cutting the hair on the face cause it to grow in even more heavily? I do not mean shaving.

A—No, this is probably due to cold or infection. Bathe the eyes several times daily with a weak solution of boracic acid and apply 1 per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment to the lids at night.

2—Yes, cutting encourages the growth of hair.

EDNA L. Q—What causes a tight feeling in the stomach?

A—Probably due to indigestion. Correct your diet and avoid constipation.

MRS. B F. R. Q—I have a rash on my arm, shoulders and back which is slightly itchy, occurring in light pink patches. When I become tanned in the summer these patches remain light and are very noticeable. What would you advise?

A—This may be due to a form of eczema, although it would be difficult to make a definite diagnosis without seeing the eruptive condition. Why not see a skin specialist for examination and advice?

Try Honey for Face Beauty

By MISS HUDDLESTON.

HONEY FACIALS have been an accepted part of beauty culture for many long years, but because they became thrown in the shade by more modern beauty culture methods and them for some time. Several years ago we brought them forth again and today they rank high among the really beneficial facials given to women in reliable shops.

Josephine Huddleston

The honey pack we are going to discuss today is excellent for drawing impurities out of the pores, for refreshing the skin so that it sparkles with life, and, in addition to this, it will nourish loose, flabby skin and muscles so that lines are smoothed out and a general refining and lifting of the skin and muscles result. What more can you hope to find from one type of treatment?

Pure strained honey should be used and it is the same variety that is used for cooking.

The skin should be cleansed with cream and after its removal with cleansing tissues or a soft cloth hot compresses should be applied. Just wring a folded cloth out in water as hot as you can stand it. Twelve or fifteen of these hot compresses should be applied, a fresh hot one being substituted as the one in use begins to cool.

Following the hot compresses, a good nourishing cream should be massaged into the skin. It is not necessary to use the deep-kneading and pinching manner of movement for this treatment, but special attention other than gently smoothing in the cream over the skin in an upward and outward direction should be given to the area around the eyes and mouth.

For treating the mouth, place the tips of the fingers at the corners of the mouth and then work them up toward the wings of the nose by sweeping them briskly across the cheek which usually runs from the nostrils to the corners of the mouth. Sweep the fingers out and across, lifting them from the face and bring them back to the original position and work over the cheek back over the line which would be contrary to proper massage movement.

Remove some of the cream at the end of the massage but not all of it, for as little of the nourishing cream left on the skin serves as an excellent base for the honey which is applied directly after the massage.

Smooth a liberal amount of honey over the entire face and throat and then pat the skin lightly for 15 or 20 minutes. Being sticky, the honey pulls the skin up a little with each pat, giving splendid stimulation to the muscles and tissues.

Remove the honey with warm towels, gradually cooling their temperature until a really cold one is used. Finish off the treatment with the ice massage, pat the face dry and then apply a mild skin tonic.

When this series you may apply your makeup. If taken just before retiring the skin should be left free until morning.

May be taken daily for a couple of weeks, then twice each week until the skin has reached the condition you desire nothing like it!

No other cereal so crisp. Rice Krispies actually crackle out loud in milk or cream. Children love them.

And such flavor! The taste of toasted rice. A different treat for breakfast. Wonderful for the kiddies' lunch. So wholesome and easy to digest. Rice Krispies are handy to use in recipes. Take the place of nutmeats. At grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Young Blood Rules Biggest Dayton Enterprises; the Results

By B. C. FORBES

Dayton, O., March 2—The average age of the three principal executives of the two largest enterprises in this city is 43.

B. C. Forbes

Frederic B. Pa...terson, president of National Cash Register Co., when I was there on business a little over three weeks ago, is only 39. J. H. Barringer became executive manager of the business before he was 30, and is only 40. Edward E. Deschler, newly-elected president of the Delco-Light company, is only 40. Both organizations have been pushed ahead with amazing vigor.

In visiting many cities throughout this country, I have been impressed by the fact that the greatest progress since slump is shown by the cities—as well as corporations—where young blood is given scope for its initiative and driving power. Stagnant cities and business concerns more often than not are in the grip of graybeards who have ceased to look favorably upon changes and who consequently are passed in the procession by younger go-getters.

Like many other cities, Dayton used to be politics-ridden. After a strenuous fight, led by the late redoubtable John H. Patterson, housecleaning was conducted and the commission manager form of government was instituted. Since then civic affairs have been conducted more efficiently and satisfactorily. Population passed the 200,000 mark the last census and recently much additional territory was brought within the city limits.

The first thing you notice on reaching Dayton is m at elaborate overhead railroad construction actively in progress. No less than $24,000,000 is now being spent in raising tracks to do away with street crossings. The city is contributing $4,000,000, the railroads the balance of the cost.

Here is an example which many other cities could advantageously follow. Indeed, now would be an ideal time for launching such work—when superlow prices and eager to give full return for each dollar received, materials are extraordinarily cheap and labor is quieter than it is likely to become later and by.

Have you noticed how many wonderfully fine buildings are being erected throughout the country by the Bell Telephone? The Bell system spends on improvements and extensions $2,000,000 every day of the week and every week of the year. Time was when telephone buildings looked like factories. Since Walter S. Gifford, at 40, took over the helm five years ago, very different structures have been created. It is not uncommon now for the Bell Telephone building to be among the outstanding architectural features of a city.

In Dayton the Bell people have just finished an extremely attractive $2,000,000 building.

The Dayton of today is a very different city from the pre-flood Dayton of 1913. That awful catastrophe caused new life, new spirit, new aspirations into the community. No city in America ever undertook more thoroughgoing flood prevention work. Millions were spent unstintedly in rendering repetition of flood damage forever an impossibility.

Not only so, but there has since been a definite move towards the construction of better dwellings and better buildings of every other kind. The percentage of home-ownership is unusually large. Putomobile-ownership

Dayton also is proud of its magnificent new Art Institute.

I find that Dayton had its quota of stock panic victims. But here as elsewhere one discovers that the desire prevails to renew market activities when conditions permit. Most citizens of substance are convinced that prices for the best local corporations are abnormally low and that big money can be made in them.

However, Wall Street's latest outburst of enthusiasm is regarded with skepticism. It is reasoned that industry and business have not yet improved sufficiently to warrant speculative fireworks. Should the market have any substantial relapse not a few buyers would become busy.

And that perhaps is as sensible an attitude as any.

Cuban-Am. Sugar Has Plan for Bonds

In connection with the maturity on March 15, 1931, of $6,000,000 first mortgage collateral 8 per cent gold bonds of the Cuban-American Sugar Company, George E. Keiser president, has announced that a new $3,000,000 issue of first mortgages 8 per cent collateral bonds, due 1936, will be authorized and that the holders of the present bonds will be given an opportunity to exchange present bonds in part for the new bonds.

EDISON SHOWS REVENUES AT NEW PEAK

By FRANK H. MELOON.

Boston Edison shows operating revenues of $39,617,180 for 1930 the first time this figure has been reached. The increase over 1929 was $950,000. The gain was made in the face of rate reductions during the year, and bears out the forecast made in this column at the time the rate reductions were likely to result in larger consumption.

The forecast was based on the past experience of utilities with rate cutting. Edison's gross income for 1930 was $15,474,212, or $345,747 less than in the previous year. Income after all charges except dividends accrued, however, from $10,563,323 in 1929 to $10,069,203 in 1930, reflecting higher charges for interest and amount.

After deducting amount actually charged to depreciation reserves, the 1930 earnings were equal to $13.44 a share on the 534,875 shares of stock, compared with $13.35 a share on same stock in 1929 and $12.22 a share in 1928 on 533,875 shares.

All branches of the aviation industry are much more cheerful than they were only a few weeks ago. The Kinner plant is turning extra hands to complete engine orders. The output now is at the highest point of the spring demand has started earlier than usual this year, indicating immediate revival, according to President Robert Porter.

Executive shifts are being "pepped up" by the big aviation companies. President Thomas A. Morgan of Sperry Gyroscope Co. has been advanced from his post at the head of a subsidiary to presidency of North American Aviation. C. M. Keys, former president, is a recognized authority on aviation, becomes chairman of North American a board.

Study of potato crop yields shows that Maine still holds her supremacy in this field, vital, by the way, to the prosperous Bangor & Aroostook railroad, known as the "Potato Railroad." Maine's production in the past three years has been: 1928, 18,820,000 bushels; 1929, 50,120,000; 1930, 43,120,000.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Motors made the best showing in Wall St. today during most of the session, after leadership had turned from U. S. Steel. Promises of government financing was also pleasing in the constructive forces. Issue of $1,450,000,000 in marketable bonds and savings certificates announced by Secretary Mellon will provide but $200,000,000 to be used for making loans on World War adjusted service certificates. Another $200,000,000 must be borrowed before June 15 to meet anticipated Treasury deficits, it was said today.

Graphophone Gains on Merger Rumor

Columbia Graphophone's new advance was attributed to buying brought in by rumor of a merger between that corporation and Radio Corp.

General Motors Is a Strong Spot

General Motors was a strong spot most of the session, mirroring improved sales of the motors, which perform on individual merits or demerits, as the case may be.

McKeesport Passes Along Prosperity

McKeesport Tin Plate is passing along the prosperity. Directors have just declared extra dividend of 50 cents and regular quarterly dividend of $1, payable April 1 to stock of record March 12

Drop in Carriers Not Unexpected

Today's recession in the carriers, reflected in later trading throughout much of the list, was not unexpected. Earnings reports have been reasonably poor for many of the railroads, and bear-spread rumors have not helped to establish confidence in the group.

Niagara Hudson Big "Gas" Buyer

Niagara Hudson Power Corporation, in its annual report issued today, disclosed for the first time that it acquired a substantial stock interest in the Consolidated Gas Co. during 1930. The report showed that Niagara Hudson purchased 200,000 of the 201,300 shares of Consolidated Gas common during the year.

Together with United Corporation's holdings, this places the combined holdings of the two Morgan public utility holding companies in Consolidated Gas at 406,400 shares. This represents 3.5 per cent of the total amount of Consolidated Gas common outstanding

Mead Johnson Is Sold at New High

Mead Johnson today rallied more than 3 points to a new high, apparently in response to reports that last year's record income meant further extra dividends, since it has been the directors' policy to make liberal disbursements out of earnings. One 50-cent extra has been paid so far this year.

Asset Value Up, Founders Has Gain

Activity in United Founders, which rose a point on a large turnover, was attributed to an improvement in asset value since the last statement. Appreciation in investment trust portfolios during the last two months has been followed by a gradual reduction in the discounts at which management company shares were quoted.

Super Maid Corporation

Super Maid Corp for 1930 reports net loss of $234,778 after charges, against net of $1,218,194, or $8.12 a share on 150,000 no par shares in 1929. Net sales were $4,037,651, against $5,783,774.

BANK INTEREST AVERAGE RATE INCREASED

The average interest rate paid by all mutual savings banks in the United States on January 1 was 4.56 per cent. That figure compared with 4.58 a year ago, showing an increase of three one-hundredths of 1 per cent in the worst depression known to American security markets for a long period of years. This rate of return was paid on $3,465,732,492 to 12,226,345 depositors. A single quarterly payment of interest would amount to well over $100,000,000.

The following table indicates the interest rate in mutual savings banks in the Connecticut leading with the average of 4.75:

|---|---|
| California | 4.23 |
| Connecticut | 4.75 |
| Delaware | 4.00 |
| Indiana | 4.13 |
| Maine | 4.28 |
| Maryland | 4.26 |
| Massachusetts | 4.73 |
| Minnesota | 4.50 |
| New Hampshire | 4.75 |
| New Jersey | 4.23 |
| New York | 4.27 |
| Ohio | 4.08 |
| Pennsylvania | 4.62 |
| Rhode Island | 4.53 |
| Vermont | 4.75 |
| Washington | 4.75 |
| Wisconsin | 4.50 |
| United States | 4.56 |

CONTAINER A DIVIDEND OFF

Chicago, March 2—Directors of Container Corporation of America, at their meeting, declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock, payable April 1 to stockholders of record March 11. There was no action taken on the class A common dividend.

During the last quarter of 1930, Walter P. Paepcke, president, stated the company did not anticipate a profitable basis, due to unusually low volume and unsatisfactory selling prices; furthermore, with shutdown inventories to cost or market at Dec. 31 and taking such other year end adjustments as seemed advisable, a very substantial part of the profit earned in the first three quarters of the year was absorbed.

From preliminary figures of the company's auditors the net results of operations for 1930, before depreciation, interest and Federal taxes, will be approximately $1,500,000. After deducting the essential depreciation item of $826,000 and interest and Federal income taxes, the net income for the year was slightly in excess of $100,000.

Boston Clearing Figures Held Up

Boston Clearing House Association has ceased publication of bank clearings effective today. This step was taken to combat various lotteries reported based on these figures.

Eastern Steamship Lines

Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., reports for January deficit after all charges of $73,152 against deficit of $60,898 in January, 1930.

RAILROADS ARE AGAIN LOWERED IN WALL ST.

New York, March 2—Railroad shares were again lowered in Wall St. today. The weakness of the carriers was reflected throughout much of the active list.

Bulls struggled to retain control of the price movement during the morning, and managed to lift a wide assortment of issues a point or two, temporarily, including several of the motor utility, merchandising, food and miscellaneous manufacturing issues.

After midday, however, bears washed the brakes loose in the pool group.

RAILS RUN OFF

Particularly unsettling was the appearance of a private estimate that New York Central would earn little more than $1 a share, for the first quarter. This stock dropped about 5 points.

Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Texas Pacific, Northwestern Pump and American Smelting soon showed losses of 3 or more.

Shares off a point or two included U. S. Steel, Radio, Johns Manville, Pennsylvania, Mindbrd Brake, North American, American Telephone, Bethlehem Steel, Eastman, American Can and International Harvester. Most of the morning advance was cancelled. Auburn, after surging up 12 points, broke sharply.

FINANCING FAVORABLE

The outstanding news of the day was the announcement of the Treasury's March financing. While it amounts to one of the largest operations in its history, the way in the main was pleasantly surprised with the total of only about $1,400,000,000, of which less than $300,000,000 appears to be the result of passage of the bonus law. This was some $200,000,000 under last week's estimates.

Furthermore, interest rates are favorable. The 12-year bonds naturally command the highest rate, but at 3½ per cent, it is low and compares favorably with previous government financing of that sort.

Business and trade review appearing over the week-end were in the main conservative. Reports from the steel industry, in particular, stressed the irregular trends now apparent. Some producers according to one survey, are having difficulty in maintaining the rate of operations reached in the past week or so.

Furthermore, it is recalled that a year ago at this time, the steel industry, after reaching a rate of 82 per cent of capacity, went into long, drawn-out slump. Last week operations were estimated at about 82 per cent of capacity.

Estimates for the entire steel industry for the present week are not yet available, but a drop is indicated in the Youngstown area for the first time in several weeks, while operations are quickening in the Chicago area.

One automobile expects that average output for March will be between 55 and 60 per cent of capacity, or substantially ahead of February.

March motor production schedules generally call for substantial acceleration.

National Radiator Plan Is Opposed

Charles C. Hood, chairman of the protective committee representing the holders of the 6½ per cent income funding fund gold debentures of the National Radiator Corporation, in a letter sent to holders of these bonds, announces that the committee has unanimously decided to oppose the plan of reorganization, sponsored by the present management of the corporation.

Smelting Report for Year Issued

American Smelting & Refining Co. reports for 1930 net income after interest, depreciation, depletion and taxes of $11,098,751, equal after preferred dividends to $3.77 a share on the 1,829,940 shares of no-par common against net income of $21,851,583 or $10.02 per share of common in 1929 and net income of $36,586,204 or $8.24 per share in 1928.

City of Bergen's Bonds Are Called

Fiscal agents for the City of Bergen, Norway, are issuing a notice today to holders of the city's municipal external dollar loan of 1924, 25-year 8 per cent sinking fund gold bonds due October 1, 1949, that the entire amount of bonds now outstanding have been called for redemption on April 1, 1931 at par.

Leather Demand Is Slightly Bettered

Shoe and Leather Reporter says demand for various types of leather was just a shade better during the past week. While prices continue to favor the buyer as in the past, belief is expressed that with seasonal broadening of demand this situation will change for the better.

Canadian Demand for Iron Expanding

New business in the Canadian iron and steel markets is picking up. Demand for semi-finished iron, while still largely confined to small spot tonnages, is growing in volume each week.

Reading Net Totals $8,462,626 in 1930

Net income of the Reading Company during 1930, after deducting all charges, amounted to $8,462,626, as compared with $15,608,740 in the preceding year, a decrease of $7,046,113.

BUCK TELLS HOW GIN MADE ORANG-UTAN CAPTIVE.

FANNING

With GEORGE UNDERWOOD

A Whole Column on Cauliflowers Just for Change

SOUTH BOSTON MEET SOUTH BROOKLYN

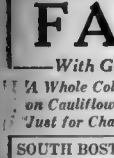
SOUTH BOSTON and South Brooklyn have much in common. Both have been fertile breeding grounds of ring men. South Brooklyn runs to bantams and feathers. It has produced three world's champions in those divisions, Terrible Terry McGovern, Cannonball Eddie Martin and Tony Canzoneri, who meets our own Sammy Fuller in the Boston Garden next Friday night.



TONY CANZONERI

McGovern was born in Johnstown Pa.—ever hear of the famous Johnstown flood" and Canzoneri answered Life's first gong in New Orleans. But before Terrible Terry was knee high to a grasshopper, his family moved to Brooklyn and he was raised a few blocks from the romantic Gowanus Canal. Canzoneri still was licking a toothsome praline, which Southern kids think has a lolly-pop beaten to a frazzle, when his old man said good-bye to Ramos and the famous golden fizzes and came North to sample some of George Ehret's amber brew right off the wood.

Old man Canzoneri didn't get much of a chance to imbibe George Ehret's famous brew for about the same time Babe Canzoneri and his bazubbies hit Brooklyn prohibition hit the land and South Brooklyn became as parched as the Sahara. (Like fun it did—not South Brooklyn!)

EDDIE CANNONBALL MARTIN was South Brooklyn born, as well as South Brooklyn raised. He came to town and was reared a stone's throw from the lumber yard on the banks of the Gowanus, where Terry McGovern worked and developed the hands and muscles which made him the most feared little man that ever crawled through the ropes.

Terrible Terry McGovern was the Jack Dempsey of the Little Fellows. Like Dempsey among the heavies, Terrible Terry gallivanted through ringdom spreading terror among the bantams, feathers and lightweights. His left hand was plain poison, his right, six months in the hospital. Terrible Terry's famous right rocked more fellows to sleep than Somnus, the god of sleep, and his famous son, Morpheus.

Terry McGovern was King in South Brooklyn. Long after his death his name was on every tongue. It was natural for little Eddie Martin, born and reared in Terrible Terry's own ballwick, to make McGovern his hero and try to emulate him.

It was just as natural for young Tony Canzoneri, when he came up from New Orleans and found Eddie Cannonball Martin champion, to vow in his heart that he himself would bring another crown to Brooklyn.

Canzoneri had another youthful hero, Pete Herman, world's bantam champion, to spur him on. Pete was New Orleans born and raised. In periodical trips from Brooklyn to New Orleans Canzoneri met Herman and sometimes boxed with him. Tony eventually was taken over by Herman's manager, Sammy Goldman.

Tony is the second world's champion piloted by Sammy Goldman. Other managers who have handled two world's champions were William A. Brady, who managed James J. Corbett and James J. Jeffries; Billy Gibson, who piloted Gene Tunney and Benny Leonard; Tom O'Rourke, who steered George Dixon and Joe Walcott; and Jack Kearns, who held the reins over Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker.

TOM JONES was the only manager who had three world's champions in his stable. Tom handled Ad Wolgast, Billy Papke and Jess Willard.

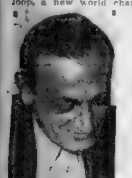
TERRY McGOVERN

Bill Brady became a famous theatrical producer. So did Terry McGovern's manager, Sam Harris. Sam originally ran a laundry in Brooklyn.

IF SAMMY FULLER should sneak in under the weight here in the Boston Garden next Friday night and knock Tony Canzoneri for a loop, a new world champion would be crowned. There isn't much chance of such a thing happening, however, for the articles of agreement, we believe, call for Fuller to come in over the championship poundage. A champion doesn't like to defend his title over the 10-round route for what Boston pays the fighting men nowadays.



SAM GOLDMAN

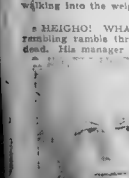
You can bet the astute shrewd eyed Sammy Goldman will not take any chances here in our lovely city. No Sir-ee, Bob! Not after what Red Chapman and Manager Charlie Cardio once pulled, or attempted to pull on Johnny Dundee, world's featherweight champion, junior lightweight champion and other things.

LIKE FULLER with Canzoneri, Chapman agreed to come in over the championship poundage with Dundee. Then Red attempted to sneak over a fast one and come in under the weight. At the first weighing-in Chapman scaled under the championship poundage. He was made to go out and inhale a couple of bottles of milk, wrap himself around a few yards of spaghetti or something. Then the scales were adjusted for the "official weighing" and—lo and behold!—Red wasn't a featherweight any more.

But when Red was awarded the decision over Dundee, Chapman's handlers claimed the title for their man and there was a helluva hullabaloo raised.

And so when the weighing in for next Friday night's shindy takes place you can bet Sammy Goldman will keep a weather eye cocked on Phil Buccola, Sammy Fuller, the weights, the officials and things in general. Of course Phil Buccola is an honorable man and would live up to an agreement, gentleman's or written. But in these hypocritical, tackletering, prohibition days, when a man means nothing and a man's word means less, you can't blame Sammy Goldman from not walking into the weighing in room with the blinders on.

HEIGHO! WHAT has become of some of the characters in this rambling ramble through the cauliflower fields? Terry McGovern is dead. His manager now occupies as high a position in theatrical producing as he once did in the fight game. Cannonball Eddie Martin, softened up, still attempts to draw a few bucks on now and then. Pete Herman is blind. He is interested in dance halls and cabarets in New Orleans.



TOM O'ROURKE

Which reminds us Benny still possesses some of the world's biggest theatrical shows. He recently brought his "Street Scene" to Boston. Brady's two world's heavyweight champions, Jim Corbett and John Jeffries, still are alive and hale and hearty. Corbett breds the huskin and Jeffries is on his ranch in Burbank, Cal.

THE SNOWS of many winters crown the head of Tom O'Rourke, but he still nibbles on the edges of the fight game. George Dixon is dead. Joe Walcott eeks out a precarious existence as janitor, cleaner and doorman in New York.

TOM JONES, the last we heard, is alive and running a string of barber shops in the Middle West. Ad Wolgast is demented and in an asylum. For years the world's lightweight champion was supported by Jack Doyle in Los Angeles. One of Wolgast's manias was he was training for another title fight. Doyle humored him and kept him out of the asylum as long as he could. Billy Papke has a ranch in California and a grown son in the ring. Jess Willard is a thriving Los Angeles business man.

WE FILLED A TUB WITH WATER—PLACED IT NEAR HIS TREE—HE CAME DOWN FINALLY—FOR SEVERAL MINUTES HE STUDIED THE TUB AND ITS CONTENTS—WAS ABOUT TO DRINK THOUGHT BETTER OF IT—KNOCKED THE TUB OVER AND SCRAMBLED UP HIS TREE AGAIN"
"EACH DAY WE FILLED THE TUB—GETTING HIM USED TO THE IDEA—SOON HE LEARNED TO DRINK IT—WE THEN STARTED ADDING TO THE WATER A SMALL AMOUNT OF "ARRIC"—OUR NATIVE GIN—A LITTLE MORE EACH DAY—WHEN WE THOUGHT THIS "MAN OF THE FOREST" WAS READY FOR IT WE FILLED THE TUB WITH STRAIGHT "ARRIC"—HE DRANK SLOWLY UNTIL HE HAD DRAINED THE LAST DROP"
"PICKING UP A LOG HE WRATHFULLY SWUNG IT AGAINST THE TREE—THE LOG SNAPPING IN HALF AS HE FELL DOWN"
"AGAIN HE ROSE UNCERTAINLY—STARTED SHAKILY ACROSS THE CLEARING—COMING TO A FALLEN TREE. HE PUT HIS HANDS ON IT TO SUPPORT HIMSELF—RAISED ONE LEG TO STEP OVER AND FELL DOWN DEAD DRUNK"

Huge Beast Trapped by Drink with Kick in It

In his preceding chapters Frank Buck told you of the negotiations leading to the capture of the "one-piece wonderful orang utan" from the Malay date in Singapore harbor. Now he tells the tale of how the beast was captured, and how it was shipped home.

There is no prohibition law in the jungles of Borneo, and the orang utans know nothing of the power of arrie, a native drink that makes anything known to Occidental drinkers seem as harmless as distilled water. Arrio led the great Old Man of the Forest to capture and ultimately to death.

It is an amusing tale, yet pathetic, and Coffman puts into forceful artistry the high lights of Frank Buck's colorful tale, Bring 'Em Back Alive."

Read it daily on the sports pages of the Boston Evening American.

CHAPTER III

Well, tuan, we played a mean trick on that orang. (Laughing) If we hadn't you wouldn't be his owner. He'd still be roaming the jungle.

Abdul here (pointing to one of his men) found the brute's house in a big tree. (High up in some big trees the orang-utan builds a platform of branches over and around which he weaves more branches until he has a sort of nest or shelter of limbs and leaves.)

Abdul discovered the big fellow's tree-house in the jungle tiga maken aari from our kompong. (Those three Malay words mean "three chews of betel nut." The Malay frequently figures time in such picturesque terms. It takes him about 25 minutes to polish off a mouthful of betel nut, so three chews would be about an hour and a quarter's walk, during which he would cover about three and one-half miles.)

It was the dry season of the year in our section. That be-

Braves Are Picked to Finish 7th

New York, March 2 (INS)—The general belief that the 1931 pennant campaign in the National League will be the closest race in the loop's history is confirmed by the release of the first set of odds on the chances of the various clubs.

The figures are furnished by Tom Kearney of St. Louis, whose "dope" is highly regarded by bookmakers throughout the country. He figures the Philadelphia Athletics an odds-on favorite at 7 to 10 to continue their domination in the American League, but thinks the National League race will be a toss-up between St. Louis, Chicago and Brooklyn, with Pittsburgh and New York close behind.

Kearney's odds are as follows:

| NAT. LEAGUE | | AM. LEAGUE | |
|---|---|---|---|
| St. Louis | 6-5 | Philadelphia | 7-10 |
| Chicago | 3-1 | Washington | 2-1 |
| Brooklyn | 3-1 | New York | 3-1 |
| Pittsburgh | 5-1 | Cleveland | 8-1 |
| New York | 7-1 | Detroit | 12-1 |
| Philadelphia | 100-1 | St. Louis | 100-1 |
| Boston | 50-1 | Chicago | 100-1 |
| Cincinnati | 100-1 | Boston | 100-1 |

The Boston Braves really should be rated ahead of the Phillies, Bill McKechnie has lost Bob Smith, but his acquisition of Wes Schulmerich and Red Worthington, rookies of great promise, who will team the outer gardens with Wally Berger, will give him a trio of outfielders with great batting power.

Games Wanted

Medford Tigers, senior team wants games with 135 pound teams, and junior team with 105-110 pound teams on home and home basis. Write Stuart Bogan, 58 Lambert st., Medford, or call between 5 and 7 o'clock.

BUSY WEEK FOR HEAVYWEIGHTS

New York, March 2 (AP)—The palms of Miami again beckon to the fight faithful this week, calling them to witness the winter's second battle of the southland with Primo Carnera of Italy and Jimmy Maloney of Boston as the principals.

But for those who must remain in the North, there is no lack of fistic entertainment. Battles in Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit, Chicago and Oakland, Cal., share the spotlight with the Miami scrap.

The week's heavyweight campaign opens in Philadelphia tonight with the Italian Roberto Roberti facing Big Jack Gross of Salem, N. J., in a 10 rounder. Detroit and Chicago continue it Friday. At Detroit Charlie Retzlaff of Duluth faces the aging Hard Rock of New Zealand, Tom Heeney.

The Chicago show brings together a pair of young mid-western favorites, Tuffy Griffiths of Sioux City, Iowa, and King Levinsky of Chicago. Both are 10 rounders.

Young Jack Thompson, Los Angeles, Negro star, meets Babe Anderson, San Jose, Cal., welterweight, in an important 10-rounder at Oakland Wednesday.

Sharkey and Schaaf Return From Coast

Jack Sharkey, recognized as American heavyweight champion, and Ernie Schaaf, Boston ring star, have returned to Boston from the Pacific coast. Johnny Buckley, manager of both heavyweights, as well as Mrs. Sharkey, Mrs. Buckley and Al Lacey were included in the party.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

The act of swinging a golf club should be a natural smooth, almost effortless exertion. I always say to you that accomplishing a swing should be easy and so it is. Improve my point every time you stand in practice and give your club those smooth rhythmical swings of which you are perfectly capable. Now having proved this for yourself by your own effortless practice swings, why step up to the ball and seek then to put into effect some "improvement" in your swing. Your aim, of course, is to improve your golf, since you seek, by the effort, to accomplish a better shot. The better shot you seek will be made in another way entirely—by giving your whole attention to the ball and keeping in abeyance all thought that concerns swinging details.

Billiard Star to Meet All Comers

Charles Ryder of New Bedford and John Mills of Boston have accepted the challenge of Johnny Layton, former king of three cushion billiards and pocket billiards, and will play against the ex-world's champion at the State Billiard rooms.

Layton is here to play exhibition games tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday at the State Rooms and has also agreed to meet all comers, world's

CANZONERI TO TRAIN HERE

By RINGSIDE

Tony Canzoneri, world's lightweight champion, will complete his training in Boston for his ten-round bout with Sammy Fuller of the North End which will be staged at the Boston Garden on Friday night.

Fuller has been working at Kelley & Hayes Gym for ten days and is prepared to put up one of the best bouts of his career.

Strong Prelim Card for Sonny-Wykoff Match

Paul Bowser has arranged a strong preliminary card for the finish wrestling bout, best two falls out of three, between Gus Sonnenberg and Lee Wykoff which will be staged at the Arena on Thursday night.

Nick Lutze of Southern California, who came near winning from Ed George in their recent contest at the Arena, will oppose George Vassel, Greek grappler, in the semifinal which will have a time limit.

Al Mello Will Try Comeback Tonight

Al Mello gets back into the local fistic wars tonight when he swaps punches with Joe Marino of New York in the feature bout at the Fall River Casino.

The popular Lowell boy has had a long rest and will try himself out against the tough New York youngster. If successful he will start a campaign to regain his former high position in the fistic world.

Boston Ice Teams in Tourney

By BILL GRIMES

For the first time in the history of amateur athletics a national amateur hockey championship of the United States has been sanctioned and teams will meet in New York in a series, March 27 to March 31, to decide the title. The University Club and the Boston Hockey Club have been invited to participate in the title tournament.

Official announcement of the championship hockey series was sent on from New York today by Rufus J. Trimble, chairman of the A. A. U. hockey committee and chairman of the Olympic hockey committee.

The games will be played in Madison Square Garden, if possible. If the big Gotham arena is not available the tournament will be conducted in the New York Coliseum.

The tournament is open to all registered amateur clubs. Only the hotel expenses of sectional winners will be paid. It is possible, however, if the tournament is staged in Madison Square Garden that part of the hotel and traveling expenses of all the teams will be taken care of.

Games are scheduled for Sunday, March 29, as well as March 27, 28, 30 and 31.

Caridco Honored

Chicago, March 2 (INS)—Five hundred Italian admirers of Frank Caridco, all-American quarterback at Notre Dame for two years, honored the prominent athlete here with a chance-dance in his honor.

MANAGER OF MAX OFFERS MALONEY TITLE GO

BIG CHANCE IF BOSTON MAN BEATS PRIMO

Miami, March 2 (INS)—Jimmy Maloney's determination to score a second victory over Primo Carnera when they meet here Thursday had added impetus today. Joe Jacobs, manager of Maxie Schmeling, world's heavyweight champion, has told Maloney he will give him a bout with Schmeling if the German defeats Young Stribling in June and if the Bostonian wins from the Italian.

Dan Carroll, manager of Maloney, said that Jacobs had promised the Boston Irishman the first fight after the Stribling battle.

Carnera did not box at all Sunday, but took five miles of brisk roadwork.

Walter Cobb, the sparring mate who is credited with cracking the Italian's rib, appeared in public with a black eye, leading substance to the report that Carnera had been engaging in secret workouts.

A special train from Boston brought more than 60 ardent fans, who believe Maloney has an excellent chance of again whipping the enormous Italian fighter.

It looks like old times again on the Jeffries ranch in Burbank, Cal. The big fellow has put up his dukes again. But only as trainer and instructor of Les Kennedy, the Coast slugger who meets Paolina, the Basque Woodchopper, on March 10. Here you see Les Kennedy and James J. Jeffries, the kid, himself, former heavyweight champion of the world.

NEW CATCHER PLEASES BOSS OF BRAVES

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 2—A young man who has all the catchers worried at the Braves camp here is Roy Luebbe, husky young giant from Omaha, Neb., who was drafted by the Boston club from Charlotte in the Sally League.

Luebbe showed in his practice workouts that he has the stuff and is one of the finest of the young recruit receivers. He has plenty of experience for he was up with the New York Yankees in 1925 and later did his stuff behind the plate for Asheville and Waco before going with Charlotte.

He caught for Omaha when it won the pennant in 1924, in the Western League.

"I think I'm ripe enough this season to gain a place on a major league team," said the modest young backstop. "I kept in good condition this winter, working in the shipping department of the General Electric Co. at Omaha, and think that I am in shape right now to go nine innings."

Luebbe rose from the sandlots of Omaha and played for an amateur nine there. Last year while at Charlotte, managed by Dick Hoblitzel, former Red Sox star, Luebbe worked behind the plate in 108 games and batted for .280.

Luebbe Fine Prospect, McKechnie Says

"I am keeping an eye on that Luebbe; he is a fine prospect," was the statements of Bill Kechnie when asked his opinion of the boy.

Luebbe was born at Parkersburg, Iowa. He is 26 years old, weighs 178 pounds, and stands 6 feet. He is powerfully built, and can smack the onion. He lives with his parents at Omaha, Neb., where his father is in the real estate business.

The Braves are fast rounding into shape and are expected to be in pretty good condition when they face the New York Yankees at Watertown Park here on Saturday. Judge Fuchs is expected to arrive here from Miami this morning.

YOUNG RED SOX ROOKIES HAVE REAL ABILITY

By JOE CASHMAN

Pensacola, Fla., March 2—The Old Bay State may well be proud of each and every one of the latest contributions to the Red Sox roster.

Through few, if any, of them will make the grade this year, all 10 boys from home are mighty fine prospects. Most of them are already certain of having strong strings attached when they are farmed out.

This is more than can be said of several youngsters present from other sections of the land, and in two or three years the local boys promise to be ready to win regular berths with the Fenway flock.

The most impressive of the lot and the most likely to stick this season is Sumner Collingwood, young southpaw from Duxbury.

In the practice games to date this boy has shown about everything a pitcher needs to be great. He has control, speed and a fine assortment of deliveries and is calm, cool and collected at all times.

His only handicap is lack of minor league experience. He has pitched only high school and semi-pro ball.

Collingwood May Be Kept on Squad

Despite that drawback, Collingwood has a fine chance of winning a berth if he keeps on improving as Jim Brilliheart is the only experienced southpaw on the club and Manager John Collins would like a young portsider to fill one of the two open berths on the pitching staff.

The pilot hasn't even started to figure out who he will retain but he admits that Collingwood will get plenty of consideration when he gets around to the task of picking his team.

Next to the Cape boy, the outstanding Yannigan is Howard Storie, Pittsfield high school catcher. He was very crude at the start but in ten days he has developed into a first class receiver and one of the hardest hitters on the squad.

Collins thinks that the lad has the makings of a great catcher and will pick a minor league spot for him where he will have a chance to play regularly and improve.

Creedon Hits Hard but Needs Experience

Paddy Creedon of Brockton, former B. C. football star, can hit better than the majority of regulars and a year or two in the busses should enable him to polish up his fielding enough to become a big leaguer.

Billy Marshall, Dorchester high school star, can field well enough to hold down any of the infield and outfield positions and is a very good hitter for a boy who is not yet 19 years of age.

Experience and the balance and poise that come with age would seem to be all he needs to make the grade.

The same is true of Ed O'Neil of South Boston and Justin McLaughlin of Brighton, youthful southpaw flingers.

Other Rookies Need More Seasoning

Frank Milliken, right-handed pitcher from Walpole; Charlie Crystal, outfielder from Roxbury; Andy Mullaney, right-handed flinger from Malden, and Jimmy Galvin, catcher from Somerville, have all had some minor league experience and one more season in the "sticks" should put them over the top.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

Mr. Boston

Mr. Boston was parading along Tremont st. when a "Caddy" coupe pulled up at the curb and the driver gave the veteran a large hello.

"Hello, Sonny," piped Mr. Boston. "Doing your road work in a high powered chariot?"

"Training is over for the day," asserted Gus Sonnenberg, former world's heavyweight champion, laughingly. "I did three miles on the road this morning, and engaged in an hour's workout this afternoon. Where do you want me to drop you?"

"At the office," replied Mr. Boston. "I have to write the column before hurrying home to my gang in Jamaica Plain."

"Writing a column isn't much of a workout," chirped Sonny good-naturedly. "You never get a cauliflower ear hitting a typewriter."

"Neither do you get $50,000 guarantees such as you wrestlers pick up in title matches," shot back Mr. Boston.

"Have it your own way," went on Sonny. "You don't mind if I take you to your office by way of the Back Bay?" queried the former champion. "I want to call for Miss Elliot, my fiancee."

"It's okay with me," declared Mr. Boston. "Step on the gas."

"I have been thinking a lot of this fellow, Les Wykoff, I am going to wrestle at the Arena on Thursday night," said Sonny as his car sped up Tremont at. "He gave me a hard battle the last time we met. We each had scored a fall when I sidestepped and Les went through the ropes and was hurt. I was glad the match ended when it did as I was getting tired.

Former Champion Says He Needed a Rest

"I guess I needed a rest. My right eye then began to trouble me. I went to a doctor and he told me I had three ulcers on the eye. When he cauterized the eye it hurt more than when I landed on my head when I went through the ropes in my first bout with Strangler Lewis at the Arena.

"The doctors tell me my eye is all right again. I feel in good condition, but yet I'll confess I'm a little but uncertain about the outcome of my match with Wykoff.

"I just have to win this match, though, as I intend to force Ed George to give me a return shot at my title.

"Without trying to take any credit away from George, I believe he was fortunate he got the bout with me in December. I left a hospital in Providence to go to the Coast to meet Ed. I had beaten him before and felt I could repeat.

"After all, I made too many calls on my physical reserve. I wrestled two and three times a week during the two years I was champion. I hopped all over the country in planes, autos and in trains. I thought I was an iron man and could do the work of 12 wrestlers. Of course I cracked, but I am confident I am all right again.

Flew From Seattle to Chicago in Mail Planes

"I had to do some fast thinking to get to Boston from Seattle for my last bout with Wykoff. I was in Seattle on a Monday and I was booked to wrestle in the Hub Thursday. I couldn't make the jump by train and get here on time.

"I started from Seattle to Los Angeles in a passenger plane, but it broke down and was forced to land at a small town on the coast. I hogged a mail pilot to take me into Los Angeles. It was cold and I didn't have the proper equipment. But when the mail pilot consented to let me travel with him I parked myself under some bags of mail and was frozen when we reached Los Angeles. I remained flying with the boys of the air service until I reached Chicago where I took the Twentieth Century into Boston. This was only one of many similar hops. Was it any wonder I got worn out, was licked by George and almost tossed by Wykoff?

"I feel better after my recent layoff and will now go on to win back my title from George. That is the reason I am so eager to win back my lost title."

Sonny pointed to a slip of a girl, radiant, pearly teeth and flashing eyes, with all the attractiveness of youth, who was standing on the sidewalk.

The former champion pulled his car to the curb. He extended his hand to the girl and helped her into the car.

"I want you to meet Miss Marie Elliot," said Gus. "As soon as I win the title back from George, we are going to get married. I hope it will not be long before I am champion again."

The girl smiled and snuggled up beside Sonny.

MORENZ ALSO MENTIONED FOR TROPHY

By BILL GRIMES

During the coming playoffs, President Frank Calder will announce the winner of the Hart trophy, which is awarded annually to the player who, in the opinion of Calder's personally selected committee, is the most valuable in the National Hockey League.

The Hart trophy was donated by Dr. Hart, father of Les Canadiens' manager, Cecil Hart. With two exceptions the selection of the most valuable player has been highly approved, failing to receive the sanction of the players and fans when Roy Worters, present New York American goalie was chosen and again when Nels Stewart of the Maroons was picked over Howie Morenz last season.

According to the general opinion, the goalies are not eligible for the Hart trophy. The Vezina cup, donated by Les Canadiens, is awarded yearly to the outstanding goal minder.

Nels Stewart Is a "Scientific Loafer"

Although Nels Stewart is one of the greatest players in the game, his playing is spotty. He is not a hustler of the Eddie Shore or Howie Morenz type. As a scientific loafer, Stewart is in a class by himself. He spends a goodly portion of his time stalking around in the enemy's territory and one of his greatest assets is his ability to get away with infractions of the rules which prohibits a player obstructing the view of a goal minder.

He is a cagey player, with a keen knowledge of every angle of the game and packs a wicked shot. But, because of his unwillingness to bear down at all times, he is outclassed in value by both Shore and Morenz, who are the men in every sense of the word.

Eddie Shore and Howie Morenz have been the main cogs this season on their clubs, which are leading their respective divisions.

Shore's Playing Has Improved Greatly

Not only has there been a noticeable improvement in Eddie Shore's playing this season but his conduct on the ice has undergone a complete change. He has received fewer penalties and has played clean hockey. No longer is he the wild stick-wielding Eddie Shore, whose actions retarded his popularity among the lovers of clean sport.

Shore is leading all defense men as a goal getter and his team play has been a revelation, to such an extent that Manager Art Ross has built plays around him.

As he is a forward, Howie Morenz has more opportunities to meet with favor than Eddie Shore. Morenz is the speed king of hockey. After years of service, most of which was plenty rough, Howie is still able to break away from the fastest N. H. L. skaters.

He is a relentless worker and the most feared opponent in the game. Morenz is the leading N. H. L. scorer, which is a truly remarkable achievement, for he is the most closely watched player in the league.

Shore and Morenz Only Logical Candidates

In judging the most valuable player, the line of reason leads through the box office. Eddie Shore and Howie Morenz are the best box office attractions in the National Hockey League. Thousands of fans through this country and Canada have trekked to arenas for the solo purpose of seeing Shore or Morenz in action.

The sensational playing of these stars has made fortunes for the Bruins and Canadiens, and there is always a falling off in the receipts when the fans receive advance information that either Shore or Morenz are out of the lineup.

Recently, Howie Morenz was interviewed by Henry J. Disken and he told the veteran expert that Eddie Shore was the logical choice for the Hart trophy.

On the other hand, Shore is of the opinion that honors should go to Morenz, and the Bruin defense star signed a statement to that effect.

Committee Must Be Careful in Choice

If the Hart Trophy committee enters its executive session with an open mind, its task will be a simple one, for Eddie Shore and Howie Morenz are the only logical candidates for Hart honors.

But if the award is made to any other player in the league, in the future the Hart Trophy will carry little value, at least until such a time as the selection of the committee is placed in the hands of Cecil Hart, a true sportsman and a stickler for fair play.

TUT, PETROLLE FACE SOLONS

New York, March 2—Billy Petrolle and King Tut, with their managers, will be asked to step down to the boxing commission tomorrow to give their version of what happened in the ring at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

All the officials who worked the bout, the referee and the two judges, Gen. Phelan and William Muldoon, and Tom McCardle, who matched the men, will give their versions of whether or not the bout looked phoney.

Passing the Puck

Although the Bruins have not participated in a league game for a week, they have been practicing daily and are primed to meet the New York Rangers tomorrow night at the Garden.

Jack Pratt, the Cubs' defense man, is hobbling around on a cane as a result of the injury he received in the Springfield game. Pratt will be out for a week or ten days.

After spotting Springfield, Yank Boyd and Jack Pratt, the Bruin Cubs performed a remarkable feat by defeating the Indians.

At the end of this week, the Rangers will have only three games more to play. Therefore it behooves the Patricks to pick up a few odd points but it will be some assignment. After the Bruins' tilt, they tackle Canadiens in Montreal and then visit Toronto.

The Springfield Indians have a legitimate protest against the compiler of the Can-Am League schedule, for they were assigned to play six games in eight days.

NO MORE GOLF FOR BAMBINO

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 2 (AP)—Florida's golf courses will see little or nothing of Babe Ruth until next year.

Regretfully the Babe has laid aside putter and mashie and prepared to get himself in shape for the coming American League campaign. Spring training for New York Yankees began officially today.

Ex-Holy Cross Catcher Farmed Out by Detroit

Sacramento, Cal., March 2 (AP)—Gene Desautels, young catcher who worked regularly during the latter part of the 1930 season, will be farmed out to Toronto this year by the Detroit Baseball Club. Desautels went from Holy Cross College direct to the American League last summer.

Frank Hogan to Talk Terms With McGraw

San Antonio, March 2 (INS)—Although contracts have not been signed in all instances, the only honest-to-goodness holdout facing the New York Giants today was Bill Terry, first baseman.

Freddy Lindstrom, Travis Jackson, "Shanty" Hogan and Freddy Fitzsimmons are in the fold. Lindstrom and Jackson having arrived in camp, and Fitzsimmons being due before nightfall. Hogan plans to settle on his salary after talking to McGraw.

Polish Benefit Ice Carnival at Arena

Polish societies of Greater Boston will hold an ice carnival on Saturday night at the Boston Arena, the proceeds to be turned over to the Weekly Review for the benefit of the Polish poor children.

Besides the fancy skating and parade of costumed skaters, there will be speed skating races.

JONES THROUGH WITH GOLF

KING TO SEEK NO MORE TITLES

Los Angeles, March 2 (US)—Bobby Jones, king of the four corners of golf, arrived here to make a series of 12 pictures on golf instruction, to play a little golf and to trade his amateur status for what is said to be a quarter of a million dollars.

George Marshall, who is to direct the Jones pictures for the Brother-First Nation, also directed the "shots" taken at the depot.

"Polish off that nose," he ordered, "it shows perspiration."

"Can't you wait a day to start in on that stuff?" asked Bobby, smiling broadly.

Already he was getting a good taste of how they do things in Hollywood—and he hadn't even arrived in Hollywood yet. After the picture barrage was over Jones was taken to Marshall's home in Hollywood, where he is to live for the next two months.

Jones was asked whether he is to be taken seriously in his announcement that he is through with golf.

Jones Says He's All Through With Competition

"I am positively through with competitive golf" he replied. "I have played more golf this winter than ever before, and I intend to play a lot of golf in the future. But it will not be in competition. That's definite."

Jones, a die hard against the steel shafts, admitted that he tried out steel shafted irons in Atlanta this winter.

"I could risk experimenting, being through with competitive golf," he explained. "I might even try some of Joe Kirkwood's shots."

Jones said that while he has not been playing well this winter he intends to be at his best in the pictures.

"I could miss a shot now and then in a tournament and get away with it," he said. "But film costs money and I don't intend to waste a lot of film on bad golf shots that have to be retaken."

Bobby to Make Series of Twelve Pictures

Marshall announced that each picture will be one reel in length requiring ten minutes to run off. A fragment of story will lead up to the instruction in each instance. The 12 pictures are named as follows:

1—The Putter; 2—Chip Shots; 3—The Niblic; 4—The Mashie Niblic; 5—The Spade Mashie and Four Iron; 6—The Three and Two Iron; 7—The Two Iron and Spoon, or Combination; 8—The Brassie; 8—The Driver; 10—Trouble Shots; 11—Practice; 12—A Complete Round of Golf.

PENN PICKED TO WIN BIG MEET

New York, March 1 (US)—It's all over but the thrills. Which refers to the contest for the intercollegiate A. A. A. track and field championship here on Saturday at the 102d Engineers Armory. The last shadow of doubt concerning Pennsylvania's likelihood of sweeping through the meet has been removed by recent events.

Stories of prospects have been bopped by the injury to Vernon Munroe, mainstay of Lehigh's relay team. The pole vaulting of Cornell's Everett Colyer further affects Harvard's chances. Colyer leaped 13 feet 10¼ inches in his last competitive effort, and thus decreased the probability of a third place by Oscar Sutermeister of Harvard, last year's joint champion, with the Cornell athlete.

It will require not one dark horse, but a regiment of them to beat Pennsylvania, which at present holds the team honors with Cornell as a result of a tie at 27½ points apiece last year.

Penn Picked to Win Three First Places

Penn is favored for first place in three individual events and one relay, and has chosen off a second place in two events. With nothing more than a normal share of the breaks, Coach Bonthron's mentor ought to collect more than thirty points.

The mile relay team of Howard Jones, Horace Steel, Jack Edwards and Bill Carr, appears invincible before any college in this season. It has turned in the season's best time, 3:24 on the Garden track, and is yards to Rontgen and its nearest competitor.

Carr, Penn, the 4:13 miler, is favored over George Bullwinkle of C. C. N. Y. in his event, and will be ably supported by Bill McKnight, last year's winner.

Cochet Wins Title From Irish Star

Monte Carlo, March 2—Henri Cochet, French Davis Cup star, defeated G. Lyttleton Rogers, Irish giant, 7—5, 6—2, 6—4, in the finals of the Monte Carlo tennis tournament.

FINE MATERIAL FOR NINE AT HEIGHTS

One of the finest Boston College baseball squads in history will report to its new coach, Frank McCrehan at the Commonwealth Armory on Wednesday afternoon for the first session of spring training.

McCrehan will meet the battery candidates at the Heights for an informal get together but there will be no work done.

The prospects facing McCrehan in his first year as varsity coach are extremely bright. Few members of last year's nine are missing through graduation, and McCrehan has a well-formed nine already using for him. Moreover, he knows fairly well the ability of the individual players, for they all played under his tutoring as members of the Mason and Gold freshman team.

The Eagles should have one of the finest batteries in college ranks, with Capt. George Colbert, intercollegiate batting champ; Fred Meier and "Duke" MacIntyre, doing the backstopping and with such well-known twirlers as John Dixon, Jim Donovan, Barney Curtin, Ed Gallagher and Harry Downes.

Local Trio to Face New York Polo Team

Winston Guest, international polo star, will be called in some time to assist the local polo team which will oppose America's highest handicapped team, the 24 goal Meadow Brook team of Nassau County, in the Commonwealth Armory on Saturday night. Lieut. Joseph Haskell, who trained with the Point team last year, will replace Guest.

The local team will be known as the Boston Ramblers and will have mounted Capt. Frederick Sharp, coach of the Cornell team, No. 1; Haskell at No. 2 and Tim Clark at back.

The New York outfit will have Cyril Harrison at No. 1, Gerard Smith at No. 2 and Lieut. Maclonald Jones at back, a combination with a rating of 26 goals.

Bring 'Em Back Alive

orang had to go a long way for water or go thirsty, which he did for days at a time to save himself the long journey through the tree tops.

It was easy to watch his movements, a task to which Abdul was assigned. We knew the value of fish as animal and we made up our minds to capture him if we possibly could. Naturally we were in great fear of such a giant, having witnessed the terrible results when smaller specimens went on a rampage.

PLAYING SAFE

It struck me that the thing to do first was to conduct an experiment at a safe distance. We filled a small tub with water, placed it near his tree and retired to await developments.

From a clump of bushes a fair distance off we watched the big fellow's movements. For quite a while nothing happened. We were beginning to wonder how long we would have to wait before our friend (though he was hardly that, eh, tuan?) would decide to leave his house in the tree to see what was doing in the world below.

He came down at length. For several minutes he devoted himself to studying the tub and its contents. He was obviously suspicious about something, though what actually went on in his head no one will ever know. He got close enough to the tub to take a drink and started bending over as if he were going to do so. Then, very suddenly, he righted himself. He had changed his mind. He took another hard look at the tub, the experience plainly indicating that he wasn't at all sure that he liked what he saw. Time and time again he gets to be as old as this only captives was probably 20 or 25 years old, and he might have been more) he has had many tricks played on him and he is nothing if not cautious.

"He's learned to drink," I said to one of my comrades. "Not this time anyhow." I had hardly uttered these words when the animal knocked over the tub and scrambled up his tree again.

PATIENCE REQUIRED

The next day we refilled the tub and again awaited developments. One has to have patience in dealing with these wild creatures. One would never capture them otherwise.

After a few hours the big fellow came down again, practically repeating his performance of the day before. The only difference being that this time, as he tipped the tub over with his foot, he dumped back at the contents splashed on the ground, as if expecting something to happen to it.

Perhaps the fact that nothing did happen encouraged him to view the tub and its contents in a friendlier light. The third day he did not tip it over with vehemently and the fourth day he drank—first a sample swallow, then another and another, finally drinking his fill.

Each day we filled the tub, getting him used to the idea that he could depend upon this as a steady source. There were rambutans, banyan berries and other fruits not to his distaste, so the big fellow need make only short trips out for food early mornings and late evenings, knowing that his water was near at hand. It made things quite convenient for this lazy giant.

Then we started adding to the water a small amount of arrie, our native gin. (Probably there is no drink in the world quite so powerful as the arrie drunk by the Malays and the Dyaks, an innocent-looking fluid that like other gins, looks exactly like water. It was unnecessary for the data to tell me about Bornean arrie. I sampled it once, and thought it went down smoothly enough, not long afterwards I thought I was on fire. Once a Malay, in describing the concoction, said to me, "Why, tuan, three drops of this would make a rabbit walk right up and spit in a tiger's eye."

Evidently the orang did not notice the taste of arrie in the water, or did not mind it. After all, he had drunk plenty of water in his time that tasted worse than this. A thirsty animal in the jungle has learned not to be particular, there bring times when he is grateful for anything he can get, even muddy water seeming a luxury.

However, the quantity of arrie that we added the first week so small that the water could not have tagted much differently. Each day we increased the dose and the animal continued to drink. The arrie taste did not seem to bother him at all. For all we knew, he might have developed a liking for it and the faint glow he must have experienced afterwards. The quantity we were giving him, tuan, was still not large and was so well diluted that it couldn't have had more than a mild effect on him.

When we felt that this "man of the forest" was ready for it, we filled the tub with straight arrie. As soon as he was thirsty he slid down his tree for a drink, as was now his custom, the tub having become a regular part of his life. He took a mouthful, wasn't quite sure that this was the kind of water he wanted, retained it in his mouth for half a minute and then spat it out. He regarded the tub thoughtfully for a time, then decided to reconsider. He began to drink slowly and continued until he had drained the last drop.

ANTICS WHEN DRUNK

Then he sat down beside the tub, evidently feeling he needed a rest. After sitting there for about five minutes he started swaying to the right and then to the left like a drunken sailor on a pitching deck. Then he got up uncertainly and started to walk across the cage, stumbling over something in the process and almost falling over. In the typical manner of drunk who has stubbed his toe, he looked down angrily at the enemy that was trying to throw him, then started to underbrush, and decided to deal it a kick. In doing this he lost his balance and landed foolishly on his back.

He got up unsteadily, evidently concluding that something was wrong, in which event he had better go home to his tree-top hut. He turned around and looked doubtfully for his tree. Finally locating his tree with his eye he made for it, in anything but a straight line.

He managed to get part of the way up the trunk, but arrie is arrie and when it starts asserting itself it's a serious handicap to man or beast in a tree-climbing mood. Down slid the bewildered animal, landing with a thud on his now battered back.

He would teach this drunken tree a lesson! Picking up a log, he wrathfully swung it against the trunk, the log snapping in half and its wielder, leaning over so far in dealing the blow that he became top-heavy, landing in a heap where he sat blinking in silly fashion at the part of the club that remained in his grasp. Again he rose uncertainly and started shakily across the clearing. Coming to a fallen tree, he put his hands on it to support himself, raised one leg to step over and fell down dead drunk.

COMES TO IN CRATE

When he came to, some hours later, he found himself neatly crated at Jesselton awaiting shipment to Singapore.

Shortly after the data had finished his story, Ali and I, with the aid of some boatmen, hauled the king of orangs onto a lighter, and we headed for Johnson's pier. There Ali got some coolies to help us lift our cage onto a bullock cart, which was sent on its way to my compound at Katong. A few days later I had the job of transferring my big "man of the forest" from his cramped box, which I considered bad for his health and his disposition, to a fine new roomy one that Hoi Mong, my Chinese carpenter, had built for the newcomer.

My orang was in fine condition when I got him ready for shipment to Hong Kong, along with hundreds of other specimens, aboard the West Sujana on the first leg of my journey to America. He was still a perfect example of sustained wrath, but he was eating regularly. His new diet consisted of carrots, sweet potatoes, bananas, sugar cane, boiled rice, raw eggs and bread, and I was thriving on it.

At Hong Kong I transferred to the President Cleveland. We stopped at Kobe, where I cabled my agent in San Francisco that I had a record-breaking full-grown male orang (I included the creature's astonishing measurements in my message) which I would sell for $5000, a price I considered small enough for the biggest representative of this species in captivity.

$4000 OFFER ACCEPTED

A reply was waiting for me at Yokohama. It was to the effect that the Ringling Brothers circus was willing to pay $4000 and accept delivery on the dock, which, of course, would relieve me of the risk involved in getting the animal to its ultimate destination in the United States. I accepted.

So far so good. The rest was not so good. About five days out of San Francisco my prize orang developed bad case of dysentery, which is always serious in anthropoid apes. He had suddenly achieved one of those sunken stomachs that invariably spell disaster in his species. The ship's doctor had a serum that he thought would help if he could manage to inject it. Patiently we strove to make a quick injection, but we had no luck, two or three needles breaking off in the animals fingers.

That night the Rajah of Ali Orangs, as the data had called him, died. I tossed him over the side, cage and all. His mate would have had a fit if he had seen his fine orang box go overboard. He might have regarded the loss of the animal as a tragedy—he could be quite matter-of-fact about animals—but he would never have understood my throwing away a well-made crate, contaminated or not.

REPORTER TRIPS SAUGUS SLAYER

A Reporter's Story of the Famous Bailey Murder Case

By DAN W. GALLAGHER

Men vanish from their placements and grooves. Every police department has its record of "missing persons." Saugus, Mass., had a notable case of this kind in the long ago. Henry Bailey, a bachelor, owned and operated "Breakheart Hill Farm" on the environs of that town.

Early one spring he appeared at an employment office in Canal st., Boston, with the view of engaging the services of a farmhand. The man he dickered with and hired was John Best, six feet in height and powerfully built. They drove out to the farm in Saugus. And the next day Best entered upon his duties.

Months passed. Crops were good. Bailey had a fine yield. He sold off his products, some at Lynn, the rest at Boston. After that transpired, he was seen no more about the place. Best remained there, however. When questioned about the whereabouts of his employer, he declared his disappearance was as much a mystery to him as it was to the townspeople.

A day came when Saugus organized searching parties. The house, barn and other buildings at "Breakheart Hill Farm" were gone over with the view of clearing up the mystery. Best seemed to lend all the assistance in his power. He declared that Bailey owed him several months' wages and he was going to stick around until he reappeared and paid him.

FOUND IN GUNNY SACK

The owner of that farm appeared at last. But it was in a gunny sack that they found him. Three Lynn residents set forth upon a fishing trip, selecting Floating Bridge pond on the main road between Lynn and Salem to try their luck. This body of water was about a quarter of a mile across.

Upon reaching the pond, the three entered a punt and made for what they regared as a likely spot for bites. The water at this point was shallow. The prow of their small craft brought up against an obstruction. One of the men went forward to clear it. He found it to be a gunny sack, its top above the surface. He dug at it with an oar. That sack, rolled by the waters, parted. And portions of a human body bobbed into view.

The startled fishermen headed for shore and notified the Lynn police. Officers fished out the gruesome package. It was borne to the morgue. There it was found to be the dismembered body of a man. Before nightfall it had been positively identified as that of Bailey. Best was placed under arrest. The authorities refused to grant him a confession. But all they got were denials that he had any hand in doing away with his employer.

They brought John Best to view what remained of Bailey. "It's Bailey," he said. "No doubt about that." Then, addressing the officers, he asked: "If I had done Bailey to death, do you think I'd have stuck around all this time? Where's his watch and all the money he had?"

All in all, the very thing others wanted to know. The barn and house and other buildings at the farm were again searched. No trace of the money or watch was found. Nothing was even upon to show that Bailey had been murdered there. As the days went by, John Best began to demand he be released. He sent for relatives, among them a brother-in-law.

The latter engaged counsel for him. In the presence of the police, he told Best to "keep a stiff upper and the rest of us know that you are innocent. And, if it takes every penny we have, you are going to stand by you and see you cleared.

Interned Best while he was in jail. Another reporter accompanied me. The sheriff was present during our talk. It was his allusion to the murder other than to say:

"They're sure making a search of that barn. If there is anything there to clear up this case, they'll certainly find it."

Upon quitting the accused man, my reporter friend's comment was:

"You're wrong about that back. No search is under way there now. The authorities say they have gone over it with a fine tooth comb and found nothing."

I replied:

"That's true. But I've put a flea in Best's ear. If there is anything in that barn that incriminates him in this crime, he'll move heaven and earth from now on to get it out of the way. And, since he is in jail, he will require an accomplice. Consequently, I'm going to keep an eye out for someone trying to break into that barn and what they are after. For I believe it was there Bailey was killed."

But we didn't have to set any watch. The pasty-stricken by my remark, did the very thing I knew he would do—picked an accessory after the fact. But in picking him he could not have made a better selection. Without losing any time, he sent for his brother-in-law, the man who had championed his cause.

TELLS BROTHER-IN-LAW

The latter arrived at the jail and was shown to Best's cell. Best, much agitated, took him aside. And they held a whispered conversation. The deputy present afterwards said that he knew something startling was in the wind—that what Best was telling his brother-in-law came to the latter as a bolt from the blue.

"For," said he, "I heard Best's visitor say, 'My God.' And every bit of color left his cheeks."

The sheriff was in his office when the brother-in-law reappeared. The latter dropped into a chair and asked for a drink of water. It was brought and disposed of.

"Feeling ill?" asked the sympathetic sheriff.

"Not what you would call ill, sheriff. Just heartsick. I've just had the shock of my life. It's my duty to reveal what I have just learned. John Best killed Bailey. He just told me: 'They are searching the barn. Go out there tonight and get into that barn some way. On the beam above the feedbox you'll find a gold watch and $300 in bills. You can keep the money for yourself. But take the watch down to Lynn Beach, when the tide is out, and throw it into the ocean as far as you can heave it. For if they find that watch and money it's all off with me.'

Police were dispatched to the barn at "Breakheart Hill Farm." They found the watch and money—just as the brother-in-law had said. The grand jury convened. John Best was indicted for murder. His conviction followed and he was sentenced to die in the electric chair.

Upon reaching Charlestown State prison, the condemned man said to Warden Benjamin F. Bridges: "Warden, supply me with just one article and I'll have the laugh on you before the night you turn on the juice."

"What article is that?" asked the warden.

"One of those rubber stockings, such as is worn by people who have varicose veins. Slipped over my leg, you'd get no contact. You could have the switch thrown all you pleased and there'd be in that there chair, a-giving you the merry he ha."

Best didn't get his wish. Contact was not interfered with the night he took his seat in that chair.

TOMORROW — Claudia Lilley, "Belle of Lynn," Figures in Tragedy.

BEST TOOK HIM ASIDE AND THEY HELD A WHISPERED CONVERSATION
THEY FOUND THE WATCH AND MONEY JUST AS THE BROTHER-IN-LAW HAD SAID...

A REPORTER'S TRICK trapped John Best as the slayer of his employer in Saugus. Told that police were searching Henry Bailey's barn for his missing watch and money, Best instructed his brother-in-law to remove the objects—and thereby walked into a trap.

THE SECRET SIX

with half an eye that Scorpio was an innocent and much-wronged man.

And the papers came out with extras—"Vronski Guilty — Scorpio Exonerated."

Some of them commented on Newton's brilliant work in court.

And business men in the city as well as in Centro shivered in their boots.

They sensed what was coming.

Markham, publisher of the Eros, sat in his private office, deep in conference with an earnest group, the day after the trial. The gathering had come secretly. Not even the publisher's secretary knew who they were.

"They freed Scorpio," stated the publisher, "and from a number of sources we have word that he was really guilty."

"That in itself is not an important—but what lies behind it will be.

"It means one of the biggest gang wars in history, unless this Scorpio gang and Colletti get together.

"And if they do—it means a reign of terror for business."

The Big Six

Ben Sellsbach, head of a big paper company, nodded gravely.

"The Colletti gang burned my warehouse," he stated bitterly.

"Of course, the police proved nothing. They never will. They're afraid to. I had the courage to throw the racketeers out of my factory when they started that strike. Their demands were exorbitant.

"And yet—I can't prove a thing."

"They are levying an assessment on all my milk drivers," added Denton, head of the Denton Creameries, "and they have been terrorized. I tell you—something has to be done."

"There are six of us here—representing all the big interests of the city," he stated "My paper'll get back of this to the limit."

"What we have to do is fight organization with organization. After all, when reputable citizens really become aroused criminals can't survive.

"It's public apathy, and, to a large degree, sympathy with these fellows because they sell liquor, that has brought this about."

When prohibition came, everybody gloried in getting an illicit drink. It became smart. And bootleggers became figures of romance. Then they organized gangs and branched out into these other rackets, and now we have this on our hands.

"What I propose is that we find a secret headquarters and organize a counter-body of the forces of the law and order."

The men nodded agreement, and went into whispered consultation.

Both After Anne

Hank, the reporter, had been dropping into the former Franks restaurant, operated by the Gougher—during the imprisonment and trial of Scorpio and Vronski. He and Anne had become more than friendly. Carl dropped in, too, and between the two arose a lively rivalry over the girl, almost as keen as their rivalry over news. The day of the trial, Hank brought Anne disquieting tidings.

"There threatening to close this place up," he stated. "It seems that, though they know no booze was ever sold here, they found some in Franks' office. I don't know whether they can make it stick—but Newton is very smart."

"Well—I suppose that'll mean I have to hustle another job," Anne answered, "and jobs are scarce right now.

"And after working here, and this killing—I couldn't keep it."

"I'll help you find another job," volunteered Hank. The girl smiled rather bitterly.

"Say," she retorted, "you know I fell for that big brother stuff once."

Peaches Grim

"I didn't mean it that way, and you know it," insisted Hank. The girl smiled.

Hank grinned back. "Remember," he insisted, as he left the restaurant.

Anne looked after him, with a shade of emotion in her smile.

Peaches, sitting at a table in the restaurant, watched the little drama. She smiled a hard smile. She thought she saw a way of ridding herself of Anne as a rival character.

For she was determined to rule Scorpio as she had ruled the dead restaurant man.

She nonchalantly stepped to the cashier's desk.

"Like that reporter pretty well, don't you?"

"I sure do."

"Well, you're a sucker to hang around with him. Why don't you grab yourself some real dough? You won't be young long, kid."

"Say, Peaches, you weren't born yesterday—and you seem to be going pretty well."

"I'm hanging on like a hat out of hell," the girl grimly answered. A queer look came into her hard face.

"I hate him—and I love him," she breathed. "I'd kill anyone who tried to take him away from me."

"You mean Scorpio?"

"Sure. You see, he's my last chance. In another year I'll be cracking up like a hard winter. Then he wouldn't look at a dame like me. He'll marry after 'em young. I'll get the gate.

"That's why I'm makin' my innings now. Grabbing all I can get."

"If I weren't really in love with Hank—" began the girl.

"So you're really on the deep and abiding him?"

"Sure I am. Crazy about him, Peaches. Gee, he's a swell kid. I wouldn't give him up for twice as much as you've got."

Peaches smiled a crooked smile. "And they got you in here to kid him along—so he'd lay off the mob in the papers!" she remarked wonderingly.

"Vronski gets life! Scorpio freed!"

Port of Boston News

By JAMES J. DELANEY

MONDAY MARKET

Heavy weather was reported by the fishing fleet when they reported in to meet the Monday market. Seventeen draggers and trawlers brought small catches.

Among the draggers arriving were the Ruth and Margaret with 40,000 pounds; the Morning Star with 43,000 pounds; the Leonora C. with 41,000 pounds; the Colleen with 8000 pounds; Cormorant with 65,000 pounds; Venture II with 40,000 pounds; the W. L. Putnam with 85,000 pounds; the Babe Sears with 75,000 pounds; the Elvira Gaspar with 35,000 pounds, and the Mystic and Mary and Winifred.

Trawlers which came in with the early comers were: Boston College with 20,000 pounds; the Brooklyn with 65,000 pounds; Notre Dame with 70,000 pounds and the Curlew, which did not record.

TROPICAL CRUISERS

Boston passengers arrived in the S. S. San Benito, United Fruit Co., which is docked at Long wharf after a pleasant passage from Kingston, Jamaica, and Tela, Honduras. Shipments for this port included 50,790 bunches of bananas, 300 bags of cocoanuts, 10 barrels of limes and 100 bags of bone charcoal. Those who made the tropical trip included John and Mabel Bainbridge, Lynn and Mrs. Dorothy Herbert and Alice Ferguson, Louis L. Sanborn, Thomas Stedfast, George Marquard, George Alcock, Henry Scott and Stanley Loud, Capt. D. M. McDonald was in command.

PENOBSCOT OPENED

When the S. S. Cornish, Eastern Steamship Line freighter, sails from here tonight or tomorrow she will go directly to Bangor. Freezing of the Penobscot river makes Bangor inaccessible to navigation in the winter months and coastwise ships have to make Winterport their terminus. Friday the Coast Guard cutter Kickapoo cutting through six and one-half miles of ice cleared a channel that will enable shipping to go through to Bangor. Earliest previous opening of the port was March 1, 1920.

Alien Dope Pedlars

They May Now Be Deported at Once on Conviction

Great credit is due President Hoover for the new declaration of war by the federal government against all aliens found guilty of violating our anti-narcotic laws.

Under the new law just signed by the President these foreign criminals may hereafter be deported as soon as they are found guilty.

No longer will this imported vermin be permitted to contaminate our jails at the expense of our own taxpayers.

Although directed chiefly against the foreign rascals convicted of either selling or conspiring to sell narcotics drugs in violation of American laws, Mr. Hoover's new law is broad enough in scope and drastic enough in terms to rid this country quickly of every alien violator of our anti-narcotic laws from the chief gangster of big dope rings to the dark-alley pedlars of these deadly poisons.

The Hoover law, which went to the White House supported by the vote of every Senator and Representative in Congress, slashes administrative red tape and leaves no loophole for weak or callous judges to show leniency to a type of criminal rightly described by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania as "worse than murderers."

Soon after he entered the White House Mr. Hoover ordered a searching examination made of the federal machinery available for deporting alien violators of our anti-narcotic laws.

The result of this examination convinced the President that new legislation was necessary to make this machinery effective.

Not only did he recommend to Congress the immediate enactment of the drastic law just added to our anti-narcotic statutes, but Mr. Hoover personally urged upon the Republican and Democratic leaders of both houses of Congress the imperative necessity of passing this bill as soon as possible.

How urgently such legislation was needed is shown by the fact that one-third of all the prisoners in federal penitentiaries today are either drug addicts or vicious violators of our laws against the drug traffic.

And many of these convicted criminals are aliens who have hitherto been fed and clothed and sheltered throughout their terms of imprisonment at the expense of American taxpayers.

There has been a lack of system and co-ordination between the federal courts and the immigration service that has made it difficult for the federal and state governments to enforce effectively the laws against illicit traffic in habit-forming drugs.

Thanks to the leadership of President Hoover, supported by country-wide public sentiment voiced by the Hearst newspapers, there is now a law on the statute books whose enforcement should soon rid this country of one of the most despicable and dangerous types of alien criminals that ever cursed the household of the Nation.

Twelve Greatest Women

Can You Name Them?

Good Housekeeping Magazine, after a poll of its readers and a final decision by five eminent judges, announces the names of the twelve greatest living American women. Some are familiar to you. Others, perhaps, you have never heard of.

The list:

Jane Addams, Helen Keller, Ernestine Schumann-Heink, Willa Cather, Mary Woolley, Martha Berry, Cecilia Beaux, Grace Abbott, Minnie Fiske, Carrie Catt, Florence Sabin and Grace Coolidge.

The five judges were men. It would be interesting to see what a board of five women judges would have selected.

And, by the way, why shouldn't five women be allowed to vote on America's twelve greatest men? Or, rather, on the other eleven and Rudy Vallee?

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Mrs. Solomon Says—

Verily, my daughter, the reasons why a man looketh askance upon matrimony and seeketh to escape it are plainer than a Broadway beauty without her make-up.

For, why should a man joyfully exchange the caresses of many damsels for the criticism of ONE, and the privilege of kissing a la carte for the duties of the domestic table d'hote?

But, the reasons why he DOTH marry are stranger and more unaccountable than the way of a woman that driveth a motor car.

Lo, when he weddeth, every man thinketh in his heart that it is for LOVE alone. Yet, where one man marrieth for love, 999 marry for adventure, for novelty and for a change.

Behold, a man weddeth for these reasons:

Because a damsel's family have set their hands against him and opposed him; and every man loveth a fight for its own sake.

Because he hath gone into a flirtation beyond his depth and seeth no other way of escape.

Because he hath known a damsel only a day, and findeth her a novelty.

Because he hath known a damsel all his life and findeth her a habit.

Because he hath kissed a damsel and is filled with self-reproach.

Because he hath NOT succeeded in kissing a damsel and is filled with curiosity and the pride of conquest.

Because she is the only woman at hand and he seeketh companionship.

Because he is poor and lonely, because he is rich and happy, because he is young and impulsive, because he is old and weary, because he needeth a stimulant, because he needeth a rest—and likewise "JUST BECAUSE!"

* * *

Verily, verily, it is never love, alone, but the woman, the mood or the accident which driveth a man into marriage.

* * *

SELAH.

STARVING THE WATCHDOG

By NELSON HARDING

Good nourishment was ordered for
Our watchdog, yet he's thin and poor;
If starved until he's skin and bones
He's fit for only Davy Jones.

He rates an ample bill of fare
And yet a wishbone is his share.
A watchdog weakened by neglect
Is one intruders don't respect.

Listen, World! -:- Living

By ELSIE ROBINSON

You Are Often Disillusioned

IS LIFE worth living?

You've asked that often—haven't you? And, as the years go on, and disillusion and discouragement press more heavily upon you, you ask it with increasing bitterness. More than once you've been tempted to lay down an existence which seems so futile, so full of pain.

If only you knew that it were all worth while—

If you could see some reason for the injustice and cruelty, some purpose in the toil and heart break—

Elsie Robinson

But no answer comes. Man cannot tell you, and God . . . is there a God? Or is He just another tragic dream? A make-believe father we've conjured up to hold to in our awful loneliness?

Yes—I know those questions. I've asked them, too. And railed against the dumb skies that would not answer me. But lately I have not railed so much. Lately I have begun to suspect that I have had the answer all the while—in myself.

Is life worth living? I do not know about life. I do not even pretend to understand its muddled mystery. But this I do know—I know that I, myself, am worth living. Whatever life may lack, I know that there are things in myself which make the struggle worth while.

Is life ugly? Well, I'm ugly, too. In several ways I'm the ugliest thing I know. And yet—there's beauty in me!

Is life cruel? I'm also cruel. And yet—how is it that I'm also kind?

Life lies to me. I lie to life. But there is honor in me as surely as there are bones and flesh.

Life is impure—I sometimes wallow—and yet I worship purity.

Life's filled with cowardice. How often I have been traitor and deserter! Yet, strangely, I am brave!

Life's black with doubt. I'm poisoned by that doubt. But, deep within my darkness, faith burns like a candle through the blackest night.

Life's jumbled and I am part of that jumble. Yet clear and straight and true, within me runs a dream of order.

Beauty, Kindness, Honor, Purity, Courage, Faith, Order—all these tall and shining things abide in me. And abide in you. I do not know who you are or what you have done. You may be sitting on a throne or fumbling at bars—it does not matter. These great things are a part of you, are part of me, are part of everyone. I cannot understand that. I cannot see how we, the higher apes, should house such gleams of fire in the midst of our common clay. But we do! And because we do—

It's all worth while!

Those gleams, within ourselves, make it worth while.

God may be beyond our understanding—

Life may seem a hopeless jumble—

Men may fail us—

Pain may cripple us and death may crush us—

And this little earthly chance may be all we have—

And yet, there is enough beauty and nobility within ourselves to make the game worth the price—

Whatever happens, or fails to happen—you, yourself, are worth all that living costs.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Diary of a Modern Pepys

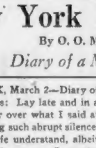
NEW YORK, March 2—Diary of a modern Pepys: Lay late and in a troubled ponder over what I said at a dinner, causing such abrupt silence. Nor did my wife understand, albeit conscious of a faux pas. Came the picture man to hang the Jean Baptiste Robie canvas Will Hogg left us.



So at my typing and to a tea, meeting the young minnesinger, Ogden Nash, who in appearance is not unlike a Kansas plow boy. And Richard Halliburton, the English scrivener, there. Also Carl Van Vechten, Harry Maule and others.

After dinner with Laura and Irvin Cobb and Mr. and Mrs. Matt Carney to hear a broadcast and Will Edrington joined us. Then on to see Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights," finding it better than I imagined yet to me lacking something. To bed.

They were discussing best quips of paragraphic pundits. My choice is one by Eugene Field during Chicago days. A well-known figure who loaned money to newspaper workers returned from a six months tour of Europe. Field observed:

"John Jones is back in town looking after his permanent investments."

Seattle has become as much a city of civic enthusiasm as Los Angeles. During the week I met five residents of Seattle. Each gurgled ecstatically of the wonders of his seven-hilled city, its absence of seasons, its winter time flowers. And, of course, with a fluttery Billie Burke laugh, the L. C. Smith Building.

Personal nomination for the most self-effacing of the theater orchestra leaders—Lou Forman at the Palace.

Marlene Dietrich, so likened to Garbo, has little of the Swedish star's cloistered aloofness. She has a joyous time in New York. Among intimates she is "Dutchy," is fond of cafes, theater, supper clubs and parties. Her English is unaccented and she is otherwise untouched by the Nordic nuances that characterize her rival.

* * *

Paderewski was recently asked to a big dinner before a concert. He excused himself with: "When I play I do not dine. When I dine I do not play."

* * *

Caruso on caroling nights quaffed only a small glass of orange juice. But at midnight he would face his triple portion of spaghetti, tuck a napkin under his chin and "lick the platter clean."

* * *

The expert does not really eat spaghetti. He entwines it with a few quick twists on the end of his fork, throws back his head and with a magical abracadabra inhales it. The late Raymond Hitchcock was a finished spaghettist. The novice it seems to me should carry along scissors so, when taking a mouthful, he can clip off the loose ends.

* * *

A fireside diversion has been salvaging nonsensical names from the telephone book, such as Heesa Sapp, Tip Scales, etc. The person finding the greatest number wins the prize. And they still chuckle at taffy pullings out by the water towers.

* * *

Broadway racketeers are never in business. They have a "piece" of this night club or that speakeasy and this gives them opportunity to muscle in on various side ventures and to spot the live wires ripe for a shake-down. A high flyer with a bank roll is as safe along the Big Alley as a careless cigarette smoker in a powder factory.

* * *

Perhaps it is reaction to a disappointing breakfast, but it strikes me, Beatrice Lillie and Gertrude Lawrence have been skimming along for several years chiefly on the deserved hit they made in the first Charlot Revue. Now everything they do is marvelous—simply incredible!

* * *

"Boll Weevil," writes Tucson Jack, "I'll be in New York with a rodeo outfit shortly and expect to beat up a six shooter clipping buttons off your spats."

I'm working nights at the Camden, N. J., plant until autumn.

Bucking the Trend

By M. S. RUKEYSER

HEADS of more than 170 American corporations resisted the temptation to talk hard times in 1930 and proceeded instead to earn larger profits for their companies than in the previous year.

In a red ink year, these exceptional profit makers progressed, while a much larger array of corporations reported substantial declines in net earnings.

Aggregate returns of 537 domestic corporations disclosed a combined net income equal only to 66 per cent of the 1929 profits, according to the Standard Statistics Company. In the case of 423 companies for which comparable four-year data are at hand, the 1930 results were equal to 77 per cent of 1928 profits and 88 per cent of the total for 1927.

The capacity of a select group of competently managed companies to buck the tides in a year of maximum depression constitutes a challenge to the average person who has been using "hard times" as an alibi for his own poor performance.

The exceptional profit makers in 1930 for the most part took the leadership in quickly adjusting their operations to changed conditions.

Instead of resisting commodity price declines and hoping for a comeback, they accepted the new levels, and set out through increased effort and intelligent economies to make their operations profitable on the lower price basis.

Others took advantage of the general letdown in enthusiasm and in selling zeal to increase their advertising appropriations and improve their own merchandising methods.

Adaptability to radical changes has become a prime attribute for successful management in this era of mercurial shifts in conditions.

Alert managers have recently strengthened the standing of their companies in their own industries.

A new motive for mergers will be to spread the jurisdiction of superior management wider.

Perhaps as the country approaches economic maturity, management in the large will be better able to stabilize employment opportunities and business volume.

Before the economic readjustment is over, larger capitalists, who play the tunes to which company executives dance, will doubtless make further important personnel changes at the top.

Highly press-agented company heads, who draw fat salaries, have in some instances shown that they were only fair-weather operators, who depended on favorable external forces.

The men who succeeded by means of a resolute determination to fight conditions are made of sterner stuff.

In passing, it should be recognized that some industries, such as foodstuffs, tobacco and amusements, are less sensitive to the depressing influences than highly vacillating trades, such as copper, steel, sugar, oil and textiles.

Perhaps in some of the more vulnerable industries supremely able management is shown in improving the relative position of a company in its field.

In all industries, however, depression comes not only as a challenge, but also as a seasoning process.

The emerging business leaders are those who use depression as an occasion for ridding business of unsound and inefficient practices.

All other executives are in danger of being unseated.
